D.R.A. Settles On Swimming Pool Operation Details

Association To Assume Full Charge With Full Cooperation of Council

Keith Dancy, Gord Sinclair and Danny Dooner After Eight Long Years, a Dream Come True.

The Dorval Recreation Association and the Public Works Commission have gotten together well ahead of the hot weather season and reached agreement on all important facets of swimming pool operation. Representing the D. R. A. were Mrs. Dorothy Dow, R. M. Smith, A. S. Johnston, F. L. Pougnet and M. Shacter. Council was represented by Aldermen Desnoyers, Braddell and Goodale.

The target date for pool opening has been set for St. Jean Baptiste Day, June 24, and all have agreed to exert every effort toward achieving full operation by that date. Meanwhile, D.R.A. directors, at a special meeting called for March 28, will seek from the membership authority to transfer Walters Park pool to the city at no charge.

A consulting engineer will be retained for construction in every detail, from design to supervision of construction, of the two new pools. This post will be assigned to Dr. Felix M. Krause, and specifications and working drawings, on which contractors will be invited to bid, shall have prior approval of both The City of Dorval and the D. R. A.

Wading pools, however, for the Surrey Gardens Park and Ballantyne Park pools have been dismissed on the grounds of safety and economics. The space, in the case of Surrey Gardens, will be required for parking in summer and for skating rink during the winter months.

The D.R.A. will have full control for the year 1960 to manage and operate all three city pools; to engage staff, and to set and collect fees. They will keep books and control all expenses, with the City being allowed full access to the D.R.A. books at any time. It won't be long now. An, one for swimming!

CFOX Hits the Airwaves, First Lakeshore Station

It took eight years but the big dream has finally come true for three buddies who, in 1952, were slugging it out at Montreal's CFCF radio in different capacities. Early-morning "Wake Up Man" Gordon Sinclair was on the job every morning at six with his early bird broadcast, while Keith Dancy and Danny Dooner were cogs in the management and sales makeup of the station. All spent many hours, and consumed countless gallons of coffee, discussing the possibility of their dream child, Lakeshore Family Radio.

Now, since 6 a.m. yesterday, Lakeshore listeners have their own station, CFOX. Studio policy is geared on a popular level. Mornings and afternoons, broadcasting is programmed for the popular or "mass" taste. Nighttime programming will feature classical music, sports, country music and news about community activities. The studio, situated in the heart of Pointe Claire's growing industrial area, is a model one in every respect. Its transmitter is located on the south shore of Lake St. Louis.

Nearly a score of people make up management and technical staff for the fledgling station.

Says Sinclair: "It's a daring project any way you look at it, and we know the competition will be tough. But there's always room for good radio and good entertainment combined with real public service, and we definitely feel that CFOX will provide the Lakeshore with something it has needed for a long time -- a radio voice that will concentrate on the affairs and goings-on of the finest suburban district anywhere in Canada. Keith, Dancy and I know we have the tools to work with and the staff to make CFOX a winner."

If spirit and hard work mean anything, Mr. Sinclair and his buddies, Keith Dancy, general manager, and Danny Dooner, sales manager, look like a good bet to stay in business a long time.

A Canadian National Railways executive suggested last March 9 the solution to the ever-worsening commuter problem lies in greater use of railways rather than expensive highway improvements.

H.B. Parr, CNR assistant general freight traffic manager, told the Quebec Division of the Canadian Industrial Traffic League that "highway facilities adequate to the commuter traffic of tomorrow will undoubtedly consume many more millions of dollars than the provision of adequate rail facilities."

He pointed out, however, that railway commuter services today are losing money and "from the very fact of inadequate return or direct loss in assuming the whole burden themselves the answer cannot be in the railways providing such facilities alone."

Mr. Parr dealt with the future of Canadian railroads of the light of increased competition from the trucking industry, the automobile and encroachment of Canadian airlines.

To counteract these, he said, "rail cost advantages as the cheapest form of mass land transportation must be exploited to the fullest extent necessary."

Dorval Man Killed At Underpass

A Dorval motorist was fatally injured in a freak accident when a brake-shoe from a CNR freight train hurled through the auto's windshield at the Dorval underpass on Metropolitan boulevard.

Police said Leonard Herring, 47, of 135 St. Louis avenue, Dorval, died in Lachine General Hospital shortly after the 30 pound brake-shoe plummeted from the moving freight through the windshield. Herring lost control of the auto and crashed into a nearby cement abutment. His wife, his only passenger, escaped injury.

May Campaign Set To Aid Retarded

The Quebec Association for Retarded Children has announced a combined campaign for 1960 to cover its four schools in the Montreal area and its summer camp at St. Lazare. Previously, respective schools in Cote St. Luc, L'Abord-a-Plouffe, on the Lakeshore and the School for Handicapped Children on north St. Lawrence Boulevard conducted independent campaigns to cover operating needs.

