INDIANOLA PILGRIMAGE

June 14, 1986

In this sesquicentennial year, as we celebrate the 150th birthday of Texas, it is fitting to celebrate the life and times of Indianola. This year marks 100 years since the death of that old city in August 1886. As we prepare to revive a tradition originated by an organization called THE FORMER CITIZENS OF INDIANOLA AND THEIR DECENDENTS, we have gathered material in the hopes of perpetuating the memories of Indianola.

Much of the material included in this souvenir booklet came from the book of minutes of the Old Indianola Association. Miss Sophie Liebold had the book in her possession for many years then gave it to Mrs. Ella (Boyd) Roemer. Later, Mrs. Roemer presented the book to the Calhoun County Museum.

Scrapbooks belonging to Miss Rebecca Rubert and Mrs. Jewett (Thayer) Wilson were also valuable sources. The stories of the Coutret family are through the courtesy of the Coutret family and Calhoun County Museum. The various letterheads of Indianola merchants are from Florence Clark's collection.

Hon. H. Stuart:
Dear Sir,

To attempt a description of the destruction of this town and vicinity would be an impossibility, but I will endeavor to give you some idea of it. On Wednesday, the wind was from the eastward, veering occasionally to the north. On the following morning, Thursday 16th, it became more steady from the east, increasing to a gale. It was my publication day, but on starting from my dwelling to go to the office, I found the water from the bay pouring over the beach, fearfully, the tide being remarkably high, and the waves dashing and cutting through at a fearful rate. Everybody was alarmed, never having witnessed water from the bay flooding the town in that direction.

Before I reached my house it was waist deep. I immediately got my wife, her mother and two daughters away on a dray to Mr. R. Martin's house on higher land, a two-story building. Every man, woman and child were now seeking places of safety. The wind now blew fearfully, the water coming into the house I was in. Night coming on the situation was awful. Screams from women and children could be heard in every direction. The water was then about six feet deep in the streets, some places, according to grade, more or less. Of course, I can only describe what we experienced, every one being in the same fix.

About 2 o'clock Friday morning, the 17th, the wind veered round to the northwest. The waves then became chopped, and then the ruin and destruction came, houses washed away; others tumbled over and fell to pieces. The house I was in began to sway. Mr. Martin and myself went down the stairs and found the water falling. We still had hopes the wind would lull; but no, the gusts were fearful. Mr. Martin's family consisted of his wife and two daughters, besides a young girl staying with them, and three children. Two of them are granddaughters and a child of Mrs. T. Poole.

We all went down the island to his rear building, and found the rapid current sweeping off the soil each side of the house, making fearful gullies. We shouted, and fortunately was heard by Mr. David C. Procter, who had with several families: Mr. Geo. Finlay, of your city, Messrs. Glass, Lackey, Petticolas lawyers of Victoria and Clinton, sought shelter there. We could see them in commotion, coming down to the edge of the current. Mr. Martin then crossed the gully and succeeded in reaching them. Ropes and clothes-lines were gathered up and stretched across to a tree near Mr. Martin's house.

The gentlemen above mentioned then stationed themselves at intervals along the line, and the women, eight in number, and the three children, passed across the gully, when stout arms and firm nerves conducted them safely across. Of course, the work was hard, but the women were brave, cool and collected. The Procter home was reached. But here, for the time, the danger was great, the water cutting each side. The two-story house of Mr. H. Iken with that of Mr. Procter, had already been carried away, and his family and that of Mr. C. Canfield, saved themselves by a miracle.

The wind toward morning began to lull a little, but the water was getting lower until the wind veered north. Then came hope.

Daylight began to break. Then did we behold the awful destruction around us, and thanked our God that we had been saved, and that our perilous position was as nothing compared with the sufferings of our neighbors and citizens along the bay. Broad daylight revealed a scene that was terrible to behold.

The town could not be recognized as the Indianola of the day previous. Ruin, total ruin, everywhere. People were seen wading and jumping over one gully and another. Neighbor met neighbor, and told their troubles and tribulations of the previous night. Death and destruction all around us! Houses crushed to the ground, others swayed round and leaning over.

The wind finally dying down, and the water disappearing from places in the streets, those that could sallied out to learn the news. Bodies of men, women and children were found in all directions.

