Assembly Budget Passes

On March 12, 2014, the New York State Assembly passed their one- house Budget proposal, in response to Governor Cuomo's executive budget proposal released in January 2014. To view the Assembly budget proposal details, go to (assembly.state.ny.us/Reports/WAM/20140312/)

Assemblyman Bill Magnarelli, Chair of the Committee on Local Governments said, "Our house budget recognizes that state aid to local governments cannot remain flat for another year as it has for the last several years. We in the Assembly are committed to a state budget that includes funding levels that can appropriately address the many financially distressed municipalities who are in need of addition state assistance."

The Assembly budget proposal would increase funding for education, protect vital programs for families in need, spur job growth and provide tax relief for working families and businesses (E.914)

Education:

- Increases aid to schools by nearly $1.1 billion for SFY 2014-15, the largest increase in six years;
- The Assembly's proposal is the first step in a multi-year plan that would provide schools with an increase of approximately $1 billion annually over each of the next four years;
- Expands the $2 billion Smart School Bond Act proposal by an additional $302 million;
- Provides an additional $11 million to nonpublic schools, which includes $5 million to address prior year claims for the Comprehensive Attendance Policy (CAP) program, for a total of $153.8 million;
- Includes a $300 increase in New York's Tuition Assistance Program (TAP) awards, bringing the maximum TAP award to $5,300 per full-time student and increasing TAP support by $47 million;
- Funds are allocated to restore SUNY and CUNY child care centers, invest in SUNY health science centers and increase aid to higher education opportunities programs.

Investing in full-day Universal Pre-K:

- The Assembly's budget proposal earmarks $100 million in universal full-day Pre-K funding for high-need districts. Under the plan, any unspent funds would be placed in a reserve account which would be available to districts in following years;
- The Assembly budget authorizes the city of New York to impose a small income tax surcharge (0.534 percent) for those making over $500,000 in order to fully fund full-day UPK and expand after-school programs.

Lowering taxes for homeowners and renters:

- The Assembly budget proposal delivers $1.1 billion in property tax relief;
- The proposal would apply to homeowners making less than $200,000 per year and would base property taxes on the ability to pay, not property value;
- Unlike the governor's budget proposal, there are no strings attached to our "circuit breaker" proposal;
- A locality's efforts to consolidate services or stay under the property tax cap would have no bearing on receiving a property tax cut;
- The Assembly budget rejects the governor's proposal to eliminate the income threshold inflation adjustment for Enhanced STAR eligibility. The Assembly will fight any proposal that limits seniors ability to qualify for Enhanced STAR relief;
- The Assembly budget also provides a personal income tax credit for renters. Renters with incomes up to $200,000 would receive 60 percent of the excess of a portion of their rent paid over a certain percentage of income.

Making New York more affordable for families:

- The Assembly championed the phasing out of the 18-a utility surcharge on energy bills, which was set to end in 2017. Our proposal fast-tracks this plan, eliminating it entirely for residential customers this year, saving families $200 million annually;
- The Assembly proposal would provide relief through revisions in the estate tax. The threshold for the tax would now apply to estates worth more than $3 million;

Increase Aid to Municipalities:

- The Assembly budget would increase total funding for base level grants in the Aid and Incentives for Municipalities (AIM) Program to $995 million, up from the Executive's $715 million;
- Funding for the state's Financial Restructuring Board is also increased in the Assembly budget by $40 million above the Executive Budget for a total of $120 million;
- Under the Assembly budget plan, $438 million is provided for CHIPS and $39.7 million is allocated to the Marchiselli Program. Prior to SFY 2013-14, the state's support for both programs was flat with no funding increase in the five previous years.

Around Town

On March 8, 2014, Assemblyman Magnarelli attended the annual Bhutanese Community Day, celebrated to commemorate the first arrivals of Bhutanese refugees for resettlement in Syracuse in March 2008.

Since 2008, the Bhutanese community population has grown to 2,500 in Syracuse including secondary migration from other states. There are approximately 75,000 Bhutanese residing throughout the United States.This year's celebration highlighted the fact that the first arrivals in 2008 have become US citizens.

Assemblyman Magnarelli is shown with Jai Subedi, President of the Bhutanese Community in Syracuse and with Bhutanese women adorned in traditional dress.
