

National Association for Children and Safe Technology

Newsletter | October 2016

Dear Members:

October is National Sensory Awareness Month. Conservative estimates indicate 1 in 20 children in the United States has some form of Sensory Processing Disorder (SPD). To learn more about SPD, please visit our web page dedicated to the topic - <http://www.nacst.org/sensory-processing-disorder.html>. Exposing children to wireless radiation puts them at risk for developing this condition.

NACST makes it easier for you to inform and engage your communities on the matter of wireless radiation in schools. Our Turn It Off 4 Kids Tool Kit provides a substantive, 4-page bi-fold brochure with over fifty citations; rack cards that identify EHS/ ES symptoms; and a customizable petition for parents to use in their community. The NACST Tool Kit can be found here: <http://www.nacst.org/turn-it-off-4-kids-tool-kit.html>.

We are making it easier to share NACST resources by e-mail or social media with shortened url's:

"I think children are going to succumb to this in larger numbers, and we're going to see a higher incidence among children of things like brain cancer. It's not high yet, but I think it's going to get much higher." Martin Blank, Ph.D.

"In the US, a study has shown that the number of cases of radiation-sensitive papillary thyroid cancer increased between 2002 and 2012 by 174%. The increase is also observed among the larger tumors (over 4 cm). Recent statistics show that between 2009 and 2014 only, the number of new patients with thyroid cancer in the United States increased from 37,000 to 63,000."