Police and guards were organized and the search was made for missing relatives and friends. How many have lost their lives in this fearful storm it is impossible to learn. Up to this time sixty or seventy bodies have been found and buried. Women were found, and men also, who had floated off on doors, or anything they could get hold of, miles away. Some were beneath their roofs, carried away long distances. The escape of so many of our citizens is most miraculous.

The search for bodies is still going on and the number of human beings drowned, never be known, as there were many strangers in town.

Now comes to our horrified senses the news of the destruction of Saluria and Decrow's Point, with a fearful loss of life. A list of those drowned and missing is being collected, and is hourly being added to.

The steamer leaving today, I can only give you an idea of the sufferings of our people. Others will send you, no doubt, descriptions of the terrible gale and their knowledge of it.

We are houseless and ruined-provision wagons are coming in from Victoria and temporary relief is afforded to our people. Churches, dwellings, stores, with some exceptions, are gone from sight, and Indianola, this Monday morning, is a sight fearful to behold.

The BULLETIN office is gone up, and your humble servant and his family are now fixing up a dwelling in a ruined home without windows, doors, or anything. But it is a shelter so far, until the north comes, or until we can collect our confused senses and determine upon what we shall do, or where we can go. Like Mordecai of old we are not, as we have no gate to sit at. Our fate is the fate of all of us. Many are leaving for Victoria and other places, where they can get shelter and food. The Victoria people and neighboring towns are doing all they can to alleviate our sufferings, dealing out food and clothing.

Now, friend Stuart, please don't publish this as written, but make from it a plain and readable statement, as I am writing with great haste and with cut and bruised hands. At this time I can not give you the names of the dead as far as found, but you will hear more from others by the next steamer. The wires are down. Yours, C. A. OGSBURY.

[Ogsbury was editor of the INDIANOLA BULLETIN from 1866 until the 1875 storm completely destroyed the newspaper office. The only traces found after the storm were broken pieces of the printing presses and bits of type.]

THE RECENT DISASTER - CAPTAIN W.H. WOODWARD'S STATEMENT
Indianola,
August 21.

On the morning of the 20th, at about 3 o'clock, this town was visited by one of the most disastrous cyclones ever known in this country - more terrific than the one of 1875 - doing its work of destruction in about five hours. To add to its horror when at its height a lamp exploded in the office of the signal observer, setting fire to the building, which soon spread and burned two blocks in the business part of the town. Captain Isaac A. Reed, the signal observer, was at his post when the conflagration began, and the flames spread so rapidly that he found it impossible to escape and so perished at his post of duty. There were five persons in the building at the time, vis.: T. D. Woodward, L. H. Woodworth, William J. Morrison, Captain Reed and Dr. H. Rosencrans. The latter two perished in the flames. The former escaped from the building, but not a moment too soon. At this writing it is impossible to ascertain the number of lives lost. Our well-known citizen Dr. D. Lewis is missing, and it is supposed either drowned or burned, as he was last seen in his store when on fire. There are no provisions to be had in town, as all were either lost or spoiled, and unless we get immediate relief there will be great suffering. As soon as those of our citizens who are left can get together there will be a relief committee formed, which will render every aid in their power. In the meantime, should we receive contributions in the shape of provisions, clothing, etc., I will take it on myself, to see that they are duly distributed among the suffering and needy.

THE CYCLONE'S SWATH. DETAILS OF INDIANOLA'S
DAMAGE. THE TOWN A COMPLETE WRECK.
Victoria, August 23.

Your correspondent returned last night from Indianola. That town is a complete wreck, not more than three or four houses having escaped the destructive force of the water. Dr. Fischer, quarantine officer, with his wife; Captain M. S. Mahon, Captain Adolph Steinbach and a negro woman named Martha Ellis were brought in by the schooner Tidal Wave, Captain Sam Borge, who picked the party up at the residence of Mr. Thomas Cherry. The quarantine station was washed away early Friday morning, and they were forced to take refuge in the bare salt cedars, which grew close to the hospital building. For nine hours they clung to their frail support for life, the angry waves at times almost wrenching loose their hands, grasping with the energy of despair the swaying cedars.

Grave apprehensions had been felt for the safety of Dr. Fischer and party, and his arrival in safety was a source of great satisfaction to his friends. Nearly every house on the supper end of the island was swept away. A colored woman named Bettie Meade and two children were drowned. No other lives reported lost. Nearly all the cattle and sheep were drowned, and the balance will probably die for want of water. A letter reached Victoria today from Edwin Hawes, of Saluria, who states that they had no provisions in the island except meat, and that none of the survivors have saved anything besides the clothing they had on.

