Using the Behavioral Objective Sequence to Develop Effective Assessment-Based Interventions For Children And Youth With Emotional and Behavioral Disorders

Workshop for
CAPSEF Conference
March 21, 2007

Workshop Description

Students with emotional and behavioral disorders present particularly complex management and discipline and intervention issues. Unfortunately, the current focus is often on how to suppress or manage the many diverse problems these youth present, while little attention is given to contributing factors, or to the developmentally insensitive manner in which they are treated in schools and elsewhere. This workshop will focus on using the Behavioral Objective Sequence for integrating assessment into a model for determining students' level of social development, and for preparing intervention plans that are effective and developmentally appropriate.

Agenda:

- Characteristics of Students with Problem Behaviors: Contributing Factors and Implications for Assessment and Intervention
- Assessing Developmental Level of Social Performance: Identifying Developmentally Appropriate Objectives
- The Curriculum for Teaching Prosocial Competencies
- Preparing Assessment-based and Developmentally Appropriate Intervention Plans
- Preparing Coordinated School-Community Agency Intervention Plans

Skill Areas: Participants will learn...

- to integrate various assessment data into a developmental assessment
- how to select developmentally appropriate behavioral goals and objectives
- how to link goals and objectives to developmentally appropriate intervention plans
- how to integrate learning-based curriculums for social development into intervention plans
- how to use practical tools for monitoring progress and making adjustments in intervention plans
- how to coordinate school and community agency intervention resources with students' objectives

Intended Audience: special educators, school psychologists, social workers, administrators,

Behavioral Objective Sequence

Sheldon Braaten, Ph.D.

Abstract

Accurate assessment of behavioral skills is essential in developing effective intervention programs for students with emotional and behavioral disorders (EBD). Assessment is the foundation for determining individually relevant intervention goals, objectives and plans, as well as for monitoring intervention outcomes. Several criteria for effective assessment have been identified in the literature. Among them are use of multiple sources (i.e., teachers and other professionals, parents, and students themselves) as well as use of culturally appropriate types of measurement instruments (intellectual, achievement and behavioral) and procedures (observations and interviews). Behavioral assessment traditionally focuses on identifying problem behaviors; however, it is important to determine students' existing strengths upon which new prosocial skills can be built. Few instruments focus upon student strengths.

Recently there has been an increasing emphasis on strength-based or competency-based assessment (Epstein, 1999). Some benefits of competency-based assessments are that they (a) yield information that can actually be used for individualized education program (IEP) planning; (b) provide a positive view of the student by specifying student strengths, and (c) delineate prosocial behaviors not yet mastered that require instruction and differential reinforcement. Epstein's Behavioral and Emotional Rating Scale (BERS), Gresham and Elliott's Social Skills Rating System (SSRS), and the Walker-McConnell Scale are examples of other strength-based rating scales. DuPaul and Eckerts' (1994) review of seven studies of social skills training programs found that efficacious curricula emphasize student competencies as opposed to performance deficits.

Behavioral assessment instruments should present prosocial skills within an appropriate developmental sequence. Youth will have behavioral difficulties and skills that vary according to their progression through the developmental levels (Vernon, 1993). A delicate task of assessment is to distinguish between problems of children and youth that are considered "normal" at various developmental levels and problems outside of the "normal" range, and to determine intervention goals that are developmentally relevant rather than simply satisfying adults' expectations.

One instrument that is both strength-based and developmentally sequenced is the Behavioral Objective Sequence (Braaten, 1998). While it was developed and refined over a 20 year period and has been used for several years, little research has been conducted to investigate the validity of BOS ratings for students with EBD (Bloomberg & Braaten, 1989). The Behavioral Objective Sequence (BOS) consists of 233 developmentally sequenced and measurable social competencies that may be assessed through structured observation and/or by ratings of multiple sources. The BOS is a skill or strength-based tool rather than a problem or deficit-based instrument. Further, it provides goals and objectives for the development and implementation of intervention curriculum derived directly from a current performance assessment

Rating Scale Guide

This Rating Scale Guide and the following Current Performance Form can be used to establish the student's current level of performance on the objectives. The Behavioral Objective Sequence items should be read carefully and literally. The examples are provided to add clarity to the intent of the objectives and to minimize the need for interpretation. Before conducting a rating, it is best to read through the entire instrument to become familiar with the scope and sequence of the objectives (skills) contained within the 233 items. Ratings should be based on direct observations over a period of 2 or more weeks. Ratings may be completed independently by individuals knowledgeable about the student, or ratings may represent the consensus of a team of observers. The scale IS a measure of how FREQUENTLY the student performs the skills. It IS NOT a measure of whether or not the student knows how to perform the skills.

Given your knowledge of the student and best judgment, rate each item on the Current Performance Form as follows:

The student demonstrates this objective...

- 0 = No basis for a judgment, don't know, or does not apply
- 1 = Never or rarely true (less than 30% of the time or opportunities)
- 2 = Sometimes true (between 30% and 60% of the time or opportunities)
- 3 = Often true (between 60% and 90% of the time or opportunities)
- 4 = Always or almost always true (90% or greater of the time or opportunities) This objective is mastered.

Use the rating of "0" as little as possible and only when you have no basis for a judgment or when it clearly does not apply in your setting.

A comparison of independently completed ratings will provide an opportunity to examine the possible situational effects of different settings on the student's behavior as well as variances in observers' perceptions that may offer helpful information for decisions about placement and intervention plans.