Named to head the 1960 campaign, which has an objective of $370,000 to cover an 18-month period, is A. Toner Brodeur, president of Cassidy's Limited, who has been a director of the School for Handicapped Children since 1941. His deputy chairman is J. Wallace Powell, supervisor, Quebec Branches, Royal Bank of Canada. The campaign will be held on Montreal Island and environs from May 15 to 30.

In announcing the combined appeal, under the Retarded Children's Fund, Mr. Brodeur said that the tremendous increase in demand for admission of mentally afflicted children in to the Association's schools calls for a period of consolidation and a careful look at the future by all concerned with the problem.

He pointed out that, "although mental retardation is not new to our society, it is only in recent years that it has really come to the attention of the general public. Statistically," he added, "it is authoritatively recognized that 30 of every 1,000 children born are mentally retarded; the most significant handicap in our society today."

"In Montreal and vicinity alone the number of retarded children could be as high as 16,000. The public school system absorbs some of these children in special classes but there are thousands more who cannot be accommodated."

$370,000 -- THE KEY TO A "MUST NOT FAIL" PROJECT

From May 15 to May 30, the Quebec Association for Retarded Children will conduct a combined appeal for 1960 to carry on the work of its four schools in the Montreal area, and its summer camp at St. Lazare. No campaign could be more worthy of our support.

Mental retardation is nothing new, but the therapies and programs developed to combat mental retardation have come along with giant strides through the past few years. Slowly but surely, the Association for Retarded Children and its dedicated workers are making inroads -- improving the lot of unfortunate kiddies and their suffering parents, and making useful citizens out of people who were once considered hopeless cases.

The Lakeshore, particularly its Civitan and Pointe Claire Kinsmen clubs, is getting behind the campaign with a will. $370,000 will go a long way toward making a fine effort into a better one.

We commend the Quebec Association for Retarded Children campaign to your attention and utmost consideration.

The Night Desk

with Paul McKenna Davis

As though the British weren't having enough trouble with disarmament, and other minor matters like the pound sterling, a news release comes to hand as follows:

The British government takes issue with those -- and they are legion -- who consider Marilyn Monroe's figure something extra special.

A government report, based on a survey by the joint clothing council, said that in Britain, anyway, Marilyn's figure is hardly special at all. It said that 45,000 ladies in the British Isles have figures exactly like Marilyn's.

But the report also concedes that the rest of the British women don't measure up.

The average Miss Britain is 5'3" and measures 35-25-37 and one half. This makes her about two inches bigger in the waist and hips than Miss Monroe -- and a good deal dumber than Gina Lollobrigida.

This is serious. It indicates that Britain, valiantly struggling to restore her world markets and living under an austerite program, is turning her attention to off-beat matters. Miss Monroe, along with other latter day Lillian Russells such as Jayne Mansfield and Sophia Loren, may have started something with her recent invasion into British consciousness when she did a chore of what laughingly passes for acting opposite Sir Laurence Olivier in the British-made The Prince and the Showgirl.

It's a sorry state of affairs when a country of traditional common-sense starts taking the current concept of feminine beauty seriously. One can imagine the following conversation in a sedate London club.

Sir Percival: Well, well, Lytell, back from your shooting brake, I see. But why the blue raminand?

Lord Lytell: Unfortunate mishap, old boy. Mistook Lady Pamela for a grouse and shot her.

Percival: Hurrumph! Buried her, I suppose?

Lytell: Oh yes, had to. Dead, you know. But let's not talk of trifling matters. Seen The Times?

Percival: Shocking.

Lytell: In a word, old chap. Don't know what Harold, Selwyn, Rab and the lot of them are up to. When I sat in Lords, we were rather more concerned with the relief of Mafeking than with the shilly-shallying and measurements of a lot of fool women.

Percival: Rights, Lytell. Seems to me, m'lord, Harold could have turned the whole thing over to the department of weights and measures and let it go at that.

Lytell: That's not all, old fellow. Imagine having 45,000 replicas of that Monroe person running loose around the British Isles? In my day, British beauty had a tradition. Now you recall Lady Pamela as a girl, don't you?

Percival: Smashing . . . really smashing! Truly a woman, scrubbed, windburned and all that rot; wide-hipped, captained her field hockey team and went 14 stone if she weighed an ounce.

Lytell: (Sighing) To true British beauty. Hibbs, two of the same!

The concern expressed by their lordships is not uncommon. Today's standard of beauty and glamor is a shade puzzling, especially when we note that the Marlene Dietrichs and Betty Grables of yester-year don't get a tumble today. What, all of a sudden, is wrong with a good looking ankle?

Some years back, the stylemakers, for want of something better to do, decreed a motif called the "new look." This put mama in something resembling a potato sack, but at least she looked attractive enough that the sedate, faithful husband kept his mind on his work and wasn't going around getting hit by trucks because of inattention to the job at hand.

The 1957 "look" is something else again. Mrs. Schultz, fetch me my blinners.

In any case, it does seem a pity that the British are worried about the 33-23-38 weepstakes, when there's so much vital work to be done. Beauty, after all, is relative. And as the Kingfish said to Andy: "Okay, maybe she weighs 240. Underneath that fat she's probably a very thin woman."

