

The F4 Foundation seeks to rebuild the foundations of society by promoting faith, family, freedom, and fun. We are encouraged in the pursuit of this mission by finding that the writers of the Declaration of independence dreamt of something similar when they wrote that all men (and women) were endowed by their creator (Faith) with certain inalienable rights including life, (Family) liberty, (Freedom) and the pursuit of happiness. Grateful Parents Rave About The Importance Of The Burn Camp

"My son really enjoyed the interaction with the other burn survivors at the camp. Learning about their experiences and just plain having fun. He enjoyed sharing the many stories and memories with us when he came home from camp. To meet the other kids and see how everyone copes and continues on with their daily lives has really taught him more than he could ever learn in any book. He will take this experience with him for the rest of his life and hopes to help other kids that have been in the same situation as him."

"I am glad that my son has a place to connect with children and relate to what they have been through. It brings tears to my eyes to imagine any child going through the trauma that they have endured. I think it is special that there is a place where their burns don't matter and they can concentrate on having fun. My son has made lifelong friendships that he looks forward to reconnecting with every year."

"Emma looks forward to camp all year. When she grows up, she wants to run it!"

"My daughter was talking nonstop about camp for the entire day when she returned home. I think it's good for her to get away and experience people and events that are different than I what can provide for her."

“Camp is a great place for a child to be a kid and to not be looked at as different. The staff is great! Caring, friendly, and they remember you
