TABLETOP LIGHTING

Tabletop lighting creates a quiet intimate atmosphere for less than 2 cents per hour. It is the most cost effective way to change your restaurant décor and give it a fresh, new look. Check averages will increase. Customers tend to stay longer and order dessert and after dinner drinks. For a small additional cost candle lamps can bring incremental profits.

KEEPING YOUR GLASS COFFEE DECANTERS CLEAN

Filthy glass coffeepots are more than an eyesore; the old stains and baked-on coffee can affect the taste of your brew. Follow these strategies for making your glass coffeepot sparkle like new.

Vinegar: the Stinky Solution

Vinegar is a natural acid that dissolves coffee stains and hard-water mineral deposits from glass. Mix 2 cups of white vinegar with two cups of water and pour into the pot. Swish the solution around until the stains dissolve, or add two tablespoons of baking soda for extra scrubbing power. Rinse the pot thoroughly after cleaning to remove that pungent smell and taste of vinegar.

Salt, Baking Soda and Ice

This is a favorite trick of coffee baristas: fill the glass pot with crushed ice, two tablespoons of salt and two tablespoons of baking soda. Swirl the mixture around in the pot to create a scrubbing effect.

Lemon Juice to the Rescue

Like vinegar, lemon is a natural acid that can help get rid of coffee stains. Add a cup of lemon juice to the glass pot, fill with cold water and let soak overnight. The next morning, wipe the inside of the pot with a paper towel or use a soft bristle brush to scrub away any lingering stains.
