Paul Emory grew up in a small mining/farming town west of Zanesville, White Cottage. He transferred to Ringling College of Art and Design in Florida. Upon receiving a BFA in 1981 he moved to NYC where he was accepted to get his masters at Pratt Institute. After 7 months in Brooklyn and out money he enlisted in the army. For the next two years while based in Manheim, Germany he visited museums all over Europe whenever he got time off. After returning to the USA he completed his masters at OU in Athens in 1989. Returning to Zanesville he renovated one of his first buildings which became his studio on the corner of 5th and Main, which is now demolished. In the last years, his efforts have been in preserving the 600 block which is getting to be known as "the Old Quarter."

ROCK PAINTINGS a new series by Sharon Dean

"Do You See What I See?" asks artist Sharon Dean, ZAAP's featured artist for November as she explores the meanings and ideas of Rock Paintings, but with a twist.

One of the earliest forms of art was the stylized and symbolic paintings found in caves and on rock formations across the globe. The archeology of art and the mysteries of the ancients have long been a fascination of Dean's. Inspired by carefully chosen rocks and crystals, Dean created a new collection of paintings based on what she "sees" in the gems and plays with the idea of Rock Painting. The stones will be displayed alongside the paintings and viewers are invited to compare their vision to that of the artist. It's all about perspective and imagination!

Opening reception will be held during First Friday Art Walk, November 1st, 5-8:30pm.

All "Rock Paintings" will be on display and available for purchase during ZAAP's regular gallery hours the month of November.
