2020 Offense/Defense Analysis

Boise St has been by far the most successful Group of 5 program in the last 20 years with 13 AP Top 25 finishes, 16 seasons with at least 10 wins and three Fiesta Bowl championships. While the program isn't as strong as it was in the QB Kellen Moore days of 2008-2011, the Broncos have been remarkably consistent under head coach Bryan Harsin (see power ratings chart below). Boise St is 64-17 SU under Harsin and last year notched 12 wins for the first time since 2014.

Those 12 wins last year were quite an achievement considering the Broncos had to start three different QB's for the first time since 1993. True frosh Hank Bachmeier started the season and was 7-1 as a starter, but took too many hits and was banged up. Jaylon Henderson was the most efficient of the three (12-to-2 ratio) but departs. RB George Holani ran for 1,014 yards as a freshman and returns as Boise has had a 1,000-yard rusher for 11 straight years. The Broncos lose their top WR John Hightower (18.5 ypc, 5th round draft pick) but bring back Khalil Shakir and CT Thomas who combined for 1,394 yards and 11 TD's. The offensive line loses four starters including 2nd round draft pick Ezra Cleveland at LT. The defensive line loses all of their starters including STUD Curtis Weaver (18.5 TFL's, 5th round draft pick). The Broncos are led by LB Riley Whimpey (83 tackles) and Ezekiel Noa is back after missing the last 10 games.

The schedule is highlighted by one of the most anticipated home games in school history as Florida St visits in Week 3. That game is bookended by road trips to Air Force and Marshall. If the Broncos manage a 4-0 start, they'll be heavy favorites in their final eight games. At the very least, this looks like another 10-win season for the 18th time in the last 22 years.

After back-to-back 5-7 seasons, even the most optimistic 2019 Air Force predictions couldn't have predicted 11 wins and arguably the best Falcons' team since 1998. The Falcons' dominated most of their opponents on the scoreboard and in the box score as they ranked number one in the country in several categories including pass yards per attempt, sacks allowed and fewest penalties. We've never had Air Force rated higher in our power ratings than at the end of last year as they enter 2020 on an 8-game winning streak (second longest to LSU).

This year's team figures to take a step back with only nine returning starters. QB Donald Hammond is back after throwing for 1,316 yards and 13 TD's while adding 553 rush yards and 13 more TD's. Leading rusher Kadin Remsburg returns after gaining 1,050 yards and 8 TD's but the Falcons lose both of their WR's Geraud Sanders and Benjamin Waters who combined for a 1,404 receiving yards and 14 TD's. Keep an WR's Brandon Lewis (4.4 speed), David Cormier (6-3 225) who both missed last year. The Falcons do bring back a couple starters on the offensive line led by LG Nolan Laufenberg who was a 1st-team All-MWC selection. The defense welcomes back leading tackler Demonte Meeks (98 tkl, 9 TFL's) but loses all-MWC 330-pound NG Mosese Fifita (6 sacks).

There is no game on Air Force's schedule that we would deem un-winnable. However, with a lightly experienced team they do have two of their toughest games early against Boise St and at Purdue. While the Falcons won't match last year's 11 wins, they should easily get to bowl eligibility. Finally, it should be noted that Air Force got in 13 practices before the COVID-19 shutdown.

2020 Offense/Defense Analysis

After not making a bowl game for 11 consecutive seasons, Brady Hoke got the Aztecs going with a 9-4 record in 2010. Hoke then left for Michigan and his D.C. Rocky Long took the program to new heights including four double-digit win seasons in the last five years. San Diego St has now made 10 straight bowl games! After Long surprisingly left to become a D.C. at New Mexico, Hoke returns as head man in 2020 (he was the DL coach here last year).

On offense, the Aztecs struggled last year ranking No. 122 in yards per play. San Diego St will have to replace QB Ryan Agnew (2,462 yards, 14-6 ratio) but Carson Baker did get a start in the upset win over BYU. He was the clear leader after the Aztecs got in six spring practices. The Aztecs lose leading rusher Juwan Washington (500 yards) but bring back their next three rushers. They also welcome back their top two receivers and three starters on the offensive line. Obviously, the defense has been the strength of the program. Last year San Diego St ranked No. 2 in the country in scoring (12.7 ppg) and rushing (75.4). They do welcome back eight starters but lose leading tackler Kyahva Tezino (99 tackles, 10.5 TFL's) and All-American Luq Barcoo who led the country with 9 interceptions. Keep an eye on All-MWC candidates DT Cameron Thomas (5.5 sacks), DE Keshawn Banks (13.5 TFL's), WAR Tariq Thompson (4 INT's) and CB Darren Hall (16 PBU's).

