

Vivian Kaepfel

Vivian brings a love for young people, a commitment to service, and a passion for teaching to the Friday School community. Here at Friday School, Vivian has offered classes in American and World History, beginning Latin, elementary Math, and most recently, in Economics and in American and Texas Government.

Vivian and her husband Scott are blessed to be able to homeschool their five children. While the two oldest children have been graduated, the three youngest children continue to attend classes at Friday School. Including the years she has invested in homeschooling her own children, Vivian comes to Friday School with close to twenty years of teaching experience. She has been engaged in various aspects of children's ministry and education, including children and youth choirs, vacation Bible schools, gospel-centered sports programs, and discipleship groups.

Vivian took a bachelor's degree in history and she received her teacher certification in history, before going on to earn a law degree. She practiced law briefly before her children's needs demanded her full-time attention at home. The decision to homeschool was not only a natural extension of the decision to be at home, but also a confirmation of Vivian's vocation for teaching and one of the best decisions for their family.

Scott and Vivian live and homeschool their children here in the hill country region of Texas and now consider this San Antonio area home. Friday School has been a place to serve, teach, learn, and love in Christ's name for the entire Kaepfel family.
