A VETERAN'S PRAYER

Dear Lord, I've served my country,
My love for her is strong.
I've stood behind "Old Glory"...
When others thought her wrong.

I've joined in celebration
And raised a toast in cheer.
I've pledged her my allegiance
And sung her anthem dear.

I've wept for fallen comrades
Who proudly fought and died.
The freedoms they defended...
I cherish deep inside.

I'm proud I'm an American.
For her strength and peace I pray.
There is no greater country...
God Bless the USA!

THE ORIGINAL "FLY GIRLS"

In 1942, the United States was faced with a severe shortage of pilots, and leaders gambled on an experimental program to help fill the void: Train women to fly military aircraft so male pilots could be released for combat duty overseas.

The group of female pilots was called the Women Airforce Service Pilots — WASP for short. In 1944, during the graduation ceremony for the last WASP training class, the commanding general of the U.S. Army Air Forces, Henry "Hap" Arnold, said that when the program started, he wasn't sure "whether a slip of a girl could fight the controls of a B-17 in heavy weather."

"Now in 1944, it is on the record that women can fly as well as men," Arnold said.

A few more than 1,100 young women, all civilian volunteers, flew almost every type of military aircraft — including the B-26 and B-29 bombers — as part of the WASP program. They ferried new planes long distances from factories to military bases and departure points across the country. They tested newly overhauled planes. And they towed targets to give ground and air gunners training shooting — with live ammunition. The WASP expected to become part of the military during their service. Instead, the program was canceled after just two years.

They weren't granted military status until the 1970s. After 65 years after their service, they received the highest civilian honor given by the U.S. Congress. In 2010, President Obama signed a bill awarding the WASP the Congressional Gold Medal. 38 female pilots did lose their lives serving their country.

Elizabeth Cooper Army

- Stationed in El Paso, TX
- Worked in food service
- Served 4 years

She met her husband Jack in the military. She was honorably discharged and continued to serve her country as an Army wife until Jack retired.

Susan McElhaney Marine Corp

- ♦ Paramedic
- ♦ Was stationed at Camp Lejeune and Parris Island

The now iconic "We Can Do It" poster was not planned to be used for public display. In fact, a very small number of people actually saw it when it was first published in 1942. It wasn't until the 1980s that it became famous when the feminist movement appropriated the image.
