Betting CFB in Off-season = Best Value!!!

99-percent of the time, you won't hear us say that a particular line is off more than a TD. The reality is the books and the markets are just too good to be off a number that much in today's day and age. The exception to the rule comes in the "very soft" off-season markets where for the most part, it is a bookmaker/oddsmaker's line vs the handicappers/professional bettors' own line.

We often find great value in the spring and early summer in the college football betting markets because CFB is our specialty and we follow it on a year-round basis. While most oddsmakers/bookmakers are more focused on basketball and baseball this time of year (and rightly so), we're closely following college football spring practices, injury reports, transfers and suspensions while constantly tweaking our power ratings for the upcoming season.

One of the major reasons why we made the move to Vegas three years ago was to take advantage of these "soft" markets and while there are no "sure things" in this industry, we can usually predict where the early money and where the lines are going to move this time of year. Often times, we can get way ahead of some major line moves (see our Oklahoma -17 over Houston bet below, that is now -26) which can leave the door open to some "middle" opportunities.

For those of you that are not aware of how these early Week 1, Game of Year and season win total releases work, the bookmakers often limit the size of the bets to $500 or $1,000. They know full well that many of the bettors who stand in line to bet the openers are of the "sharp" variety.

Remember, if you're not in line and betting these games and season win totals within minutes of the release, you're not going to come close to getting the opening lines and numbers. Only a handful of guys in the world are getting these numbers (we're fortunate to be one of them). It's a very soft market but becomes much sharper within minutes. One single limit bet can change a line a couple of points! And keep in mind, there's some significant money being dealt early. Many times $100,000 can be bet within the first hour or so!

Brad Powers' Early Week 1 Best Bets

2-star (154) RUTGERS -14 over Massachusetts. 7:15pm ET on August 30th.

After 11 straight losses to close the 2018 season, Rutgers needs a "feel-good" win to start off 2019. The Scarlet Knights hammered Texas St 35-7 as a 16.5-point favorite in last year's opener and I expect more of the same here. Also note in their only other big favorite role in the last two years, Rutgers beat Morgan St 65-0 (-41) so head coach Chris Ash is certainly not afraid to run it up. This should be a much improved Rutgers offense with 8 starters back. On the other side, UMass is the least experienced team in the entire country (No. 130 in Phil Steele's experience chart) with only 8 returning starters. It's clearly a rebuilding year under new head coach Walt Bell. The Minutemen lose their top 2 passers, their top 3 rushers and an All-American at WR in Andy Isabella who led the country with 1,698 receiving yards last year (Drafted in 2nd round). On defense they lose their top player in Bryton Barr who had 147 tackles a year ago. I have this line power-rated at Rutgers -17.

2-star (214) USC -10.5 over Fresno St. 10:30pm ET on August 31st.

USC needs a "feel-good" win here after a disappointing 2018 season. Head coach Clay Helton is clearly on the hot seat but he did make a great hire in bringing in O.C. Graham Harrell from North Texas whose offenses averaged 35 ppg the last two years. Harrell inherits a lot of talent as QB JT Daniels is back after starting as a true freshman last year along with one of the best sets of WR's in the country (top 3 return). Meanwhile, Fresno St is being over-priced because the Bulldogs are coming off their best season in school history (12 wins). I look for the Bulldogs to take a couple steps back this season as they are No. 129 in the country in returning experience (both in Bill Connelly's returning production and Phil Steele's experience chart) with only 9 starters back. Fresno will be starting a brand new QB at night in a freshly renovated L.A. Coliseum. I have this line power-rated at USC -13.
