"If you have the faith the size of a mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, 'Move from here to there,' and it will move; and nothing will be impossible to you."

Jesus wept.

The other morning I received the email I had been expecting. David had passed away. David is the young man whose story we featured in May's issue of the Lord's Mountain Mover's Newsletter. He is a person whom I never met, but I came to identify with him because we both fought cancer. He lost and I won, or is it the other way around, I am not sure.

The email from David's family simply read: "He just left us. Took last few breaths and went peacefully. Praise God. Pastor here since yesterday. Slept on floor. Bless him. xo"

It was a scene I was immediately and mentally transported to. My first reaction to the email was overwhelming, I wept deeply. I was hurting so bad inside that this person had come to a point in his young life where he chose to let the disease take its inevitable course and consume his earthly body. The only reason he could do this was because he knew where he was going after this life was over. He had a strong faith in Jesus Christ as his Savior and believed that not only would his pain and sickness be over with, but he would never hurt again.

Why was I weeping so deeply, why was I not rejoicing? I believe the same things David did. My spirit is telling me I should be rejoicing, yet my heart is telling me... no, making me weep. Why this contradiction, why am I experiencing these two strong emotions clashing inside of me, neither one getting the upper hand? Was my weeping an indication that maybe I have some hidden doubt about God's promise of a life after this one? Or who was I really weeping for in the first place? How can I justify as a believer, and a teacher of God's Word, my overwhelming need to cry in this situation?

I stopped looking for answers within my self and prayed to God for some resolution, and an answer to my dilemma. He reminded me of the story of Lazarus in John 11, especially the shortest verse in our Bible, "Jesus wept."

Mary and Martha were weeping over the death of their brother Lazarus who had been dead for four days by the time Jesus arrived. They were consumed by the loss of their brother and told Jesus that he would be alive now had He come earlier, that they had held out hope for his recovery. But it was too late now, he was dead. Jesus knew that they needed reassurance that there was life after death; it was His object lesson in delaying His coming to them in the first place. They needed to know that Jesus not only had the power to help the sick to recover, but that He had the power of life over death.

But something else also happened and that was that Jesus began to weep with them. The very person who had identified Himself as the resurrection and the life, was crying. The very person who had no doubt whatsoever about a life after this one was weeping. Why? He already knew what He was going to do with Lazarus in this life and in the next.

Scripture doesn't definitively tell us why Jesus wept. Some have speculated some very plausible reasons why He wept. For me, I think that our own life experiences, in similar circumstances, might answer the question to our satisfaction.

Over the past year and a half I had been praying that God would somehow show up and make David better. That God would get the glory and David and his family would be the benefactors of that miracle. But just as King David had pleaded with God for the life of his sick son, the answer would not be in accordance with his prayer, but with God's will for everyone involved, including the child. (2 Samuel 12:16)

I never met Lazarus, and I never met this boy David. Yet both of their lives have served a purpose in my life and the lives of many others. It's not how long we live that matters, but what we do with the time that God gives here on this earth. David was only fifteen years old yet impacted so many people in his short life. What are you and I doing to make a difference in the lives of others and for the furtherance of God's kingdom? We will all one day face death at its doorstep, where will you be going and who have you led there with you?

One day, when my earthly life is over for me, I hope to meet both Lazarus and this boy David and thank them both personally for reassuring me in this life that God's promise of eternal life with Him, a life without pain, care, or concern, is not only possible, but a reality for me and all those who have placed their trust in Jesus Christ as their Lord and Savior. I pray that I go with the same courage and peace that David did; exhaling my last breath of earthly air here, and inhaling the next from the feet of Jesus in awesome adoration and fulfillment of His promise to receive me into His kingdom, new.

But for now I will say it on paper and in prayer. Thank you David... thank you Lazarus... and thank you Jesus. Thank you.

May God bless you all.

In His service,

Pastor Pete

THE WORD IN MOTION message

Why Lord, Why? (Part 2)

Last month we looked at some very positive aspects of God's nature. We saw how He responded to those who sought to do His will and not their own will. Individuals who saw that there were things that needed to get corrected and they did them. We also saw that His provision, protection, and purpose came through the loving and willing obedience to Him. I hope that you took these things to heart and applied them in your life. If you did, I believe that God has already responded or is working things out in your life right now. God has not changed, He desires that we do.

Fortunately for us, God gives us the truth about Himself and human nature too. King Jehoshaphat had a great start as a new king but things did not continue that way for long. In 2 Chronicles 18:1, Scripture tells us the following, "Now Jehoshaphat had great riches and honor; and he allied himself by marriage with Ahab."