John Pratt Reports From Ottawa

Local taxpayers will be interested to know that in the City of Ottawa the tax rate is in the neighborhood of 50 mills, or $5.00 per $100.00 of property valuation. Rates are much lower on the Lakeshore and let's hope that we can keep them that way, even with the new Boulevard. At the time of going to press, I was unable to discover if Ottawa used the same basis of assessment as generally practiced in this area.

The Commons used up eight precious days of debate on the Department of Labour Estimates and then, peculiarly enough, all parties voted solidly together 127/0 in favour. This is the kind of thing that drives back-benchers crazy -- the utter waste of so much valuable time spent on political window dressing under our present system of partisanship politics. Admittedly, it is the best system yet discovered by man, but surely man should be able to improve upon it. It is absolutely necessary that government be streamlined if government is to continue to take on more and more responsibilities in every conceivable field of human endeavour. Parliament may have been a delightful place a hundred years ago, when a mere handful of matters were discussed and debated, but today the pressure of work is becoming an impossible burden for the cabinet ministers to deal with efficiently, and some means must be found for delegating this work without delegating the responsibility.

An interesting item in the Estimates which caught my eye during the Labour debate was a list of salary costs for a category of employees in the Labour Department known as "Employment and Claims Officer". These employees are responsible for registering and checking the claims of the unemployed. I was astonished to find that there are 4,142 of these people. I was even more appalled to discover that their total salaries amount to $15, 106,676.00 -- fifteen million dollars a year -- just to keep in touch with the unemployed before we even start to pay out the unemployment insurance. I am informed by the Department of Labour that these men were over-worked last year and so this year, with less unemployment, there are 101 more such officers, with a consequent increase in the budget for their salaries of over $600,000.00. Mr. Parkinson would be very happy.

The Parliamentary Joint Committee on Public Health recently heard some interesting discussions on the problem of feeding the world's "exploding population". It is a frightening thing to realize that more people are expected to be added to the population of the world in the next 40 years than in the past 200,000 years. We must face the fact that this growth in external population is going to have more effect on Canada than any internal factors, which must all become comparatively unimportant in contrast. We must realize that we cannot hope to keep to ourselves this vast, wealthy, and naturally-endowed country. We either cooperate with the rest of the world or find ourselves overrun by the teeming millions that are even now rising to strength and power in under-privileged Africa and Asia. This is in addition to our present fear of the possibility of losing either our future world trade or a future world war to the increasingly powerful Soviet Union. We have got to start thinking as members of the entire human race rather than as members of the small parochial groups into which we happened to be born.

North Americans have got to realize that we live in an economy of waste and that millions of people could live very well on the things that we throw away. In South East Asia 75% of the people were born, are living and will die in hunger. They see North Americans living in the lap of luxury with food production being cut down, while they and their children starve. They see people in North America getting a share of the world's goods entirely out of proportion to the population. It is time we grew up and stopped beefing about our minor, childish troubles. We are the luckiest people in the world and it is about time we started sharing our good fortune.

Wild Ducks Star In Freak Invasion

Thousands of migrating wild ducks invaded Lake St. Louis last night in what one experienced duck hunter call "an extraordinary occurrence."

F.A. Thomson, of 4228 St. Joseph boulevard, Lachine, said the birds must have been "blown off their usual track" by the storms currently whipping the eastern part of the country.

"The birds came over and circled the lake in flights of 50 to 100," Mr. Thomson said. "There must have been thousands of them."

Arithmetic anyone? The Strathmore Local Association of Girl Guides will have a sum close to the $400 budget they have outlined if arithmetic and action work together. A progressive coffee party will start off with six invited guests; each guest in turn will hold a coffee party for six -- and four rounds of this at only 25¢ per person will net the ladies $388. It sounds like a wonderful scheme and I hope the figure on paper becomes the balance in the bank. The money is needed to carry on with the expenses of leader training, badges, rent and supplies.

Simple arithmetic is all that is necessary to make the following items impressive. Two days after the special meeting to further World Refugee Year was held for the Lakeshore at Pointe Claire, four Dorval youngsters who call themselves, appropriately the Action Club turned in $3.60 for this cause; a Girl Guide Company contributed $15, and the Lakeshore Unitarian Church with only 70 members pledged $500.

Certain groups interested in constructing a monorail have approached Mayor Pratt to discuss the feasibility of such a service between downtown Montreal and the Airport. "Such a service could very well handle the commuters in Lachine, which is losing the C.N.R. service, and also Dorval and Pointe Claire. There is also a slight possibility that the World's Fair grounds may be situated north of the Airport, and, in such a case, monorail would add just the right futuristic touch for an event celebrating the 100th Anniversary of our progressive nation." Quote from a memo from Mr. Pratt.