Instructions were received here today, to be forwarded to Collector Threlkeld, requiring him at once to proceed to remove his office to Victoria, which thereby becomes the headquarters of this collection district for the present. He will probably be able to make the transfer at once, as soon as the books, safe, etc., can be transported to this city.

The body of Mrs. Hodges, her children, and sister, Mrs. Crooker, passed through yesterday evening en route to Cuero, where they were buried this afternoon. Mr. Crooker, who resides at Austin, also reached Cuero in time to witness the arrival of the train bearing his loved wife, sister-in-law and two nephews.

Your correspondent desires to mention the actions of Dr. Reuss, of Cuero, toward the Indianola sufferers. From Friday evening until Sunday afternoon he remained at his self-imposed post of duty, and did much to lighten the burdens pressing heavily upon the worn and heart-weary people who surrounded him.

AGED WOMEN TELLS OF 1875 AND 1886 INDIANOLA STORMS - MRS. AMELIA LEWIS OF CUERO IS SURVIVOR OF BOTH: by J. W. Howerton, Houston Post Correspondent.
Cuero, Oct. 3, 1936

Mrs. Amelia Lewis, one of Cuero's oldest citizens, celebrated her ninety-first birthday here recently. She is one of the few living residents of the once thriving city of Indianola to survive both the storm of 1875 and the one of 1886.

Mrs. Lewis in reminiscing told of the days prior to '75 when camels were brought into the seaport town. They were driven by Arabs in queer costume, brown trousers, yellow blouses with wide sashes and fez. Ox carts were used for hauling purposes. Three big steamers plied between Galveston and Indianola, making the trip twice a week. A long, wooden pier extended about two and one-half miles into the deep water where the steamers put in.

Mrs. Lewis' husband was a druggist by profession and they owned a general merchandise store retailing groceries, hardware, drugs, etc. The business was conducted in a strongly built two-story building with living quarters above the store.

STORM HITS CITY

Court was being held in the town of Indianola when the storm of '75 began to blow. Many of the people ran to the Lewis store for protection. Livestock and poultry were being swept away by the rush of water, when someone espied an especially large pig floating toward the store. All rushed down the back steps, managed to save the porker which was then placed on the front porch and penned there until the waters subsided.

It was during this storm that a Dr. Leake, local physician, was called to the bedside of a very sick woman. Endangering his life he went to her aid. The water was so high that he landed his boat at the level of the porch roof. In attempting to walk up the slanting roof, he slipped, broke his leg, and was unable to save himself. One end of the house gave way and the sick woman in her bed, floated out of the house, with her husband clinging to the side of the bed. Both were drowned.

GERMAN SETTLEMENT

Indianola was largely a German settlement, and it was customary to use feather mattresses on beds for cover as well as to sleep on. Mrs. Lewis says that during the storm she saw scores of people floating around in the water on feather mattresses. These could be guided to safety and thus many were saved.

In telling of the storm of 1886 in which Mr. Lewis lost his life, Mrs. Lewis said that drizzling rain began in the late afternoon, a high wind began to blow and there was such a sandstorm that it was hard to see. A number of friends and neighbors gathered at the Lewis home and helped move merchandise from the first floor to the second. The office of the weather bureau was located just across the street. A Mr. Reed was in charge of the bureau and on this occasion a Dr. Rosenkrantz was aiding him. Lanterns were lit and put up for signals to warn boats in the harbor. An extra strong blast of wind blew down a portion of the walls, upset the lanterns and a conflagration was started, both the men being cremated. Bits of the building blew across the street, ignited the Lewis building which was completely demolished, along with other buildings in the block.

ALL ESCAPE

Every one in the building managed to escape through a back window, but the water at this point was waist deep and the children had to be carried. All took refuge in the ice house which was considered a safe place but as the storm grew stronger, the building began to shake and the panic stricken people fled to the Runge bank building. Here they stayed until the storm subsided.

An irony of this storm was that a vacant frame two-story boarding house located next to the Lewis store withstood the ravages of both storm and fire.

Immediately after this storm Mrs. Lewis and her four children moved to Victoria where they stayed for a few months, moving to Cuero in the spring of 1887 where they have since made their home.

