

Oncology Nursing Showdown: Non-Hodgkin Lymphoma Edition

Learning Objectives:

- Evaluate guideline recommendations for the management of individual patients with advanced NHL
- Assess emerging efficacy and safety data on novel therapies for advanced NHL
- Apply strategies to manage adverse events and optimize treatment experiences for patients receiving novel therapies for advanced NHL

Speaker Bio:

Amy Goodrich, RN, MSN, CRNP-AC, is an Acute Care Nurse Practitioner at Sidney Kimmel Comprehensive Cancer at Johns Hopkins, where she is also Manager of the Division of Hematologic Malignancies Research Nurses and the Division of Medical Oncology Research Nurses. In addition, she is a Research Associate at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine. Ms. Goodrich specializes in the treatment of patients with hematologic malignancies, with particular expertise in lymphoma. Her research focuses on the development of novel therapeutics and the management of adverse events for patients with hematologic malignancies, and she has authored or coauthored numerous articles in peer-reviewed journals.