There has been considerable initial interest in the library project of St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Strathmore. Rev. Harwood Jones said that his idea for the library arose out of the wide interest shown by his parishioners in good reading, and he remarked that he is pleased to see books from his own collection go into circulation rather than collect dust on the shelves. The community has responded well to a request for books, and the shelves are already lined with everything from the modern and futuristic thinking of C.S. Lewis to "who-done-it" and cook books. Mr. Jones was laughing over one major-minor problem which has arisen, "To cover or not to cover," those good detective novels which turn up in the most lurid and misleadingly illustrated paper backs. St. Andrew's is most fortunate to have, organizing and working for them on this project, Miss Margaret McIntosh, who is experienced in library work.

Lakeshore ladies made a national magazine last week in this saucy bit (Maclean's, March 12). "Note from the world of low fashion: Women of the Pointe Claire, P. Q., Curling Club are using falsies to cushion their knees on the ice." A little sleuthing among Dorval members turned up a smile in this connection. One lady addicted to the cool fashion apparently tucked these curling accessories into her purse one day, and then dropped them as she went to pay her bill at Steinberg's. Instead of just picking them up and putting them back in her purse, she attempted to explain to the poor bewildered man behind her that she didn't really wear falsies -- except on her knees -- for curling.

L'SHORE WOMEN'S CLUB ORGANIZES REFUGEE WORK

At the recent meeting in Pointe Claire, sponsored by the Lakeshore University Womens Club, called to organize volunteer work for Refugees, Mr. Crawford Anderson, Pointe Claire acted as chairman. Volunteers who came forward to serve on the steering committee were: Mrs. B. G. Cameron, Valois; Mr. V. Croft, Lakeside; Dr. D. T. Harpur, Pointe Claire; Mrs. K. B. Matheson, Beaconsfield; Mrs. T. D. Nicholl-Came, Pointe Claire; Mr. J. B. Reid, Lachine; Mr. A. R. M. Roy, Lachine; Mrs. L. Van Heytingen, Baie D'Urfe; Mr. F. Verwilt, Pointe Claire; Mrs. R. D. Williamson, Dorval. The steering committee then retired for the purpose of electing a chairman Mrs. R. D. Williamson has been appointed chairman, and the committee will be meeting shortly to elect a slate of officers. The next open meeting will take place within the next few weeks at which time names of officers will be announced. Anyone interested in aiding the committee is asked to get in touch with one of the above members.

Also mentioned in the same issue of Maclean's, Dorval's Linda Randall in a "musical to watch," McGill's revue, "GOT IT MADE," referring to rave reviews for this dancing co-ed "who turned a minor part into a show-stopper" In the news lately, a Physical Training Instructor in Dorval School, Vince Drake, Basketball team coach, in connection with the Quebec Zone entry in the combined Canadian championship and National Olympic trials After his double trouble in casts last summer, six year old Gordie Robson, now trussed up in arm and leg casts, is chalking up record times in plaster casts. Record time was also made by a quick thinking teacher, Mrs. McLellan, who witnessed Gordie's accident and went after the police ambulance which had passed that way moments before Good luck to Courtland Park Home and School at their card party tomorrow night; the money goes into Scholarships and prizes for students.

Business and pleasure, Mr. W. H. Graupe, Dorval, President and General Manager of Ferro Technique Ltd., 560 Montee de Liesse, St. Laurent, Quebec, arranged a March Open House to celebrate the establishment of the newly created Machine Tool Division of the Company. Approximately 300 people from all levels of planning, Engineering and Purchasing attended the Open House. Representatives in plaster casts from such as, Canadian, Canada Iron Foundries, Canadian Allis Chalmers, Canadian Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Co., Dominion Bridge, Dominion Engineering, Dominion Oilcloth and Linoleum, Robert Mitchell Co., Trans Canada Airlines, Kraft Goods Ltd. and others, were among the guests.

A cold buffet was served by Sepp's Delicatessen, featuring among other delicacies, smoked turkey. The bar was well looked after by Hiram Walker people Apart from the fact that technical novelties such as automatic programming on Milling Machine and microfinishing were shown and found interesting -- a good time was had by all.

Kiddies' Haircuts Can Be Painless

"When you first take your youngster to the barber, just drop in and visit, introduce him and let him explore the barber shop, then bring him back a few days later for his haircut." These were words of advice tendered by Mr. Branchard who should know. Mr. Branchard's father started barbering on St. James St. at what used to be called St. Lawrence Hall, at the beginning of the century and Mr. Branchard has taken up where his father left off. Not content just to let things go, Mr. Branchard has expanded until he has now the largest barbering organization in Canada. He has two shops downtown (on St. Catharine near Guy, and one by Her Majesty's), and another out here in Dorval.

With the diversity of his operation, Mr. Branchard is able to please his barbers where they are happiest. "A barber may be excellent and have all the skill in the world but just not have the patience to deal with children. He can work in one of our downtown shops." However, there are some who have patience and a certain unknown quantity that makes it easy for them to charm children," said

Mr. Branchard and I asked him what makes children cry so at the barber's. He replied, "most of the children have had painful or frightening experiences getting inoculations and checkups with doctors or nurses who usually are dressed in white, so when they see our barber, (who also is dressed in white) they start to holler. This is usually just for the first time; after they see we won't hurt them, they relax and enjoy coming."