On the surface one might say, "So what's the big deal, Ahab was from the nation of Israel? It's not like he violated God's law of marrying someone outside of God's people." You would be right on that account. The reason God had given for the men of Israel not to marry outside of God's people was that eventually they would end up serving their gods. This had proven to be true time and time again in the history of Israel, especially her kings. Scripture doesn't make note of this marriage for filler, or just for interesting reading. It makes note of it because it is significant to the story of Jehoshaphat and the things that would follow because of this marriage. It is also significant because of the lessons we can learn from it.

What about Ahab's character? What kind of a person was he and what kind of life was he leading? Scripture tells us, "Ahab the son of Omri did evil in the sight of the Lord, more than all who were before him." (1 Kings 16:30) Further reading tells us that he not only worshiped the golden calves of King Jeroboam, but he also erected alters to Baal in Samaria. He had also violated God's law of marrying outside the nation of Israel when he married Jezebel, daughter of the king of Sidon. Ahab was an evil king, one that Scripture has little good to speak about. This is the person King Jehoshaphat had allied himself with through the marriage of his son, Jehoram, to Ahab's daughter, Athaliah.

Now that we have established the cause, let's look at the effect.

We find that several years later Jehoshaphat goes to visit Ahab. Ahab throws Jehoshaphat a big party and requests that he join him in taking back Ramoth-gilead, an area that was originally given to Israel as part of the Promised Land. Jehoshaphat readily agrees by saying, "I am as you are, and my people as your people, and we will be with you in the battle." The alliance was made and now the conditions, or repercussions, begin to take shape. The good and the bad have come together, which will win out over the other?

Even though Jehoshaphat has agreed to join forces with Ahab to take back this land he requests to know how God feels about this military endeavor. In 2 Chronicles 18:4 Jehoshaphat says, "Please inquire first for the word of the Lord." A good idea for a man of God to do for any plans he might be making. It also shows he still had a heart for the will of God. Ahab agrees and assembles the prophets for God's endorsement, yet these are not God's prophets, but prophets who worship Baal. They all with one accord shout out, "Go up, for God will give it into the hand of the king." (18:5) But something inside of

Please feel free to contact us on our website, www.TheLordsMountainMovers.org. You can sign up to get the monthly newsletter free of charge. You can also place your prayer request on our website and join us in praying for our other brothers and sisters in the Lord. Jehoshaphat told him that something was wrong here and said, “Is there not yet a prophet of the Lord here that we may inquire of him?” (18:6)

Ahab answers the question like this, “There is yet one man by whom we may inquire of the Lord, but I hate him, for he never prophesies good concerning me but always evil.”(18:7) Jehoshaphat is not happy with how Ahab speaks about this prophet of God and finally the Prophet Micaiah is brought before these two kings. The man who went to retrieve Micaiah told him to speak as all the other prophets were doing so everyone would be in agreement with the king’s desire to go and fight. In 18:13, Micaiah tells this man, “As the Lord lives, what my God says, that I will speak.”

When Micaiah is asked whether or not they should go and fight for Ramoth-gilead, he responds. “Go up and succeed, for they will be given into your hand.”(18:14). I take notice that he didn’t say, “the Lord says,” or, “as the Lord lives,” in qualifying his answer. The king did not ask him what God was saying, he just asked him for advice. Even though Micaiah was agreeing with all the other prophets, King Ahab knew that something was amiss here. He knew that this prophet had been his adversarial counsel all along and now he was agreeing with him. Ahab’s response indicated this knowledge, “How many times must I adjure you to speak to me nothing but the truth in the name of the Lord?” (18:15)

I want to stop here because we have several great lessons for us to learn and I don’t want to pass over them in this study. Obviously, we see that we have two different men who had been living different lives in accordance with God’s will. The alliance, or friendship, that these two men established is important to their future and the future of others. We can also see the beginning stages of the decline of the one who had been following God’s will because of this new friendship.

Jehoshaphat had already moved in the wrong direction by aligning himself with this ungodly man through marriage. He then continued in the wrong direction by going to his home and allowing this ungodly man to honor him in an ungodly way. Once those boundaries had been crossed, the invitation to engage in something outside of God’s will presented itself in a reasonable manner and the natural response was inevitable, “I am as you are, and my people as your people, and we will be with you in the battle.” Yet God did not leave him without a conscience towards what was right even though he had gone this far. Remember that he knew something was wrong with those prophets and what they were saying. That was God still working to get him back on track, back into His will.

