

DIAMOND

Diamond is known as “the king of crystals.”

Diamond is a crystal of pure carbon with a hardness of 10 which makes it the hardest natural substance on earth. Diamond’s physical hardness mirrors its spiritual quality of light-filled invincibility.

The first delivery of diamonds was 2.5 billion years ago. The last delivery was 45 million years ago.

Diamond encourages one to perceive how life’s trials and lessons can be put to positive use. It lends strength in high-pressure situations and enables one to respond to stressful experiences with grace.

Diamond has been a symbol of wealth for thousands of years and is one of the stones of manifestation, attracting abundance. The Diamond can inspire the forces of accumulation, helping one to manifest abundance in all areas of one’s life. When worn in everyday life, Diamonds can intensify one’s ability to focus consciousness on manifesting one’s goals and dreams.

Diamonds enhance inner vision and stimulate the imagination. This stone’s frequency encourages psychic development, meditation and spiritual pursuits. Diamond is a powerful stone of truth, encouraging one to act in alignment with one’s inner knowing, and revealing the deceptions of others. It helps one to embody the qualities of purity and honor.

The Diamond is a symbol of purity. Its pure white light can help to bring one’s life into a cohesive whole. It bonds relationships, bringing love and clarity into a partnership.