I asked Mr. Branchard if he has seen many changes take place in barbering over the years. He said, "the changes are enormous first in training. The barber now goes to school for three years and then he is only classed as an apprentice -- then after more practising, and further exams, he is classed as a graduate barber."

"Keep Down With The Joneses" Probed By Dr. Paul Nash

The urge to conform arises from a lack of security.

In the last of the current Lakeshore Forum talks at the Lakeshore Unitarian Church, Dr. Paul Nash, Professor of Education at Macdonald College, probed the present desire to "keep down with the Joneses." The fundamental challenge in Canada in 1960 is the pace of change.

Until recent times, changes in moral and material values were scarcely discernible during a man's lifetime, so that a young man grew up in a familiar world. Nowadays, however, landmarks disappear rapidly, and a man of fifty finds the world vastly different from the world he knew at fifteen.

Dr. Nash cited examples of the pace of change. Of all the recorded scientists, 90% are alive today, and Dr. Oppenheimer says that scientific knowledge is doubling in volume every 10 years. 80% of the goods now being sold by Dupont were invented in the last decade.

Ideas believed today are thrown overboard tomorrow. A.M. Whitehead has pointed out that all the axioms taught in 1890 were discarded in 1930.

Because of the constant and fundamental changes, we are unsure of ourselves. An amusing consequence of our unsureness is the popularity of books on etiquette, which rank as best-sellers. If we don't know what's happening to us, we can at least be sure that we're behaving properly. Advertisers, too, have sensed the craving for conformity, hence such slogans as "90% of Canadians use . . ."

The conformist is the organization man, the interchangeable man, the man in the grey flannel suit. He is not a unique North American product, for there is plenty of conformity behind the Iron Curtain, as is evidenced by the treatment meted to Boris Pasternak. In Dr. Nash's opinion, Pasternak would get a short shrift in America as he did in Russia, because he is against the organization man.

Our society contains some elements that seemingly oppose conformity, such as the beatniks and the teddy-boys. There are the European refugees who come to America, and the Americans living abroad who are refugees from the American way of life.

The minority groups, however, conform by joining a group. Beatniks conform to the mores of their clan, and nothing is more stringent than the conformity than the conformity imposed by Bohemianism. Frequently, the non-conformists, when they gain the upper hand, insist on a rigid conformity. Dr. Nash pointed out that the conformity instigated by the colonists in Massachusetts was much stricter than the English variety they had left.

Contrary to prevalent opinion, the juvenile delinquent is not a non-conformist; he merely expresses the values of current society. He notices that adults operate on the principle of "Get it now and pay later." He also "gets it now" - and pays later, if he's caught. Adult philosophy, whether in the civic or international field, is based on the assumption that it is advisable to use a bigger stick than the enemy, and to use it sooner. The violence of the juvenile delinquent is the logical result of his father's philosophy.

The comparative newness of United States civilization stimulates conformity. The American-born fear the immigrants, and consequently band together to protect themselves. The immigrants feel left out in the cold, and hasten to conform so that they may be accepted as Americans. A similar situation arises over every minority. The Negroes in the southern States have no wish to revolt; any disturbance they make is caused by their yearning for acceptance as American citizens.

Joining a group entails a double set of standards. When a question of judgment arises, should we be loyal to ourselves or the group? There is the danger that, as members of a group, we will accept a code of morals unacceptable to us as individuals. In illustration of this point, Dr. Nash remarked that we personally would not kill Russian babies, but impersonally, through the Government, we are spending more on the means to kill Russian children than we are on educating our own.

Another group is the . . . stems from the . . . of the group, which . . . apart from outsiders, and . . . gap between us and the outsiders is therefore widened. A group tends to promote intolerance, as it can criticize outsiders with impunity. Dr. Nash deplored the segregation of Quebec into Protestant and Catholic, and remarked parenthetically that Quebec is the only place in the world that has succeeded in turning a Jew into a Protestant. If Catholics and Protestants attended the same schools, prejudice would be challenged, and enlightening dogmas, would result.

While the compulsion to excessive conformity must be resisted, yet individual freedom must be restricted in the interests of society. Man cannot live unto himself alone.

DORVAL Sports on Parade

by GABY FILIATRAULT

The hockey season is over for nearly all Dorval boys. The Award night, sponsored by the Dorval Recreation Association, is the only event left for this winter. Dorval representatives did very well in play-off competition and we only have congratulations for all the players coaches and officials. They brought a lot of glowing comments, from every one who saw or heard about the boys and the successes of our teams is something that we should all be proud of.

In the Dorval Reporter's issue of January seventh, with our nomination of outstanding athletics for the year 1959 we predicted that 1960 would be the best year so far in Dorval for sports and the hockey season just finished proved beyond any doubt that our city will be well represented in many years to come. The success of the past season is not due to Lady Luck. The hard work and planning of our many community-minded citizens are finally bearing some rewards.

