

ETHICS IN A CRISIS WORLD: TALES FROM THE FRONT

This program addresses the many issues impacting the CPA practice in a world of crisis. The unique challenges facing practitioners will be explained using actual practice situations and then analyzed for their ethical implications.

Learning Objectives: Upon completion of this course, you will be able to:

Gain knowledge of numerous practice situations occasioned by the world in crisis and relate them to various ethical authorities.

Major Subjects:

- Planning and financial statement preparation in times of crisis.
- "Tales for the Front" practice issues facing CPAs in these extraordinary times.
- Review of the AICPA Code of Professional Conduct
- Review of Circular 230
- Client tax return disclosure rules (Section 6103)
- Crisis impact on engagement letters, contingent fees, independence, consulting services, attest and non-attest services, billing and collection

Designed for: CPAs in public practice seeking an update on the latest ethical situations in business during a time of economic stress.

Level of Knowledge

Basic

Field of Study

Regulatory Ethics

Format

Group Internet / Self-Study

Prerequisite

None

Advanced Preparation

None

Recommended CPE Credit

2 Hours

Presented by:

Steven C. Dilley, CPA, JD, PhD