Examines the history of eastern Sussex from the dawn of time to the Battle of Hastings. 'It is the sheer dynamism of the region's history that Keith Foord brings alive' Professor David Bates, President BDHS.

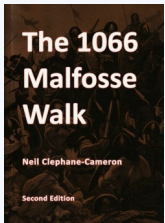

This book delves into the background stories and events of 1066, in the context of the histories, places and politics involved in eastern Sussex and overseas.

Describes the impact in eastern Sussex of the tumultuous events of the Middle Ages: kingly rivalry, civil wars, the Black Death, rebellions, the creation of Parliament and the loss of France.

This book commemorates the fallen of Battle and the survivors in the First World War. Personal histories are accompanied by a narrative of the global conflict in a book which brings to life the names on the local war memorial and more.

The author stylishly guides the reader along a walk around the Battle area, visiting possible sites for the 'Malfosse' incident, a late ambush on the Normans by the English at the Battle of Hastings.