It is not very often that one district is able to have two finalists and one semi-finalist in the play-off series and Dorval did it this year. Strathmore Midgets, St. Louis Marie Bantams, Windsor Gardens Pee-wees were great teams and their defeat in the final series will not change any of our previous statements that if our boys were given the same opportunities as their opponents in the finals they would have finished on top. St. Jerome Midgets, Verdun's bantams and Town of Mount Royal Pee-wees all had artificial ice arenas, and have been playing hockey since November our boys started only in January. Teams were formed as best as the coaches could, tryouts were very few and the boys got their training while playing regular games and only regular games were played. St. Louis-Marie played the most games with 22, and when we consider that some of the Montreal teams played 40 and 50 games besides regular practices we just wonder how our boys successfully meet such competition.

Pointe Claire Juveniles won the Suburban title from St. Jerome. They also won the City of Montreal title against Chomedey School of Maisonneuve. Scores 5 to 1 at the Forum, and 3 to 1 at Macdonald Arena. They were going for the Provincial title last Saturday at the Lachine Arena.

Valois mosquitos were eliminated by St. Laurent.

Our hat is off to the Windsor Gardens Pee-wees; R. Newells, Young, J. Breault, R. Wray, C. Wolff, R. Bells, B. Jensen, M. Read, A. Hamer, H. Chadwick, B. Creighton, G. Greenshilds, J. Cheshire, B. Foot, and to their coaches Doug Declé and Ross Nicholson, to the Strathmore Midgets: H. Layzell, J. Labrecque, H. Harvey, K. Davis, T. Dyce, R. Dussault, J. Hoad, L. C. Smith, R. Rodwitt, T. Fletcher, B. Brown and to their coach P. Pinette. You can be proud of carrying the City of Dorval colours so far and of all your successes. The defeat must have been hard to take, but was accepted by real sportsmen with hopes of being able to do better in years to come.

The Dorval Recreation Association Award Night, reported postponed last week has been scheduled to take place April 8th at the St. Louis Marie School on Mimosa Avenue. Teams and most valuable players will be honored and players are to receive crests of their individual team's colours. An impressive collection of trophies will be given to the winning teams, and in one word a very pleasant evening for all hockey players and everyone who would like to pay tribute to our fine hockeyists.

It has been a great year for the Strathmore district. Jim Waugh, district supervisor saw his Mosquitos represent Dorval in play-off, his Pee-wees won the League's championship but lost the local play-off to a great team the Windsor Gardens, his Midgets went to the suburban finals and a few boys from Strathmore played starring roles on our Juveniles Rockets. Midgets also won the league title.

Windsor Gardens waited a long time for a championship team but when it came it was worth waiting for. Dorval East St. Louis Marie bantams were the talk of the city all winter and hopes are great for the district next winter. Pine Beach had a lot of good players but were not lucky in league championship play-off, but as every one knows "Wait till next year." Courtland Park district had a lot more success this winter and will improve next winter.

League's winners and play-offs champions are known but Most Valuable Players nominations will only be known on the Award Night so the boys and parents must attend the Award Night on April 8th at the St. Louis Marie School. We are told that many boys will have the surprise of their life that night.

GETTING SET FOR THE GOLF SEASON: The golfing season is just around the corner and the above twosome from the Lachine-Dorval YMCA Golf School is making sure they are well prepared. Golf pro Wally Dzielwiz (left) is providing timely tips to Mr. A.E. Lee and Mrs. Lois Carmichael. An eight weeks instructional program provided by the local 'Y' is currently being held at Courtland Park School in Dorval.

Pine Beach Sports

by Gordie Webster

The hockey season is fast drawing to a close and Dorval's last hopes - the Windsor Garden Pee-wee, the Dorval East Bantam, (St. Louis Marie) and the Strathmore Midgets having been eliminated just before the Forum play-off time. However the Lakeshore hopes are still high in the Pointe Claire Juveniles in their win over the City and District play downs and who are now moving up to the Provincial play downs next Saturday at the Verdun Auditorium at 2:30 p.m. Get out and cheer them on for they are a good team.

We in Pine Beach are still playing hockey until the middle of April through the wonderful effort of L. Brossit who has taken another hour 9 to 10 p.m. at the Lachine Arena Saturday night. This could mean a serious financial loss to Leo H. he does not get the support to pay for the ice ($15.00 per hour) but could mean that we might have two hours next year for our boys and this spells the difference between success and failure of our teams. Please lend your support for this effort.

Saturday night, March 12 saw the two Pine Beach Pee-wee teams have a good work out and the Pine Beach Bantams coached by J. Young tie the Dorval East Bantams in a clean hard fought game from 9 to 10 p.m. Our Pine Beach Bantam Gover Jets played at St. Jerome 2:00 p.m. the same day and lost out to a better team by the small margin of 4 to 2. This team has been coached by Leo Brossit and Mr. D. Grover is mighty proud of the team he sponsored this year.