THE TALE OF A BELL-IT SAILED THE SEVEN SEAS,
WAS RESCUED FROM THE ENEMY,SLEPT IN SAND FOR 25 YEARS, NOW CALLS FAITHFUL TO PRAYER
by Harry Putman

Stolen by Yankee soldiers to be turned into bullets..recovered and stilled beneath the sands of Matagorda Bay for 25 years..dug from its wave kissed grave condemned to the scrap pile only to rise again and peal forth it's deep throated call to worship..this is the story of the sturdy little copper bell which blends its tone with two larger bells in calling Lutherans of Cuero and DeWitt County to worship each week.

The story is one which echoes more of fiction than of fact, but it is a familiar story to the few score of former residents of the once thriving little seaport city of Old Indianola who have survived the years.

The bell now hangs in the belfry of the beautiful St. Mark's Lutheran Church of Cuero and is treasured by Lutherans throughout Texas.

Rev. A. A. Hahn is pastor of St. Mark's Church and among his congregation are a precious few who as children lived in the historic little seaport city prior to the storm of 1886 which blasted the seaport from the face of the earth.

LIFE OF ADVENTURE: The life of this copper bell has been one of adventure. It was in the dusk of a summer evening of 1856 that the ringing of the little bell heralded the approach of the steamer Reliance of the Morgan Line into the busy harbor of Old Indianola, the thriving little seaport which sprung up on Matagorda Bay, some 15 miles from where the city of Port Lavaca is now located.

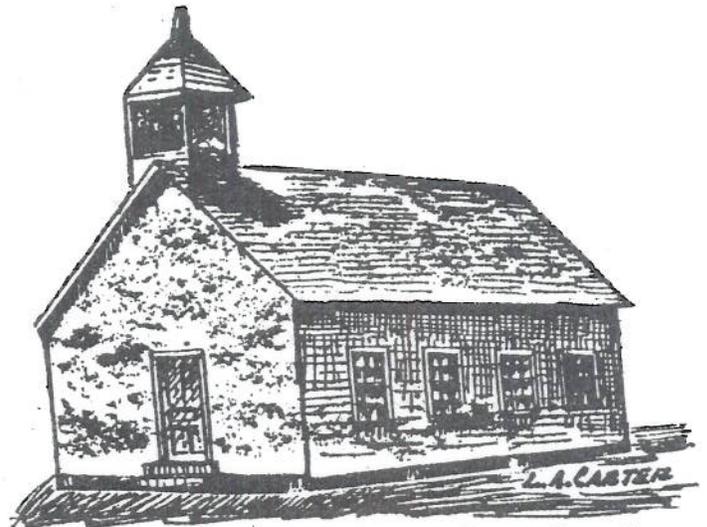

Capt. Henry Sheppard was master of the Reliance when it steamed into port and dropped anchor on that late summer afternoon, and preparations were soon under way for a dinner party aboard the steamer that night.

A few hours later, merry-makers filled the state rooms, and the party was at its height when the cry of "fire" was sounded by a crew member aboard the ship. A skeleton crew aboard for the night, giving all their attention to rescuing those aboard, were unable to fight the flames. Fanned by a gulf breeze, they soon enveloped the ship and after several hours it slid below the waters of the harbor, the little bell clanging as the water churned over the charred hulk.

The familiar sound of the deep but soft tones of the Reliance's bell was not forgotten by Lutherans of Old Indianola however and in need of a church bell, they petitioned the president of the Morgan Line for permission to salvage it.

Permission was given and divers soon recovered the bell. It was placed in the steeple of the Lutheran Church which in 1854 had been organized by a Rev. Mr. Holeinger. Here it remained until the Civil War.

WAR TIMES: On November 1, 1862, three Yankee gunboats entered Pass Cavallo. Commanding officer in Indianola was Major Schae, and he refused the terms of the Yankee commander to surrender. Bombardment of the city was begun after time had been allowed for the removal of women and children. Hours later the town surrendered and Yankee troops occupied the city.

Drawing of Lutheran Church in Indianola where the Reliance's historic bell first called the faithful to prayer.

They seized what supplies as might be considered bounty of war. Soldiers climbed into the steeple of the church, tossed the bell to the ground and later moved it to the beach where it was to be loaded on one of the warships and shipped north for manufacture into bullets or cannon.

