

TOURISM WORKS FOR ALASKA

Tourism is a renewable natural resource that can only be expanded through destination marketing. In 2019:

- Alaska's more than 2.25 million visitors spent more than $2 billion in our state, supporting communities and tourism businesses.
- Visitor fees provided more than $88 million for city and borough budgets and $126 million to the state's general fund.
- Alaska's tourism industry generated more than $4.5 billion in economic activity.

Alaska's Vehicle Rental Tax: A sustainable investment in destination marketing

Approximately 70% of Alaska's Vehicle Rental Tax* (VRT) funds are generated by Alaska's out-of-state guests. While revenues vary from year to year, a percentage-based annual distribution of VRT funds in support of statewide tourism marketing is a win-win for the State and for Alaska's tourism industry.

*Per statutory language, the Alaska Legislature may appropriate the balance in the vehicle rental tax account for tourism development and marketing (AS 43.52.010).

Alaska's Tourism Industry = A Renewable Natural Resource

Case Study: Kodiak Brown Bear Center, Kodiak

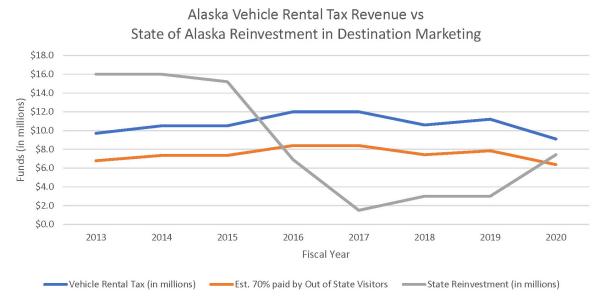

The 3,800 shareholders of Koniag, Incorporated launched the Kodiak Brown Bear Center in 2010 to preserve and protect the land so future generations will have the same opportunities enjoyed today.

A Sustainable Future

In FY 2020, the VRT raised more than $9 million, with approximately 70% generated by out-of-state visitors. Reinvesting in destination marketing grows Alaska's brand through TV and print advertising, social media, public and media relations, travel trade marketing, and international promotions.

An annual reinvestment of VRT funds in destination marketing creates a path forward.

Leveraged by industry contributions and investments, Alaska's statewide destination marketing program sustains a healthy tourism industry that returns economic benefits to our families, our communities, and our state's economy. Thank you for supporting tourism in Alaska.