No game on San Diego St's schedule is un-winnable. They don't play Boise St or Air Force, arguably the two best team's in the conference. The Aztecs won't match last year's 10-win total, but they are the best team in the West division.

2020 Offense/Defense Analysis

Craig Bohl has done a great job bringing some stability to Laramie as the Cowboys have had their best 4-year stretch since the late 1990's with three 8-win seasons in the last 4 years. Last year, the Cowboys pulled off a big upset over Missouri in the opener en route to their first unbeaten season at home since 1996. However, note that Wyoming won several games last season on the scoreboard but not in the box score (see game-by-game recaps on the right).

This season Wyoming welcomes back 13 starters led by QB Sean Chambers who missed the last five games due to injury. Chambers, a dual-threat rushed for 567 yards and 10 TD's. Also note that talented 6-foot-5 221-pound Levi Williams returns after starting the bowl game. According to Bohl, both will play. Wyoming should have a powerful rushing attack thanks to the return of 1st-team All-MWC RB Xazavian Valladay (1,265 yards). He will be running behind an offensive line that returns all five starters led by Center Keegan Cryder. The defense has far more question marks as Wyoming loses their top three tacklers including 1st-team performers LB Logan Wilson (3rd round pick, 421 career tackles), safety Alijah Halliburton (130 tackles) and also LB Cassh Maluia who was drafted by the Patriots. They also have a new D.C. Keep an eye on DE Solomon Byrd who had 6.5 sacks last year. On special teams, they lose their all-time leading scorer in kicker Cooper Rothe.

The schedule is manageable but note we currently project 10 of their games to be decided by single digits. They do host the top 3 teams (Boise, San Diego St and Air Force) in the conference along with Utah. At minimum, this looks like another bowl season and if some guys step up on defense, they could challenge in the division.

Colorado State is a program that has high expectations especially after building a $220 million dollar stadium (opened in 2017). After inheriting a team that won 10 games in 2014, the Mike Bobo era in Fort Collins never had a breakthrough season (just 28-35 overall). The Rams made a surprising hire in bringing new head coach Steve Addazio who was fired at Boston College last season after going 44-44 in seven seasons.

Addazio inherits an experienced team with 15 returning starters led by QB Patrick O'Brien. O'Brien started the last nine games of last season due to an injury and threw for 2,803 yards with a 13-to-7 TD-to-INT ratio. The Rams lose leading rusher Marvin Kinsey (703 yards) but Marcus McElroy (370 yards) got seven starts last year. Colorado St is loaded at WR with the return of their top four targets led by 1st-team All-MWC Warren Jackson who had a breakthrough season with 1,119 yards and 8 TD's. TE Trey McBride (560 yards) was also named 1st-team All-MWC. It will be interesting to see how Addazio adjusts his run-heavier schemes to fit the pass-happy Rams' personnel. The defense returns eight starters but they do lose 1st-team All-MWC safety Jamal Hicks (117 tackles). Keep an eye on DE Manny Jones (5 sacks). The special teams unit returns punter Ryan Stonehouse who averaged 46.4 yards per punt.

The Rams get a break in the schedule as they face five first-year coaches. Rival Colorado will make their first visit to Fort Collins since 1996 and all three games vs Power 5 teams are winnable. Unlike most first-year coaches this season, Addazio is in pretty good shape and we think the Rams will get to a bowl.

Jeff Tedford inherited a 1-11 team in 2017 and proceeded to go 22-6 in his first two years here (2018 team won a school-record 12 games). However, last year the wheels fell off as Fresno went 1-5 in one possession games and fell to 4-8. The Bulldogs were better than their record indicated as they were +0.3 yards per play and were only out-scored by a single point on the season. Tedford surprisingly stepped down for health reasons and now Kalen DeBoer returns to Fresno after serving as the offensive coordinator at Indiana a season ago. DeBoer was the O.C. here in 2017-18. Those who follow the sport closely, feel DeBoer might be one of the most underrated coaches in all of CFB.

The cupboard is not bare as the Bulldogs return 14 starters. Fresno does lose QB Jorge Reyna (2,654 yards, 65%, 15-11 ratio). Ben Wooldridge or Washington transfer Jake Haener will compete for the job. Fresno's best player Ronnie Rivers is back after notching 1,251 combined rushing and receiving yards and 16 TD's. The Bulldogs also return leading receiver Zane Pope and four starters on their offensive line. Last year the OL dealt with major injuries as 11 different players started. The defense returns seven starters led by LB Justin Rice who was an All-MWC performer a year ago with 112 tackles and 8 TFL's. Also keep an eye on DT Kevin Atkins (5 sacks).

