

Straight Paths Driving School

Section 1: Steering, Signaling and Changing Lanes

Steering control is _____ to _____, _____ driving. Developing steering control involves acquiring _____ habits, such as _____ far ahead into your intended path of _____, using space _____, _____ speed, and continually _____ the steering wheel.

Develop the habit of _____ every time you plan to _____, _____ lanes, _____, or stop.

Section 2: Making Turns and Turning the Vehicle Around

Making _____ properly depends on _____ control, _____ control, and good _____ habits. Look _____ ahead as you approach the turn. _____ where your vehicle will go, any _____ in your path, and how much to _____.

You use _____ - _____ - _____ steering by _____ the steering wheel _____ with one hand while your other hand _____ over to pull the wheel farther down.

Some drivers prefer _____ - _____ steering for some maneuvers. You _____ the steering wheel up with _____ hand and _____ it down with the other hand. This method allows you to keep _____ _____ on the steering wheel at all times.

Section 3: Parking

Some drivers find _____ a vehicle a _____ maneuver to execute, because the _____ of the parking space is _____. Parking your vehicle requires _____ control, _____ control, and _____.

Many drivers use _____ points to serve as guides in determining the _____ of the vehicle in the road-way. A _____ point is some part of the _____ or _____ of the vehicle, as viewed from the _____ seat, that relates to some part of the road-way. _____ points can be developed for the _____, _____, or _____ to help you know where your vehicle is located in the _____. A standard reference point is the point on the vehicle that is _____ for most drivers. This could be a _____ mirror, a _____ ornament, or the _____ of the hood.