Members of the congregation were undaunted, however. As Yankee soldiers slept, members of the congregation after securing permission of their pastor, slipped down to the beach, loaded the bell on a wheelbarrow, and silently slipped into the darkness. Loaded on a wagon, the bell was carried far down the beach and buried deep beneath the sands.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS TO PASS: Twenty five years were to pass before the bell was again seen. September 17, 1875 was a dark day in the history of the little city, for sweeping out of the gulf, a surging hurricane engulfed the entire coastal country. The town was wiped from the face of the earth.

The perseverance of the pioneer citizens lived however and the city was once more rebuilt. However, in 1886, mountainous waves of Matagorda Bay, whipped into a frenzy by hurricanic winds, rolled over the city, carrying many to watery graves and leaving the little seaport in ruins.

Those who did not perish, decided to move inland. The majority of those early settlers came to Cuero to make their home and in the fall of 1886 a new Lutheran Church was organized in Cuero. Three years later the congregation built a new church, but found they had not money left to purchase a bell.

George Wasserman, then an aging man, and a member of the little party which had buried the bell of the Reliance beneath the sands of Matagorda Bay, suggested that attempts to recover the bell be made. He told his amazed listeners that while it had been 25 years since the bell was hidden from Yankee soldiers, he was confident he could lead them to the spot.

THE BELL IS FOUND: A party was organized and Wasserman lived up to his word. The bell, only slightly tarnished by its 25-year sleep beneath the sands and surging waters, was soon located, and returned to Cuero. Placed in the steeple of St. Mark's Church, here it remained until 1889 when a member of the congregation presented the church with a larger bell.

The faithful little bell was sold to the Cuero volunteer fire department and for many years summoned members of the department in time of a conflagration. Replaced in 1913 by more modern apparatus the voice of the Reliance was consigned to the scrap pile.

Here it was discovered some years later by Joe Pannen, member of the congregation who knew its colorful history, and at Pannen's suggestion the bell was returned to St. Mark's Church as a gift, with the proviso that it never be used for any other purpose than to call Lutherans to worship.

Hung in the steeple of the present St. Mark's Lutheran Church of Cuero in 1939 upon dedication of the handsome mission-type structure, it remains today a reminder of the days of long ago - days when ships sailed the waters of Matagorda Bay..days when Yanks were invaders of Texas..pioneer days written deep into the hearts of thousands of Texans and especially the thousands of descendants of those sturdy pioneers who lived and died in the little seaport city of Old Indianola, whose ruins still bleach on the sands of Matagorda Bay.

THERE WAS A LOW ROAR IN THE EAST

"You could hear a kind of low roar from out of the east and a big black cloud settled down over the bay. That's the first warning we had before she hit."

Capt. Frank Bauer, 85 years old and one of the few survivors of the 1886 Indianola hurricane, who attended Sunday's Indianola Pilgrimage, was talking about the day the thriving little seaport was washed away.

"It was on a Friday morning, August 20th. That's when the big one hit. Me and Cot Plummer were out on my Dad's boat - that was the 'Eclipse' - a 45 foot schooner, when she went down.

When we landed in the water we got on some planks that were floating around. My plank had a black moccasin riding on the other end but we got along pretty well. I ought to kill that old cottonmouth, but I wouldn't do it. I figured I owed him that much. That snake could have killed me many a time."

Thus Capt. Frank Bauer and Cot Plummer missed the havoc back in their home town where at least 150 people perished during the hurricane.

They traveled back to Indianola on the Sunday after the storm. From there Capt. Frank went to Victoria on the railroad that used to run down to Indianola. He found his father, Anton Bauer and the rest of the family safe. Their home had burned down when the 'weather prophets' building just across the street collapsed on top of it. Oil lamps in the weather station started the fire, in much the same way that broken lamps in other parts of the city caused blazes that helped the winds in their job of destruction.

"From Victoria we moved to Cuero. That's where a lot of people went after the hurricane. That's what helped Cuero get started as a town," Capt. Frank said.

He married Lizzie Wiegand in Cuero in 1893. Then he spent one year in Oklahoma territory, came back to Cuero and stayed until 1900 when he and his wife moved to Edna. They came to Port Lavaca in 1904 and Capt. Frank has lived here ever since.

