

Matthew Hayward, Ph.D.

I'm a conservation ecologist with experience in the field with the impacts of introduced red foxes and feral cats on threatened marsupials in Australia. I have also worked on dietary ecology extensively, including on the prey preferences of black-backed and Eurasian golden jackals, and also describing the diets of pine marten reintroduced to Galloway Forest in Scotland. I am working with colleagues on the Rewilding Gwynedd restoration program to return pine marten to the northern Snowdonia region of Wales (UK). You can find out more about me at <https://www.newcastle.edu.au/profile/matthew-hayward>

Associate Professor of Conservation
School of Environmental and Life Sciences
University of Newcastle
Australia
Matthew.Hayward.edu.au