

EHLERS-DANLOS SYNDROME CANADA INC. Announces Next Step in Nationwide Expansion With A Canadian Website Premiere.

EDSC launches a website for the public and medical community in Toronto on January 1, 2014.

<http://www.ehlers-danlossyndromecanada.org/>

TORONTO, ONTARIO-(January 1, 2014)

Ehlers-Danlos Syndrome Canada provides knowledge, advocacy and support to individuals and their families living with Ehlers-Danlos Syndrome. EDS is a difficult to diagnose chronic degenerative illness.

It is with great pride, after working diligently behind the scenes with those affected by EDS and the medical community for over a year, that the EDSC Board of Directors progressively launches its website. EDSC aims to provide support to empower individuals in illness management and cultivate change for the Canadian EDS community.

Website highlights include:

- About us
- Patient Advocacy
- Community Support
- Forum
- Resource Library
- Fundraising
- More to come - We welcome active participation in the web site.

EDSC strives to engage policy makers to affect change for optimal quality health care for Canadians living with EDS. We need your support to spread the word and further our goals. We hope to be able to provide accurate medical information to the public and medical community on EDS and its related conditions. We strive to unite those who are impacted by EDS through online peer to peer connections and support, friendship opportunities, regional community support groups and social events.

Notably, as of January 1, 2014, our Facebook page www.facebook.com/edscanada has reached over 1100 participants and we continue to have active growth since our page creation in November 2013.

Thank you for sharing your stories, your courage and your determination. We could not have succeeded without your support. This new website strengthens the voice of all Canadians living with EDS. Together we are accomplishing amazing things!

Please visit our new website and Facebook page. We look forward to your feedback.