

Dr. Taylor Tillery DVM

Dr. Taylor Tillery is a Professional Services Veterinarian for Merck Animal Health's US Companion Animal business, where he provides technical information to veterinary health care teams. He has extensive knowledge of small animal medicine and has aided in certified veterinary technician and veterinary assistant training programs. Dr. Tillery's vast experience extends beyond general practice in Texas: he has also worked emergency room and critical care as well as provided surgical support for the local shelter that he continues to support on weekends. He also actively participates in the Power of 10 leadership group with the TVMA to help maintain, improve, and lead the veterinary profession into the future.