WE BELIEVE

Young people are our most important natural resource. They hold the keys to the future. The NCEF highly values society's youth and believes that each person deserves to be educated, respected and treated as people who have purpose and value.

THE NEED

According to the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) website, if you took the top 25% of either China's or India's total student population, they would exceed the total number of students in the U.S. This means they have nearly as many honor role students as we have kids! While the NCEF recognizes the many cultural dilemmas facing today's students, we live in a globally competitive world, and the decline in appropriate behavior and academic proficiency is placing our nation at risk of losing our economy's competitive edge.

ECONOMIC ENGINE

We believe the single most important part of consistent economic growth within a society rests in the success of educating its children both academically and ethically. Apart from the home, educators and their students are essential to the development and/or revitalization of our communities and nation.

ATTRACTING ECONOMIC GROWTH/REVITALIZATION

A school systems' effectiveness – both academically and behaviorally – is one of the first community assets appraised by both families and businesses when considering relocating. When the school system is productive and safe, economic growth occurs at increased levels.

WORKFORCE SOCIAL SKILLS (14-year initiative)

It is our goal to educate and inspire positive social skills beginning in kindergarten and continuing through 12th grade. The strategy is to develop these skills throughout our students' educational experience focusing on the benefits of personal ethics, civic duty and academic success.

OUR SYSTEM WORKS

Based on research, NCEF programs decrease disruptive behavior and increase academic proficiency levels.

OUR PROGRAMS

Award Winning Classroom Curriculum From Grades K-12.

The NCEF curriculum is an innovative school performance strategy for students in grades K-12 that integrates character education and academic achievement.

School-Wide Assemblies

Character education assemblies are designed to identify and address many of the negative issues facing today's students. These assemblies present a clear and unforgettable message that will impact students as to the importance of possessing uncompromising character.

Educator/Support Staff Development Seminars

These programs are designed to edify and encourage educators and support staff as to the important role they play in the lives of their students. They will not only gain a deeper understanding of how today's youth culture affects the classroom, but also its impact on academic proficiency.

Parent Partnership/Seminar

These programs are designed to help parents recognize and understand the multitude of outside influences potentially affecting their children and also suggest ways they can become more involved in their children's lives.

Corporate Motivational Seminars

These programs are designed to motivate employees and executives to live lives that exhibit personal and professional integrity and to value the role they play in the success of businesses and communities in which they live and work.