The schedule is not overly difficult as there are two likely wins (home games vs Idaho St and New Mexico St) and one likely loss (at Texas A&M). If the Bulldogs can find a QB and reverse their fortunes in close games, they will be back in a bowl game in 2020.

Former head coach Nick Rolovich inherited a Hawai'i program in 2016 that was just 11-39 SU in the four years prior. Quite simply, Rolovich revived the program leading the Rainbow Warriors to three bowls in his four years. Last year Hawai'i won the West division for the first time and won 10 games for the first time since 2010. However, Rolovich departed for Washington State in January. The new coach is Todd Graham who boasts a nice 95-61 record in 12 years as a FBS head coach (Rice, Tulsa, Pitt and Arizona St) but hasn't coached since 2017.

We do like the coaching staff Graham assembled as many have Hawai'i ties. However, they are at a major disadvantage this season with no spring practice due to the COVID-19 shutdown. The Rainbow Warriors lose QB Cole McDonald who threw for 4,135 yards and 33 TD's and was a 7th round draft pick. The good news is that Chevan Cordeiro has plenty of experience with five career starts, 1,291 career pass yards and 14 TD's. Hawai'i brings back leading rusher Miles Reed (908 yards and 8 TD's) but lose three of their top four receivers from one of the most productive units in CFB history (all topped 900 yards). The unit will be led by Jared Smart (1,129 yards). The offensive line maybe the strength of the team as they return four starters led by All-MWC LT Ilm Manning. The defense returns their leading tackler Khoury Bethley and All-MWC CB Cortez Davis (14 PD's) but must get better up front after allowing 5.6 yards per carry (No. 124).

The schedule does feature three games against Pac-12 teams in the first 4 weeks. Currently, we project Hawaii to be favored in only five games and we certainly don't see them matching last year's 10 wins. Bowl eligibility should be the goal.

In 2018, Utah St had arguably their best season since Merlin Olsen was playing for them in the early 1960's. However, head coach Matt Wells left for Texas Tech and the Aggies re-hired Gary Andersen who was 26-24 here from 2009-2012 including an 11-2 record in his final season. Andersen then had a couple of head-scratching tenures at Wisconsin and Oregon State. Last year, Utah St was expected to take a step back even with Jordan Love at QB (only 9 returning starters) and they fell to 7-6.

This year the Aggies have two new coordinators and lose the No. 2 passer in program history in first-round draft pick Love (8,600 career pass yards and 60 passing TD's). They also lose their top rusher Gerold Bright (921 yards and 9 TD's) and leading receiver Siasoi Mariner (987 yards and 10 TD's). On the bright side, everyone else is back on offense including all five starters on the offensive line. QB Henry Colombi (29 pass attempts last year) is the favorite to replace Love. The defense does return three of their top four tacklers led by safety Troy Lefeged (104 tackles, 6 TFL's) who moves to LB this year. Note that their top defender LB David Woodward (93 tackles in just 7 games) left for the NFL. On special teams, Utah St does lose all-MWC kicker Dominik Eberle but returns Savon Scarver who returned two kickoffs for TD's (5 in his career!).

Utah St plays one of the tougher schedules in the Mountain West. The Aggies play Washington St, Washington and BYU in non-conference action (big dogs in all 3) and also play at Boise St. Currently, we only project the Aggies to be favored in three games and we don't see them bowling this year.

Nevada head coach Jay Norvell has done a solid job in Reno getting the Wolf Pack to back-to-back bowl games the last two years. However, last year's team was extremely fortunate to get to seven wins. Nevada went 5-1 in games decided by a TD or less and they were blown out four times by 26 or more points.

Last year the Wolf Pack struggled on offense as they had a freshman QB in Carson Strong and they couldn't run the football (No. 122 in rushing). This year's offense is much stronger thanks to the return of 10 starters as they welcome back all five starters on the offensive line. Strong is now an experienced sophomore and the Wolf Pack return their top two rushers led by Toa Tava (807 yards) and their top two receivers led by Elijah Cooks (926 yards and 8 TD's). The defense also struggled last year particularly in generating some havoc plays as they were No. 122 in TFL's. This year Norvell brings in a new D.C. in Brian Ward and he inherits one of the better pass rushers in the Mountain West in DE Dom Peterson who had nine sacks and 15 TFL's last season. On special teams, kicker Brandon Talton was 21 of 25 on FG's last year including a couple of game-winners (56 yards as time expired in the upset over Purdue).

