

Sunday Meditation

When my wife Jeanette told a health practitioner that I had had a hemorrhagic stroke, which consisted of four destructive brain bleeds, he asked her if I was still alive. And well he might have wondered; for it was only by the sheer mercy of God that I did survive such a grievous blow. The fact that I very well might not have survived means that I'm living on borrowed time. I consider that what remains of my life is a gracious gift and not my own to do with as I please. What a liberating thought it is, a liberating and exhilarating thought to realize that my life has been twice purchased by God; it's doubly His, His to command and His to take care of. What an ingrate I would be to make any selfish claims on it. I'm excited to see what He'll make of His possession.

All for Jesus, Richard
