Brief Description

This course is an investigation into life and writing of Maya Angelou. The topic will be studied in several areas: Angelou’s autobiographical writing, Angelou’s poetry, and Black women’s poetry in general. The course is an investigation into the links between Black women’s intellectual history in the form of autobiography and poetry as well as major themes in traditions of self-writing. The focus of investigation will include a micro, meso, macro and global viewpoints. Students will become familiar with Angelou’s legacy through her writing.

Maya Angelou April 4, 1928 – May 28, 2014

Developing a love of truth, standing for civil rights, enjoying life itself and recording the experience, our matriarch became an inspiration. Maya Angelou’s words, spoken, on the printed page or reflected here, continue to promote self-examination, equality and friendship. Believing that “we are more alike than unalike”, Maya Angelou would be the first to say that as a child of God it was her duty to recognize that everyone else was also a child of God, “Everybody born comes from the Creator trailing wisps of glory.”

Join us as we celebrate a life well lived! Take time to read, listen, view and be inspired. Trail your wisps of glory and once you’ve clicked every page, make sure you return as we continue to expand the experience. Together, let’s celebrate life and joy!

Course Objectives:

1. To explore the life and writing of Maya Angelou, through studying Black women’s intellectual history, autobiography and poetry through an interdisciplinary analysis.
2. To identify ways in which African Americans have engaged in creative non-fiction as a means of health, freedom, and empowerment in four areas: self, communication, tasks, and innovation.
3. To share reflections on the research process; thus, to provide models of the ongoing nature of research.
4. To provide students an opportunity for “regeneration” (retrospection, introspection, and prospection): to reflect on research interests through various source types, regarding formulation of a long-term research and professional agenda.
5. To strengthen student commitment to the CAU core values: I2 CAU

If you do not read this syllabus in detail, your odds of earning an A are diminished greatly.

Course Details

The goal of this course is to investigate interdisciplinary ways to read and comprehend African American women’s life in general through reading about Maya Angelou’s life writing. The primary goal is for students to produce a research paper relevant to their own intellectual and professional development, using the wealth of information by and about Angelou. The content of the course will explore critical approaches to interdisciplinary analysis, particularly regarding autobiography and poetry, while moving each student’s unique research project forward.

Objectives of the course include creating a forum for active discussion of African American historical identities and social locations. Emphasis will be placed on students enhancing their ability to: discuss autobiography and poetry as both literary and historical texts; locate the person in political, social cultural and national contexts; recognize the unprecedented legacy of interdisciplinary research grounded at Clark Atlanta University; define a clear research subject and articulate a clear thesis; formulate a research paper to enhance understanding of issues in their chosen field; acknowledge limitations and implications of conclusions about interpreting narrative texts; locate potential audiences for a research paper, and situate a final class research paper within a creative long-term research and professional agenda.

The focus on research in this course will allow students to enhance findings for a thesis or dissertation through a deeper understanding of the ways in which Black women define their lives and articulate frameworks by which to define their lives. Readings will emphasize foundations of African American intellectual history, underscore the need for critical research on new topics, and enhance students’ skills in information literacy. Students will produce a final paper of scholarly writing that features three components: 1) explication of Africana womanism; 2) Black women’s autobiography; and 3) a research topic relevant to individual student intellectual and professional development. The final student paper should be of publishable quality.

The three main themes investigated—truth, civil rights, and joy—are derived from the Johnson family message on the legacy of Dr. Angelou, after her passing in May 2014.

Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the course, students should be able to:

1. Enhance skill set of critical information literacy (locate, evaluate, use, and create information), both in and beyond the university
2. Prepare an abstract to clearly reflect four characteristics of research
3. Constructively develop and edit one’s own academic work. Analyze, synthesize, and apply work by Black women scholars to advance the quality and depth of one’s graduate research project
4. Create a final research paper ready for professional peer review and consideration in three relevant journals. Give an oral presentation of 15 minutes on the research topic informed by course reading and original research.
5. Build on an extensive legacy of Africana Womanist research at Clark Atlanta University.

Teaching/Learning Methods:

1. Weekly lecture, videos, guest speakers, library research, class discussion and consultation in five specific areas:
   a. Research: Information Literacy
   b. African American Studies
   c. Womanist Peace
   d. Black Women’s Mental Health (CHESS: consciousness-raising, healing, empowerment, stress-reduction, and satisfaction)
2. Creation of an annotated bibliography on the topic of women and the student’s academic interest. Turning the annotated bibliography into an outline for development of original paper.
3. Consultation of at least 10 books, 10 journal articles, and 5 dissertations by or about 5 Black women writers.

