Wendy Collins

(The induction takes place while the club is celebrating its 30th Anniversary. The awards banquet, hall of fame affair and anniversary was held at the Floyd Veteran Memorial Building in Atlanta, Georgia, on September 27, 2014.

Ms. Collins, involved with the club since 1996, has worn numerous proverbial hats to warrant this most deserved recognition, according to Ron Williams, the founder, president and head coach of the organization, who quite often refers to her as "my right-hand person."

Ms. Collins had two children, Darryl and Teresa, participate in the program from 1996 through 2008, to experience first-hand the benefits of being members of the celebrated organization, which promotes much more than athleticism, mainly character development and academic excellence.

From 1996-2006, Ms. Collins was a Board Member and served as Vice President of the Executive Committee. She also took the time to chaperone events.

And from 2007-2010, she continued her leadership role as a Board Member, serving as Executive Vice President and continuing to volunteer time as a chaperone.

Since that time, until the present, Ms. Collins has been the Board Vice Chair. "Your commitment to this program, to the youth that have come through this organization, and your support of my efforts to ensure that this program continues to operate on a first-class basis, certainly has been laudable and truly commendable."

To get an even better insight into Mr. Williams' regard for his "right-hand person," he said this of Ms. Collins: "There is not much that I don't run by her before I do something. That is how much I value and appreciate her advice)."

Dwight Phillips

(The induction takes place while the club is celebrating its 30th Anniversary. The awards banquet, hall of fame affair and anniversary was held at the Floyd Veteran Memorial Building in Atlanta, Georgia, on September 27, 2014.

Phillips, a Tucker High School product, was only involved in the program in 1994, but he made the most of that one year and used that one season to springboard into National and World wide prominence. In his lone season with the club, Phillips became the USATF Region III champion in the long jump, setting the record in the process. He also was a USATF Region III silver medalist in the 400m run. And at the USATF Youth National Championships he was a silver medalist in both the 200m and long jump.

From there, Phillips matriculated to Arizona State University, where he went on to attain national prominence and became the most celebrated Olympic athlete the program has produced. Though this list of accomplishments does not record all of Phillips' achievements, it demonstrates the scope of his outstanding career in track and field and why honoring him to the organization's Hall of Fame was richly deserved and obligatory).

In 1984, Williams founded the D.C. Express Track Club with the purpose of creating a developmental/competitive program that focused on combining the physical attributes of student-athletes with that of academic excellence.

And to see that his dream would be operated as he intended it, Williams became the president and head coach of the organization, which prides itself on developing quality performers, both as athletes and citizens, not just running through large numbers of participants, in keeping with his concept of doing everything -- literally and figuratively -- first class.

Over the past 30 years Williams, who played baseball and ran track at Murphy High School in Atlanta, got involved in track and field because his daughter took to it, has gone on to earn international acclaim for his knowledge of the sport, his ability to coach and motivate young track and field athletes, and for his commitment and dedication to spreading the proverbial gospel of its benefits).
