POPE FRANCIS PRAYS FOR CATECHISTS

During December 2021, Pope Francis is praying “for the catechists, summoned to announce the Word of God.” He says the Church needs “good catechists who are both companions and teachers. ... The lay ministry of catechist is a vocation; it’s a mission ... an entire way of being.” We, the faithful, are invited by Pope Francis to “thank catechists for the interior enthusiasm with which they live this mission at the service of the Church.” Check out his video at the link to see what Pope Francis has to say:

<https://www.vaticannews.va/en/pope/news/2021-11/pope-s-december-prayer-intention-for-catechists.html>

ADVENT VIDEO SERIES BY THE CCCB

Beginning Sunday, November 21, the Solemnity of Christ the King, and for the four Sundays of Advent, the CCCB will release a video recording of one of Canada’s bishops reflecting on the Gospel Reading for that Sunday. This year’s reflections were inspired by the Indigenous Delegation travelling to Rome to meet with Pope Francis from 17-20 December 2021, and may be found at the following link: <https://www.cccb.ca/evangelization-catechesis-catholic-education/video-resources/journey-through-advent/>.

Prepare Him Room

For the past three years, I have experienced the Advent season differently because of a reflection from Sr. Ilia Delio, a Franciscan Religious with doctoral degrees in both theology and science, who suggested that during these four weeks leading up to Christmas we as Christians are not passively waiting for what is not there, but we are preparing room in our hearts for a Jesus who has already come and part of our task is to illuminate his presence through loving actions. The “coming of Christ” also means an active moving onward towards a new way of living, believing and thinking. In essence, God is waiting for us to awaken “as if we’re asleep in the manger, and not Jesus.”

My experience has been that meaningful transformation does not come easily, because at some point I must acknowledge I am not “done” with my faith development, and there will always be room for growth and change. The way in which I understand God and relate to Jesus Christ is different at the age of 48 than it was at the age of 18, not because God has changed, but because I have. I have also noticed that my own transformation has often been accompanied by people and situations I might have otherwise avoided given the opportunity. However these same people and situations have challenged me to reconsider my certainties about God, “to get up from where (I) was and move on” towards Jesus Christ.

So how do we move on in a significant way towards a God who is waiting for us when many of us do not even like to change where we sit at mass each Sunday? How can we make room in our hearts for Jesus when we fear those we consider “outsiders,” or people who are different from us? I know when I am forced to change my routine or way of thinking I often feel a sense of having the rug pulled from beneath my feet.

When I was a child, each year before Christmas a group of adults and catechism children from St. Jude’s in Salisbury would visit the Jordan Memorial Sanatorium in River Glade to sing Christmas carols and distribute candy canes and Christmas cards to the residents. Through the eyes of a child, the sanatorium building was intimidating, sitting like a massive haunted mansion, with its unfamiliar smells, sounds and endless hallways that led to a common room where many residents and staff had gathered. This common room had a stage, which is where we stood to sing our Christmas Carols.

During my first visit I spent a great deal of time staring at residents because I was unfamiliar with this environment. In particular I recall one resident who was confined to her wheelchair with a little table crossing the arm rests, maybe as a safety precaution, I am unsure. All I know is she terrified me because she stretched her arms out across that table towards us children as though she was beckoning us, making noises in her throat my ten year-old mind could not understand. No way was I going anywhere near her.

Many years later I understand better that Jesus was present in every one of us there, residents and carollers both, but the woman in the wheelchair makes me think of how moving towards a God who longs to embrace me can involve frightening steps outside my comfort zone. Maybe I do not treat all children of God with the respect I should be offering every human being, this might be hard for me to admit. The onus was upon me then, and the onus is upon me now to open my heart to a God who waits patiently for me to prepare room in my heart, and awaken to Jesus’ presence in each of us as we journey through this Advent season of love, joy and hope.

NATIONAL DAY OF PRAYER IN SOLIDARITY WITH INDIGENOUS PEOPLES

Is celebrated by the Church in Canada on December 12, the feast of Our Lady of Guadalupe. Each year the Canadian Catholic Indigenous Council prepares a reflection for this occasion. This year the message centers on the theme: "We are called to Healing, Forgiveness, Reconciliation. We, the Body of Christ, are called to live in friendship and harmony with all peoples. We are brothers and sisters of our One Creator God". You may read this reflection on the Canadian Conference of Catholic Bishops: www.cccb.ca

Catholics across the country are invited to join in prayer as a delegation of Indigenous survivors, Elders, knowledge keepers, and young people travel to Rome to meet with Pope Francis as soon as health conditions surrounding international travel will allow it to be done in a safe manner in 2022. The delegation will also help inform the planned pilgrimage of the Holy Father to Canada at a future date.
