received upon his left arm that he had raised in protection, Baxe seized Bastien with the evident intention of holding him until help could come. They, Baxe and Bastien, were shortly found by M. LaLande. No evidence was offered that Baxe struck back at Bastien.

The court decided that Baxe should "make public reparations to the above mentioned Bastien on his knees and be whipped three different days short of death." It also decreed that "having determined to mitigate and soften the punishment of the above Negro by reason the prayer of Mant (.....illegible) in the name of his village we commute the punishment of death, even if merited, to that of whipping." Quoting further, the judgement says: "We forbid all persons of whatever quality or condition they may be, to augment or diminish the above mentioned punishment in any manner whatsoever."

This trial was held on December 22, 1730. Perhaps it is the oldest record of the trial of a Negro slave in Illinois. There are numerous later records of similar trials.
