Sergio Viscoli, a New Mexico native, was born in Santa Fe and currently resides in Albuquerque. Although a lifelong photographer, Sergio began pastel painting in 1991 while living in Clovis, NM. There he studied under Bruce DeFoor, an avid plein air painter, and chair of the Art Department at the Clovis Community College. Upon moving to Albuquerque, Sergio studied art and print making at the University of New Mexico. Sergio has also taken workshops with many artists, including Albert Handell, Doug Dawson, Deborah Secor, Desmond O'Hagan and Richard McKinley.
