Context of Faith"
Discussion facilitated by Jackie Hoyt      Limit: 25 People

Many of us grew up in conservative homes and faith communities that have helped to shape our convictions and beliefs. Many of us also have tried to remove ourselves from controversial issues that affect faith and choices. But as much as we would like to remain silent or ignore some of these issues, it is becoming increasingly difficult to do so, as more and more of us examine how we truly feel when it is no longer just a topic in the news, or seen in a movie, but rather when that issue hits close to home because it involves your friend or brother, sister, wife, husband, or child. Listen and participate in a conversation between Rev. Dr. Barbara Therese and Rev. Denise Donato on the topic of "Same Sex Issues within the Context of Faith." Join moderator Jackie Hoyt and these two women of faith as they share insights into a very sensitive but relevant topic affecting today's faith communities. SLE offers a safe place to share and hear opinions that might be different from our own, honoring the tradition to give respect to varied opinions and fostering intellectual thoughts and challenges.

"Now is the Time for Universal Compassion"

I recently came across this quote that has been circulating around social media: "Our race should be humanity; our religion should be love." There is far more that we share in common across races, cultures, religions and every other factor that is used to separate, than that which divides us. The Dalai Lama in his book Beyond Religion: Ethics for a Whole World, coined the term "Universal Compassion." He describes compassion as wanting to do something to relieve the hardships of others and calls us to gradually expand our circle of concern until it finally embraces the whole of humanity. Let's gather by the lake to explore universal compassion and call upon the Holy One to guide us along the way.
