About the

Cherokee Historical & Preservation Society, Inc.

The Cherokee Historical and Preservation Society, Inc. was formed in 1969 by a group of citizens concerned about the rapid loss of Cherokee County's historical heritage to development and progress. The group now consists of hundreds of members and is taking great strides to educate the public about the significance of and protect the county's numerous historical sites. The Society operates the County's first History Museum at 301 College Drive in Gaffney, South Carolina. The Museum is an artifact-based, hands-on facility that adds a new dimension to the area's already rich culture. To join, simply mail in the provided form, call 864-489-3988, or stop by the Museum today.

Cover: The Limestone Male and Female Seminary was one of the first schools in the area. The building was razed in 1958, but the site is now the home of the Cherokee County History and Arts Museum, a facility of the Cherokee Historical and Preservation Society, Inc. The beautiful structure is one of many local historic sites that have been lost to time and progress.
