Art Deco: mainly based on geometric shapes, streamlining and clean lines. Color themes of Art Deco consist of metallic color, neutral color, bright color and, black and white. In interior design, cool metallic colors including silver, gold, metallic blue, charcoal grey and platinum tended to predominate.

Modern: Modern interior design derives its influences from the modern art movement that preceded modern design. Modern interior design grew out of the decorative arts, notably Art Deco, in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. "Modern design uses geometric shapes, including rigid squares and rectangles along with smooth curves ("clean lines"). Perfect circles and ovals are also common in modern interior design. Modern interior design is also generally very simple and even minimal, with few ornamental flourishes to interrupt the even, unbroken lines and flat surfaces.
