

FINANCIAL PLANNING AVAILABLE

The “Planning Season” precedes the “Planting Season”

Operating a dairy farm successfully uses many different skills. Beyond the skills required for day-to-day livestock and crop management, business and financial knowledge are also important. Did you know Agricultural Veterinary Associates offers services to help you make these critical decisions? Several team members offer assistance to help you make smart decisions, as well as participate on profit teams. In addition, Dr. Brian Reed has advanced business and financial training and experience to help you. Dr. Reed has worked with well over 100 dairy businesses throughout the years with situations such as expansion planning, generational transition planning, facility modernizations and exit strategies. He can also help you analyze, understand and trouble-shoot your business to make it more successful. To help keep your planning costs down, some of these projects can be covered with grant funding. If you have questions related to these areas, feel free to discuss them with any of our doctors and they can help connect you with the right person to serve your needs.
