The Moral Vision of Saint Pope John Paul II

From his early years as a boy in small-town Poland to his ascent through the church hierarchy, this presentation seeks to unpack why many refer to now Saint Pope John Paul II (1920-2005) as the "man of the century." Participants will be introduced to the moral vision of Saint John Paul II with a particular focus given to the distinctions and connections made between the human person (anthropology), the human family (sexuality), and human creativity (work). At the time of registration, participants are welcomed to download some manageable reading selections from some of John Paul II's well-known writings. Sep. 20th, check-in from 8:30am - 9am, presentation from 9am-12pm., Emmaus Hall, Saint John's University, Collegeville. Free event. Lunch provided following presentation. Registration is required: www.collegevilleMN.com/theologyday, 320-363-3560 or theologyday@csbsju.edu.