Black women’s ideas
Can help solve global problems
At least, they solved mine

Evans presents definitions of peace found in autobiographies by six global women. The author draws parallels in Black women’s experiences and perspectives in the African Diaspora (U.S., Cuba, Australia, and Liberia), but also uses women’s voices to highlight diversity in their perspectives. Proposing a definition for womanist peace, Evans highlights life stories by Vivian Stringer (American basketball coach), Sylvia Harris, (American horse jockey), Jan Willis (American Buddhist religion professor), Maria Bueno (Cuban community mother), Fiona Doyle (Australian Aboriginal land rights activist), and Ellen Johnson-Sirleaf (Liberian president) and several others (Evans, p. 99).

This article enhances focus on three specific areas: Africana women’s studies, intellectual history, and mental health. Clearly in dialogue with scholars like Angela Davis and Alice Walker, Evans also grounds her writing in the practical application of ideas, specifically working with psychologists invested in enhancing Black women’s mental health (Evans, p. 118). This article is useful in expanding discussions of mental health practitioners and those interested in health, specifically, Black Women’s Health Imperative (BWHI). Applications are evident in several areas ranging from youth mentoring, like Boys and Girls Club of Atlanta or for women’s health initiatives. This researched formed the foundation of my comments during the August 2014 “Black Women’s Health” panel at the National Black Book Club in Atlanta, where this article exemplified resources that women can access to learn from other women’s life stories. The concept of “literary mentoring,” which Evans puts forth, is beneficial, especially given the 500 Africana memoirs she compiles on the Sesheta online database (Evans, p. 98). This database forms the foundation from which Evans gleaned over 100 narratives to search for Black women’s ideas on peace in general and inner peace in particular. This will be a valuable resource for enhancing traditional talk therapy and, like poetry therapy, can form a basis for healing through writing.

ASSIGNMENT DETAILS:

Points Assignment

50 pts. Research interest paper due (5 pages)

- Identify 3 key terms that encapsulate the intersection of 1) your research interest, 2) the course topic, and 3) your professional goals. Write this as a formal paper with 5 pages of text and include a bibliography after the paper. The paper should include a brief discussion of your personal journey, reasons for enrolling in this class and how you anticipate connecting the course topic to a final research paper to your thesis or dissertation project.

90 pts. RL BAAD NEWS bibliographic annotations (10pts @ 9 citations)

- Annotated bibliographies of independent research for each source type. Include all four aspects of DATA (see Evans sample). Each summary should be 200-300 words. Half of citations will be due for midterms; the second half will be due on the last day of class.

220 pts. Course reading bibliographic annotations (10pts @ 22 citations)

- Annotated bibliographies of course reading. Start from three key words about your reading and your research interest; include all four aspects of DATA (see Evans sample). Each summary should be 200-300 words. Half of citations will be due for midterms; the second half will be due on the last day of class.

150 pts. Final paper proposal, first, and second (3 pgs, 10 pgs, 15 pages)

- For paper proposal, write 3 pages of double spaced text (50 points). First draft, 10 pages of text minimum (50 points). Second draft, 15 pages of text minimum (50 points).

300 pts. Research paper and presentation (20 pg final paper & bibliography)

- Final Paper/Project: 5000 words (about 20 pages of text), not including bibliography. Full-length and complete, polished to ready for submission to external reader. Due by Wednesday, December 8th, 5pm. Late papers will incur a 20 point penalty. Papers will not be accepted after 12:00noon on the last day of finals, Friday December 12, 2014. No “I” grades will be given as an extension of final paper deadline.
  - “Career Path Essay” (Lewis article) (10 points)
  - Evans, Inner Lions: Definitions of Peace (5 points)
  - “Scholar-Activist and Challenge of Social Change” (Taylor article) (5 points)
  - Class texts: outline at least 4 foundational Angelou ideas, including 1 on Intellectual History: (80 points)
  - Poems: minimum three poems (30 points)
  - Literature Review: reference and cite at least 2 of each type of source, including one newspaper article prior to 1950: RL BAAD NEWS (90 points)
  - Writing mechanics, paper structure, technical aspects (40 points)
  - Content: Identify a main theme relevant to thesis or dissertation; original scholarly contribution (40 points)

50 pts. Ten minute presentation

- Research Presentation: Ten minute professional-quality presentation of research topic (no visual aids).

