

TOURISM WORKS FOR ALASKA

Tourism is a renewable natural resource that can only be expanded through destination marketing. Each year:

- Alaska's more than 2.25 million visitors spend more than $2 billion in our state, supporting communities and tourism businesses.
- Visitor fees provide more than $88 million for city and borough budgets and $126 million to the state's general fund.
- Alaska's tourism industry generates more than $4.5 billion in economic activity.

Alaska's Vehicle Rental Tax: A sustainable investment in destination marketing

Approximately 70% of Alaska's Vehicle Rental Tax* (VRT) funds are generated by Alaska's out-of-state guests. While revenues vary from year to year, a percentage-based annual distribution of VRT funds in support of statewide tourism marketing is a win-win for the State and for Alaska's tourism industry.

*Per statutory language, the Alaska Legislature may appropriate the balance in the vehicle rental tax account for tourism development and marketing (AS 43.52.010).

Alaska's Tourism Industry = A Renewable Natural Resource

Case Study: Northern Alaska Tour Company, Coldfoot

Founded in 1986 to provide unparalleled travel and touring experiences in Alaska's Arctic, Northern Alaska Tour Company now employs year-round Alaska guides, maintenance staff, and support staff at camps in Coldfoot, Yukon River Crossing, and Deadhorse.

I'm excited by the present reality and the future potential of Alaska's travel industry. If done right, tourism can provide Alaska with a viable and sustainable growth industry that enhances those aspects of our quality of life that we Alaskans cherish most.

A Sustainable Future

In 2019, the VRT raised more than $11.4 million, with approximately 70% generated by out-of-state visitors. Reinvesting in destination marketing grows Alaska's brand through TV and print advertising, social media, public and media relations, travel trade marketing, and international promotions.

An annual reinvestment of VRT funds in destination marketing creates a path forward.

Leveraged by industry contributions and investments, Alaska's statewide destination marketing program sustains a healthy tourism industry that returns economic benefits to our families, our communities, and our state's economy. Thank you for supporting tourism in Alaska.
