MIGRATION PANAMA

Many North American bird species migrate to Mexico, Central and South America during the northern winter. These rare and common species alike are in danger of losing tremendous amounts of wintering habitat in Panamá. Without winter habitat these species will not survive. The objective of this photo exhibit is to introduce the public to a selection of migrants that spend the winter in Panamá and to bring awareness for the need of conservation action.

Our team at Conservación Panamá Inc, a Massachusetts 501(c)(3) and Panama Birds & Wildlife Photos, are dedicated to conservation research and action in Panamá. Learning about the needs of our wintering migrants, conserving the lands they use and creating forever conservation solutions is our primary goal in Panamá.