140 pts. Weekly keywords, discussion and attendance

- Students are expected to take notes on the assigned readings and review notes before coming to class. Be in class on time and to stay until class is finished. This is a discussion-centered course, attendance and participation are important parts of your grade. Absences count and excessive tardiness (3) will be counted towards absences.
- Bring 3 keywords to class that define major concepts that will guide discussion. At least one keyword should relate to the days’ reading, and at least one should relate to your research interest.
- Be on time to sign immediately. No retroactive sign in will be allowed. On the 5th absence (excused or not), 50 points will be deducted from these points in addition to absences.)
IMPORTANT INFORMATION:

- Please come and see me during office hours about ANY questions, comments, special needs or concerns regarding the course. If my office hours conflict with your schedule, we can set up an appointment. Email or call at any time; allow 24-48 hours for my response. For special needs requests, I will be more than happy to work with any campus resource and accommodate needs for any student who brings a campus-generated written request within the first two weeks of class. Accommodation of special needs requests will be considered only BEFORE assignments are due.

- Do ALL work in a professional manner. All written assignments are to be typed, double-spaced using Times Roman 12 font in MS Word with the standard 250 WORDS PER PAGE. [Large fonts such as Arial, Century Schoolbook, Courier New, boldfaced fonts, or Bookman Old Style ARE NOT ACCEPTABLE.] Borders should be the standard (one-inch) and only MLA, APA, Chicago or Turabian styles should be used for all written work (use the style of your academic discipline). Do not take up extra space on papers by using name, date, course, assignment title as ways to extend the start line of the paper. Do not include a cover sheet. Put all information in the top right hand corner, single spaced. Assignment title or paper title may be centered. The professor and your peers will offer feedback on the final paper; take the comments graciously...they are meant to improve your work. Take full advantage of the library and campus writing center resources...your grade (and your professional future) depends on it.

- All students are expected to know and adhere to the University’s guidelines regarding the CAU Sexual Harassment Policy. Details can be found online at http://www.cau.edu/HR_Sexual_Harrass_Pol.aspx. Though the policy specifies conditions for employment, policies also apply to the CAU classroom. No harassment will be tolerated in the classroom or the AWH Department. If you have a concern about someone’s behavior, please bring concerns directly to Dr. Evans, the instructor and Department Chair who can follow through with the Human Resources policy. This class deals with sensitive subjects, but will be approached from an academic perspective, so professionalism is expected from all participants.

- All students are expected to know and adhere to the University’s guidelines regarding Academic Honesty. I do not tolerate students submitting a collection of ideas without citation, which is considered plagiarism whether intended or not. If I have any reason to believe that any student has taken part in cheating, plagiarism, misrepresentation, bribery, conspiracy, or fabrication, the minimum penalty is a “0” for the assignment and I will complete faculty adjudication process. In my career, I have had the unfortunate experience of having to turn several students in for academic dishonesty; though it is a time-consuming and unenjoyable process, I will not hesitate to report students in accordance with Clark Atlanta University policies.

- Work ethic. Do not turn in mediocre work and expect an exceptional grade. You will receive the grade you earn. My goal is to train scholars to be competitive in an international work force. I do not pander to low personal standards. Regardless of circumstances, grades are earned by actual submitted work, not intention or effort.

- Attendance matters. Absences related to approved University activities, illnesses and family emergencies may be categorized as excused, with appropriate written documentation from the Vice-President of Student Affairs. Excused absences allow you to make-up missed work without penalty. All other absences will incur penalty without exception.

- Late work is accepted: I understand that life happens...so late work is absolutely accepted. For regular course assignments, a 10% penalty will be applied to all late work. The final paper penalty is also 10% until the last day of finals, after which no paper will be accepted. Work will be considered late after the beginning of class on the due date. No work will be accepted after 12:00 noon on the last day of final exams. Unless instructed to do so by the professor, emailed work is not accepted. In-class peer review points cannot be made up.

- No I grades: I do not routinely assign “I” (Incomplete grades), so plan to finish work by the end of semester; grades will be assigned accordingly. Exceptions might include documented major medical emergencies with notice in advance of the final week of class, but only if written approval is secured from the professor.

- Respect: All students will show collegial respect toward other students. Debates are encouraged; not disrespect. In this course, we will acknowledge the pledge to Clark Atlanta University’s Campus Cultural Creed.
