

Age of Jackson: Crash Course US History #14 Name: _____

1. But anyway, the whole idea of owning _____ as a prerequisite for voting is sort of Jeffersonian.
2. Right, so you recall that America's mostly fake victory in the War of 1812 and the subsequent collapse of the Federalist party ushered in the "Era of _____," which was another way of saying that there was basic agreement on most domestic policies.
3. The American System was a program of economic nationalism, built on 1) federally financed internal improvements - like _____ and canals, what we would now call infrastructure. 2) _____, to protect new factories and industries, and 3) A national bank that would replace the First _____ of the United States, whose charter had expired in 1811.
4. Right, so the last Era of Good Feelings president was John Quincy _____, who was quite the diplomat and expansionist. He actually wrote the Monroe Doctrine, for instance.
5. But, in the short run, Missouri was allowed to enter the Union as a _____ state while Maine was carved out of Massachusetts to keep the balance of things.
6. But the _____ Compromise also said that no state admitted above the 36°30' line of latitude would be allowed to have slaves, except of course for Missouri itself, which, as you can see, is well above the line.
7. You see, Van Buren was only the second American president with a well-used nickname, and the first was his immediate predecessor, Andrew Jackson, or "Old _____."
8. The election of _____ was very close and it went to the House, where John Quincy Adams was eventually declared the winner, and Jackson denounced this as a corrupt bargain.
9. The American Whigs took their name from the English Whigs, who were opposed to absolute _____.
10. Jackson supported this, in spite of the fact that it benefited manufacturers. The tariff _____ prices on imported manufactured goods made of wool and iron, which enraged South Carolina, because they'd put all their money into slavery, and none into industry.
11. Mystery Document Author? _____
12. These so-called " _____ " were another version of rewarding political supporters that Jackson liked to call "rotation in office." Opponents called this tactic of awarding government offices to political favorites "the _____ system."
13. So, all of this out-of-control inflation, coupled with rampant land speculation, eventually led to an economic collapse, the _____ of 1837.
14. In the end, Andrew Jackson probably was the _____ American president to end up on currency, particularly given his disastrous fiscal policies, but the age of Jackson is still important.