Even as far gone as King Ahab was, he still knew right from wrong. He knew that when Micaiah had agreed with the prophets of Baal, that was not God speaking through him. Both men knew something was up and both had an opportunity at that point to correct what was wrong. We serve a loving God as we saw in last month’s study of this passage, now we are seeing a just God begin to present Himself, for He will leave us without excuse when we go in the wrong direction. He will continue to prompt us into correction no matter how far we may have gone. The question is, will we listen and respond?

I want to leave you with a few questions to ask yourself. Are you choosing your friends carefully and within the will of God? What friendships or obligations are you involved with now that you know in your heart of hearts are wrong? Is God prompting you through your conscience to question those alliances? Are you going to listen to advice that you know is wrong and continue down the wrong road? If you are in a position like this, are you going to respond in the right way? Lastly, are you willing to be the lone voice in someone’s life that tells the truth no matter what everyone else is saying? I pray you are, we all need you.

Something New! The Lord's Mountain Movers is introducing a new monthly segment called "Be a Barnabas" in our newsletter. Our Director of Editing will be sharing an encouraging message each month in hopes of helping fellow Christians deal with life on God's terms. I pray that you will enjoy and be edified by these words of inspiration.

BE A BARNABAS (Acts 4:36)

Do you ever feel like the same trial keeps on reoccurring in your life? You keep praying and asking God to help you get through it, but it's just not ending. Have you had the question, "Why am I going through this again God?"

"The refining pot is for silver and the furnace for gold, But the Lord tests hearts." Proverbs 17:3

Trials reveal the quality and condition of our heart. We are called to be transformed, by the renewing of our minds, that we may test and prove the perfect will of God. Have you ever thought that you were a pretty good Christian? The trials we go through reveal just how Christ-like we are. Are we responding in our situations exactly like Jesus would have? God's Word calls us to put on the mind of Christ.

I want to encourage you while in the midst the trial you are in, or the next trial (we know they will come), to ask God what He is trying to reveal in yourself, what He is working on in your character? Ask for the understanding and wisdom to grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord. I don't know about you, but I am tired of going through the same thing over and over. I have found that when I ask God to show me what He is working on, He will reveal where I am falling short of Christ in my character, then we work on it together as I continue studying His word. I am so glad that our God is gentle. Oh and don't worry, when you think you have got it figured out, He will allow you to go through another test to prove whether or not you have learned it well enough. Be encouraged, God does this because He loves you and your transformation will bring glory to His name and quite possibly give you an opportunity to witness and give guidance to someone else.

Be blessed in Him,

Brother Daniel Rodney

We want you!

That's right; the Lord's Mountain Movers Ministry wants you to be a bigger part of what we are doing in God's kingdom. We would like to include something each month from our faithful readers such as; poems, drawings, short testimonials, or other such items. All submissions must be within Christian thinking and acting. We will choose at least one submission each month for inclusion into the monthly newsletter. If your submission does not make it in that month, we will keep it for upcoming issues. You may send your submissions to the address listed at the bottom of this page.

I thank you all for your encouragement and prayers that continue to come in. We look forward to what God will do for His great name. I also thank those of you who have taken the time to write and please know that your letters are important and will be answered. May God bless you and continue to grow you into the person He desires.

Here is another reader submitted poem for you to read:

The Threshold of Faith

Behold I stand, at the threshold of faith
Almost persuaded, afraid to let go
Feeling His spirit, hearing His voice
Knowing that it's Him, and that He gave me a choice.

Feeling His power, warmed by His love
Pardoned by His grace, saved by His blood
Walking each hour, holding His hand
In His precious anointing I stand

Exalting His glory, praising His name
The trials they will come, but heaven I'll gain
At the threshold of faith, I went down to my knees
I shall never know another's hands, as precious as these.

To honor Him, is to exalt Him, in everything I do
To seek Him, and obey Him, and to be true to His word
At the threshold of faith, I went down on my knees
Almost persuaded, afraid to let go, He plunged me to victory
Beneath His cleansing flow, he made me His son
And beneath his blood, I'm white as snow

I shall never know, another's hands, as precious as these
That walked upon the waters, and parted the seas
Walking each hour, holding to His hand
In His precious anointing and Holy spirit I stand
Walking in victory, to victory, as He lifts me up each day
When I go down on my knees before the old rugged cross to pray.

(by Winifred Walker)
