Instituted Acolytes

The office of the instituted acolyte is to serve at the altar and to assist the priest and deacon. In particular, it is his responsibility to prepare the altar and the sacred vessels. In the ministry of the altar, the acolyte has his own functions, which he must personally perform.

A layman who is to be installed in the ministry of acolyte on a stable basis must have completed his twenty-first year of age. The candidate must also possess the skills necessary for an effective service at the altar, be a fully initiated member of the Catholic Church, be free of any canonical penalty, and live a life which befits the ministry to be undertaken.

In the dioceses of the United States of America, acolytes may wear the alb and cincture or other suitable vesture or other appropriate and dignified clothing.

The instituted acolyte may be called upon to instruct others who assist and serve in liturgical celebrations. He thus becomes the first of the non-ordained ministers of the altar.

If no deacon is present, after the Prayer of the Faithful is concluded and while the priest remains at the chair, the instituted acolyte places the corporal, the purificator, the chalice, the pall, and the Missal on the altar. Then, if necessary, the acolyte assists the priest in receiving the gifts of the people and, if appropriate, brings the bread and wine to the altar and hands them to the priest. If incense is used, the acolyte presents the thurible to the priest and assists him while he incenses the gifts, the cross, and the altar. Then the acolyte incenses the priest and the people.

A duly instituted acolyte, as an extraordinary minister of Holy Communion, may, if necessary, assist the priest in giving Holy Communion to the people.

If Holy Communion is given under both species, when no deacon is present, the instituted acolyte administers the chalice to the communicants or holds the chalice if Communion is given by intinction.

Likewise, when the distribution of Holy Communion is completed, the acolyte helps the priest or deacon to purify and arrange the sacred vessels. When no deacon is present, a duly instituted acolyte carries the sacred vessels to the credence table and there purifies, wipes, and arranges them in the usual way.