The 2020 schedule isn't overly difficult as the Wolf Pack don't play a single team in the top 60 of our power ratings. Our updated season projections have 9 of their 12 games decided by a TD or less. Will the Wolf Pack be as fortunate as they were a year ago? Probably not, but they will still flirt with bowl eligibility.

After going 3-22 SU in first two years here, San Jose St head coach Brent Brennan did a really good job last year getting the Spartans close to bowl eligibility. San Jose St finished 5-7 but three of those losses came by a combined 8 points. We upgraded San Jose 8 points in our power ratings from the start of the season (6th most in the country) but this year the Spartans could take a step back.

It starts with losing QB Josh Love who threw for 3,923 yards and was named 1st-Team All-MWC last year. His replacement will likely be Nick Nash (70.6% completions and 255 rush yards last year) or former Arkansas/Texas A&M QB Nick Starkel. No matter who starts, they will be throwing to a deep and talented receiving corps led by Tre Walker (1,161 yards, 1st-Team All-MWC), Bailey Gaither (812 yards, 6 TD's) and Isaiah Hamilton (718 yards, 16.7 ypc). The Spartans do lose leading rusher DeJon Parker but San Jose only averaged 89 rushing ypg last year (No. 125 in the country). The defense returns seven starters led by safety Jay Lenard (95 tackles, 4.5 TFL's, 2 INT's). Similar to the offense, the defense did much better in the passing game (allowed only a 16-16 TD-to-INT ratio) but allowed 232 rushing ypg (No. 125).

The schedule is tough early with road games at Central Michigan, Penn State and Boise State along with a home game vs Air Force. However, the schedule eases up later and San Jose St could find themselves once again flirting with bowl eligibility. That says a lot considering the loss of a QB like Josh Love.

Former UNLV head coach Tony Sanchez left the program in much better shape than what he inherited. The Rebels recently opened a $34.8 million football complex and they will now play their home games in the new $1.8 billion Allegiant stadium, home of the NFL Raiders. Those selling points weren't lost on the 2020 recruits as new head coach Marcus Arroyo (Oregon O.C. last 3 years) signed one of the best classes in UNLV history in February.

Arroyo inherits a lot of experience and talent especially at the offensive skill positions. QB Kenyon Oblad (18-9 ratio) is back after taking over the starting job mid-way through last year. He proved to be a much better passer than Armani Rogers (2017-18 starter) who also returns. Keep an eye on TCU transfer QB Justin Rogers, a former 4-star recruit who could be eligible this season. The Rebels have one the nation's most underrated RB's in Charles Williams (1,257 rush yards and 11 TD's). Former USC WR Randal Grimes (7 TD's) also returns along with their other top 3 receivers. Also note 2018 leader Brandon Presley is back after missing last year. The defense, which was a constant area of concern under Sanchez loses most of their best players including CB Jericho Flowers (4 INT's, 2nd-team All-MWC). Keep an eye on TCU transfer Adam Plant at DE.

The schedule is another area of concern for the Rebels in 2020. While their home schedule is attractive to fans that includes visits from Pac-12 teams California and Arizona St, we currently project the Rebels to be underdogs in all 12 games in 2020. If Arroyo wins three games, he would have done a good job.

2020 Offense/Defense Analysis

At the end of September 2017, things were looking good for the New Mexico program. The Lobos were off-back-to-back bowl appearances and it looked like they were heading to another one. However, the roof caved in as they finished the Bob Davie era on a 5-26 SU/8-23 ATS run (were 19-12 SU the 31 games prior). Last year the program had to deal with Davie being hospitalized and also the tragic passing of DL Nahje Flowers.

That's the bad news. The good news is that we absolutely love their new head coaching hire. Danny Gonzales is an Albuquerque native that played and coached at New Mexico and did a fine job as the defensive coordinator at San Diego St and Arizona St in recent years. He also brings in former New Mexico/San Diego St head coach Rocky Long (146-107 career record) as his D.C. The offense brings back a majority of their weapons including QB Tevaka Tuoti. They do have to replace leading rusher Ahmari Davis (5.9 ypc and 7 TD's). Keep an eye on WR Jordan Kress who averaged 18.9 yards per catch last season and also incoming frosh RB Nathaniel Jones who is one of the highest-rated recruits in school history. The defense does lose a majority of their top players after allowing a conference-worst 37.2 ppg last year. However, that is the side of the ball that Gonzales/Long have cut their teeth. On special teams, All-MWC punter Tyson Dyer is back after averaging 46.1 yards per punt.

New Mexico does play 13 games this season. They should top last year's two wins, but if you're looking for more, we believe that is too tall of a task for Gonzales and Co. in Year one.