Through another fine sportsman Mr. D. Walker the Pine Beach Seniors (old timers) now have a big trophy to battle it out for a winner on March 19th, 9 to 10 p.m. at the Lachine Arena. I know this conflicts with the St. Patrick's Dance on the same night, but what better way to get into shape for that Hop than to play the hockey game first (then perhaps the Scotsmen will have a chance at the dance with the Irish Belles?)

There are 150 tickets distributed to the various coaches now for sale for our banquet March 25, at the P.B.C.A. Hall, supper to be served at 6:30 p.m. sharp and for those who cannot eat meat on Friday there is Fish and Chips, but this must be indicated at the time of purchase so that I can order this special. Tickets must be in no later than Wednesday, March 23rd, or you will find that there is no place to sit for we can only fit a limited number down to supper in the hall (165) and this includes the head table.

We are suffering a financial loss this year in the hockey part for the simple reason that some boys have not yet paid up their $1.50 fee required for insurance and expenses. The Midget Team and the Mosquitos are the main defaulters so please get your money in to your coaches as soon as possible boys. The Mosquitoes teams, although not entered into the QMHA league this year still have to be insured at $1.00 per boy. All this was pre-paid by the PBCA and they should get all or most of it back it each boy will do his part.

Another thing which was partly our fault in not checking first, is that each boy playing hockey, or participating in any activity sponsored by the PBCA is required to be a member of the Association. This is a small fee required by our constitution ($2.00 per family) and very little to ask for all the benefits that are obtained. If you are not a member and your boy has been playing hockey this season please contact one of the directors or myself for the required membership fee.

The following list will help in any of the above things: Mosquitoe teams -- Mr. G. Neeson, 92 St. Louis -- ME 1-1908 -- Pee-Wee teams -- Mr. A. Wade, 48 Pine Beach -- ME 1-8484; Mr. A. Stone 176 Thorncrest -- ME 1-1782 -- Bantam teams -- Mr. L. Brossit 88 Pine Beach -- ME 1-8348; Mr. J. Young, 70 Pine Beach -- ME 1-8187 -- Midget team -- Mr. C. Mosman -- ME 1-1306 -- Seniors (Old Timers) -- Mr. G.H. Webster 69 Pine Beach -- ME 1-6613.

There are 1,372,316 of our children enrolled as members of the Canadian Junior Red Cross. They are organized in more than 40,000 classroom Branches in every province in Canada.

THREE DORVAL WINNERS IN AGNES PURCELL LITERARY CONTEST

The awards were made this week in the Agnes Purcell Annual Literary Competition, sponsored by the Catholic Women's League on the Island of Montreal, and no less than three entries from Dorval won prizes. Mrs. Irvine Bailey whose poetry has been published in this column won First Prize for a Short Story, "Time For Going," set in the Laurentians. In fact the crisis of the story takes place on the very rock where Mrs. Bailey, sat one summer and wrote her tale.

Our own Kit McTavish won First Prize in the Essay section and Second Prize for the Short Story. The essay was based on the facts of a tragic incident which touched Mrs. McTavish and her family deeply during the period they spent on Anticosti Island. A curious twist of fate kept a young girl alive for three hours in the unfriendly waters of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and swept her would-be rescuer in minutes to his untimely heroic death. The following passage gives an insight into the nature of Anticosti which is unknown to those who have not dwelt there.

"Beyond the lighthouse, the trees along the shoreline, scrubby spruce and balsam grew twisted, flat against the ground. The constant winds from the gulf had bowed them down until they hugged the earth like moss. There, written in the wordless language of trees was the unheeded warning - - - "How relentless are the elements on Anticosti." Mrs. Ed. Cox won First Honourable Mention for her short story.

H. Gordon Green, National President of the Canadian Authors Association and author of a recent book on Canadian Aviation, THE SILVER DART is the judge of the Short Story and Essay section. Ever since its inception, Mr. Leo Cox, A Dorvalite too, has been the judge of the Poetry Competition. Mr. Cox admits that poetry is his hobby, quite a successful one if one may judge from the fact that a number of his poems have been published in anthologies of Canadian verse. A man with considerable technical knowledge in the art of writing, he had given of his time to encourage would-be poets.

Though small in scope, the Agnes Purcell Literary contest provides an opportunity for some women with the C.W.L. to receive kind and constructive criticism of their literary work. It encourages those who have talent to continue along more productive avenues and it gives a kind of recognition too rarely found, but deeply needed by sensitive creative people. This is truly Christian endeavour.

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST

Following hard upon the heels of C.B.C.'s lavish production of Oscar Wilde's artificial comedy, M.R.T. did a very creditable job of THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST. If the first act could be omitted entirely in judging the play, one could be even more lavish in one's praise. Insufficient time has been spent on the set - - - "The flats look as if they had been walked on," said Mr. R. The costuming of both Gwendolen and Lady Bracknell in Act I was unfortunate. Gwendolen in brown which would have suited her mama, and Lady Bracknell's pale yellow and lace would have been more suitable on her daughter. Act II however had a delightful setting. No effort had been spared in harmonizing the olive greens with accents of pink and lavender in costumes and setting. Sweet little Cecily Cardew in her innocent white muslin and pink sash presented a delightful contrast to grey, guant Miss Prism, played by Kay Tremblay and then to sophisticated Gwendolen Fairfax, impeccably modish in pale turquoise. Tom Owen as Canon Chasuble was rosy round, a pleasant contrast to the scrawny governess Miss Prism. As an old connoisseur of "Earnest" I prefer Chasuble to be oilier and damper of palm, but Owen's performance was competent and good fun.

