UNITED STATES AIR FORCE

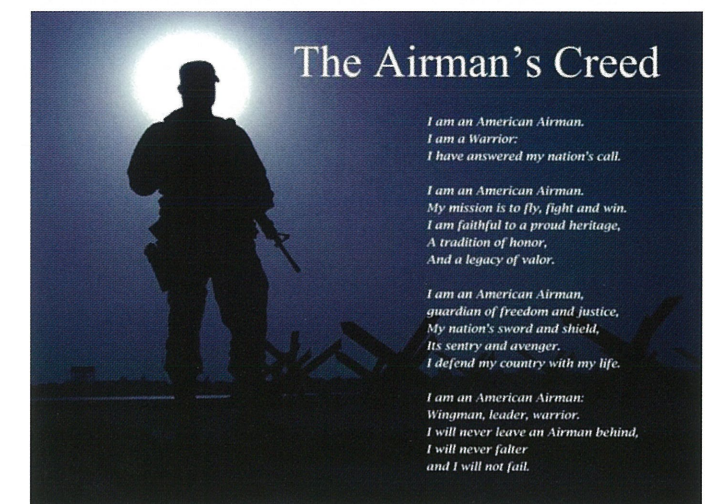

The United States Air Force was officially founded on September 18, 1947. While the Army and Navy were formed during the time of the Revolutionary War, the technology to create an aerial military force had not yet even been conceived. But the use of planes in the US military does predate WWII. In fact, the military purchased its first aircraft in 1909, when the Aeronautical Section, Signal Corps was founded. Even before that, the Union forces in the Civil War used hot air balloons for aerial reconnaissance.

From the time that the US military purchased its first aircraft in 1909 up to 1947, the US Air Force did not exist as a separate and independent military service organization. It went through a series of designations: Aeronautical Section, Signal Corps (1909); Aviation Section, Signal Corps (1914); United States Army Air Service (1918); United States Army Air Corps (1926), United States Army Air Forces (1941).

WWII demonstrated the value of airpower, and the need to change the basic organization of the US Military Forces. The result was the creation of a single Department of Defense with a strong Joint Chiefs of Staff with Army, Navy, and Air Force chiefs. In 1947 President Truman signed the National Security Act which established this new defense organization, and along with it the creation of the US Air Force as an independent service, equal to the US Army and US Navy.

"The joint war fighting excellence our nation expects and gets today from our Air Force was built through 70 years of tenacity and innovation," Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Dave Goldfein said; "Our incredible Airmen continue raising the bar to provide our nation the asymmetric advantage only airpower can bring."

Our remarkable Airmen have defended this country by air, space and more recently cyberspace through their skill and bravery. Today, the USAF operates more than 5,000 military aircraft as well as 450 ICBMs and dozens of military satellites.