His son, Bill, and three daughters, Mrs. John Sterling, Mrs. Harry Smith, and Mrs. Roy Whitmire also live here. Another son, Dr. Jim Bauer lived in Refugio.

Capt. Frank Bauer was in Indianola during the hurricane of September '85 too.

"I rode out of that one on horseback" said Capt. Frank. "My Dad put my mother, five sisters, and two brothers in a wagon, and I followed. We went to just about where Magnolia Beach is now and waited it out."

His father rebuilt his home after the 1875 storm. It was located near Powderhorn Lake and Capt. Frank still pays taxes on the two lots his father owned there.

One of his sisters, a brother, his grandfather and an uncle are buried in the small cemetery on the ridge, near where Highway 316 ends. This is one of the two Indianola cemeteries which will be beautified and fenced with proceeds from Sunday's celebration.

from:MY NINETY FIVE YEARS IN TEXAS:As told to Katherine McComb by Alois Coutret.(courtesy of Calhoun County Museum)

I was born in Indianola, Texas, October 7 1860. My father, Joseph Coutret, was born in New Orleans, La., later moving to Indianola. My mother, Aloniza, was born in Switzerland, and was my father's second wife.

Indianola, at the time of my birth, was a thriving deep seaport serving the Mallory and Morgan steamship lines. Long wharves, 1500 feet, shot out into the waters of the bay like long, black snake whips unfurled. The Gulf West Texas Railroad ran their rails out onto one of these piers and unloaded cattle, cotton, hides, tallow, and other merchandise directly onto the boats that took it to all parts of the world. San Antonio and all the country south of Indianola did all its shipping from here at that time, because it was much shorter hauling distance to Indianola than to Galveston.

My earliest memory of my mother is of her dressing my wrist after I had suffered an injury that caused a piece of bone about an inch long to work out of it. I carried this scar until a few years ago. About this time also, my mother, sister and I went by boat to Texana to visit the Renschels. Mr. Renschel was my godfather. The Renschels had a son, Henry, who was just three days older than I. They also had a next door neighbor who owned a beautiful peach tree filled with peaches just beginning to blush. The sight was too much for Henry and me. We were busy stuffing ourselves on half ripe peaches when the lady spied us. She called Mrs. Renschel saying the peaches did not matter so much, but she was afraid that two little boys were going to have bad stomach aches from eating the half ripe fruit. I don't remember that our stomachs bothered, but I do know that the opposite side of me suffered considerable from the peach stealing stunt, so that neither of us ever again cared to repeat the offense.

The first school I attended was a private school. The school was held in an old casino, as we had no school house. We were taught in German by a German professor named Shirkey. Later I attended the Catholic school. Then as soon as a public school was opened I went there. We had two teachers, a lady for the girls and a man for the boys. One of my teachers was Mr. Marcellus Kleberg. Another was a red headed man whose name I have forgotten, but I remember that he was very strict.

About this time another private school opened. It was run by Prof. Thomas Colston. The boys who attended this private school began to snub and make discourteous remarks about the boys of our free school. So one day the boys of our school made it up to visit the private school and beat up these snobs. They asked me to join them. But I knew that if I went over and started a fight there would be another one at home, and I would be on the small end of the stick. Altho my mother had taught me to mind my own business, as that was the best way to keep out of trouble, I couldn't resist going along to see the fun. As I stood on the sidelines watching the fight, I saw my mother hasten across the yard to where a couple of boys were rolling in the dirt, tearing and gouging at each other like a pair of savages.. The one nearest my mother was about my size and dressed in clothes similar to mine. I knew she had mistaken him for me. She reached down and grabbed him by the shoulder, and the look I saw on her face made me mighty glad that I was not the boy that she had jerked to his feet. With a disapproving look, she gave him a shake and sent him on his way. Then she turned and saw me standing there grinning. For a minute I thought I was in for it for just being there, then she started to laugh. I have always wondered how my mother found out about any mischief I planned to do, sometimes even before I planned it. Having three boys older than I, I guess that she had had plenty of experience before I came along.

On Saturdays and vacations we boys would swim in the bay and fish from the long wharves, catching redfish nearly as long as we were. It was nothing in those days to catch fish weighing 12 to 15 pounds each.