Act III inside the manor house was delightfully staged, beautifully costumed and the setting was pleasing, even to the Victorian detail of lime green table cloth and dried flowers. Lady Bracknell, played by Eleanor Stuart dominated this scene. Miss Stuart's dress was exquisite, a real heirloom and she was commanding in it. Miss Barbara Wilson was a perfect Gwendolen, and indeed the outstanding performer of the evening.

This is the difficulty with having a star system in a Repertory theatre. Does the audience come to see one or two actors who have been given a build up in the press, or does it come to see a workmanlike production, in which the cast has worked as a team, as they must certainly work in this fast-moving comedy keeping the feathered lack of rehearsal. The air between them. In general the play showed lack of rehearsal. The various small scenes between two characters, Gwendolen and Cecily, for example showed a promise of what they would have become in another two or three rehearsals. I am well aware that a great deal of hard work and artistry goes into the costuming of such a play. Let Mr. Tom Owen do a little research into the undergarments worn under the costumes of the period. This is why Le Theatre du Nouveau Monde is so satisfying to watch because the figures of the actresses are molded to suit seventeenth century style of dress. Starched and ruffled bodices, pinched-in waists, full hips - all go with gay nineties costumes. The small touches which cost very little often make all the difference in the feel of a whole production.

E/Z Players of Greater Montreal To Present "Dear Charles"

If the theatre of each generation, as has often been declared, mirrors the general attitudes and characteristics of its period, the worldwide success of the comedy, "Dear Charles," to be presented by The E/Z Players of Greater Montreal, at the Lachine High School Auditorium, on the evenings of April 28th and 29th reflects a complete about-face in standards of conduct over some sixty years.

For this comedy derives its hilarity over the situation of a busy woman, a successful novelist, whose love-life has been full enough to provide her with three children by three different fathers, though she has always been a little too occupied with her professional work to go through the bother of getting married. It has been less troublesome to her to pick up a portrait of a handsome man in an antique shop, hang it over her mantelpiece and refer her children to the painted gentleman as her departed husband - - "Dear Charles."

For people old enough or learned enough to recall the melodramas that thrilled theatre-goers at the turn of the twentieth century, this is an uproaring contrast to the earnest plays of that era in which any female who became an unwed mother was angrily turned away from her father's door--somehow it was always in the winter, with snowflakes pelting down to add to the poignancy of it all--and her picture turned implacably to the wall.

The first evidence of softening in this puritanical attitude was reflected in an English play called "Hindle Wakes" by Stanley Houghton, in 1911, which created indignant protests in many quarters because it presented a "ruined" young girl on the way to motherhood who proudly refused the "generous" offer of her seducer to marry her. What, not accept the opportunity to be made an honest woman? Many moralists were outraged. But many others championed the play as an expression of the (then) "new freedom" for woman.

When "Hindle Wakes" was revived in New York in 1927, its revolutionary idea of a woman refusing to marry the father of her child no longer was breath-takingly radical. It was merely dull and the play lasted only four performances on this belated revival.

As the 20th century spun on towards its middle years, illicit love affairs began to be more and more frequently encountered in stage plays--affairs in which the appearance of a vengeful father with a shot-gun would have been absolutely absurd. Virtue was still highly valued, to be sure, since--within the morality of our own time--the theatre is always a moral force, with villains (of one kind or another) always meeting punishment before the final curtain, and decency always getting its proper reward.

By 1954, when "Dear Charles" scored its success in New York (it had already been a success in Paris, beginning in 1948, and in London in 1952)--the change was only in defining what was decency and what was villainy. The shrewdly witty women with three illegitimate children is a figure of fun in "Dear Charles" but is an object of no scorn whatever. She is a long way from the heroines of "The Old Homestead," "Down East," "East Lynn" and others in which a slip from chastity was irreparable disaster.

Produced by Peter Ahara and directed by Laurence Evershed, this comedy should prove very entertaining, and as one critic said "Dear Charles"--and as you wipe away the tears from laughing so hard, you'll murmur "Dear me!"

ed." He said, "the Association is conducting an organized program of development in its class curriculum and parents' counselling activities with the assistance of qualified personnel and professional advisory boards.

"The Association," he continued, "has no endowment. Lack of operating funds now limits its present work and denies it the opportunity to expand its services to meet the needs of a long wait-list.

Mr. Brodeur said the problem of mental retardation is everyone's concern. "It is not restricted to the afflicted children but is a serious physical and emotional strain upon parents and family life as a whole," he said, "retarded children can be helped, and are being helped through the work of the Association."
