Re: Safety in a Second

About 16 Months ago – we began looking for an edge protection system that we could purchase for use in our Edmonton District that would be a safer alternative to the traditional wooden handrail that we had been using. After looking at a few of the vendors on the market and bringing them in for interviews – we decided to go ahead with the Safety in a Second Handrail as our standard edge protection system in the district.

In our opinion, this system was superior to the others that we had considered for a number of reasons including but not limited to:

- the safest - with a built in tie-off point on every post
- the most universal in application – whether anchoring to concrete, Q-Deck or cast in place
- the easiest to install
- would last the longest
- was aesthetically pleasing
- overall the most cost effective

We are very happy with the system we purchased and are even happier with the service that we have received. They took a look at our specific needs and came up with a plan – tweaking the system to make it work the best for us. As problems arose, which is inevitable on big projects, Kevin and Rob addressed every situation quickly and without complaint.

I would recommend this product and more importantly this company to anybody looking into edge protection. I know that we definitely made the right choice and I look forward to working with them on future projects. Please feel free to call me directly if you wish to discuss our experience with Safety in a Second in more detail.

Yours truly,