Indianola was mostly a quiet town when I was growing up. I do remember one killing. It was caused by the Sutton-Taylor feud. The feud started in Dewitt County and began during the reconstruction time. The gangs were warned not to come to Indianola except peaceably. Under a truce, Bill Slaughter with Mr. and Mrs. Sutton (she was Bill Slaughter's sister) prepared to sail by steamer from Indianola to New Orleans. They had boarded the steamer "Clinton" when Bill Taylor, who had been hiding behind cotton bales stored on the wharf, fired on them, killing both Sutton and Slaughter. I saw the bodies after they were killed, both were shot in the forehead, between the eyes, and also in the heart. Mrs. Sutton had been standing between them at the time they were shot down. This was in 1874 and I was fourteen years old.

One morning in September 1875, when I awoke, the sky was overcast and a light rain falling. The wind was blowing but we had so much high wind in Indianola, no one thought much about it. I took my two cows to pasture, as usual, and returned home to get ready for school. By that time the wind had increased and the water was beginning to run in the streets. I did not go to school. As the morning wore on the wind got harder and the water in the streets began to run like rivers. I noticed the worried expressions on the faces of my father and mother, but I was too young to think much about it. Mother cooked dinner as usual, and we all ate. My oldest brother, Washington, came home from Alexander's Dry Goods Store across the street where he worked. He ate and went back to the store. Another young man, Robert Blossman, who later had a grocery store in Corpus Christi, came too.

In a little while Mr. and Mrs. Cahill, our neighbors, came with their two children. Some houses were now beginning to crack up. We could see lumber and pieces of furniture floating by our house. Mother and Mrs. Cahill talked in hushed voices, from fright. Then Mrs. Cahill remembered something and rushed back across the street to her house. We never saw her again. Soon the children were crying frantically and Mr. Cahill wanted to rush out in search of his wife. When he reached the door and the mist lifted for a moment, he looked across the street only to see where the house had been. It was gone.

My father and brother, Alex, got him back and shut the door. In a little while someone was banging on it. When father opened it, a Negro minister and his wife stood there dripping wet, their eyes big with fright. Father got them in and closed the door using all his strength to slam it against the wind. The wind was howling so now that it was necessary to shout when we talked to each other. No one seemed to have much to say. We just sat there wondering how long the house would stand. I went out on the porch once and saw Mr. Claude Crosby pass by in a big wooden wash tub. He waved to me and I waved back. He floated his craft into the depot, a few blocks down, and was saved.

Some time during the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Walker, friends of ours, and their seven children came to our house, which was one and one-half stories and seemed to be standing up all right. Then the German minister and his wife came in making 21 of us in the house. When the water began to rise in the calf pen I brought my two calves into the kitchen. By dark the water covered the floor of our house so we were forced upstairs. The house swayed and trembled in the gales, and timbers crashing against it sent window glass clattering over the floor and furniture. Even so, I took my two dogs, crawled into bed, covered my ears, and went to sleep.

It was about ten o'clock when my brother Alex, five years older than I, began to shake me. "Wake up, Alois," he said in a shaky voice. "The Old Yankee Hall is bumping against our house. It's likely to go off the blocks any minute. We've got to get out!"

"How?", I asked, looking around dazedly at the women and children huddled in a group over near the corner, faces white and drawn in the candle light.

"Through the chimney hole", he answered hurrying away to where my father and the other men stood near the hold left in the roof when the double chimney went earlier in the afternoon.

I jumped from bed, got my overcoat and put it on for the wind coming through the broken windows was very cold, and I went over to the chimney hole. My brother, Alex, had crawled through to the top of the house so that he could reach through to help the others, the women and children first, then the men. I handed my two dogs up first then followed. The wind was howling like a whole tribe of savages let loose at the same time, and the waves lashed the house with thunderous applause. Then with a mighty bang, the long building struck our house. After the impact the house gave a long quiver, like a dying animal, and slid slowly off its foundation, lopped over into the water.

I felt myself sliding from my perch on the eaves, then I was in the water. I went down, my heavy coat holding me like menacing hands. Finally when I came to surface there were my two dogs scrambling for a perch on top of my head. I pushed them away struggling at the same time to get out of my overcoat, for I knew if I didn't I would drown. At last I succeeded and began to swim with the tide. Waves lashed me with terrific force and timbers pounded me unmercifully, but I kept fighting. On and on I struggled, hour after hour, losing all count of time or place, just struggling automatically to keep alive. Then suddenly the wind shifted, and the tide that had been with me was now against me. I felt myself being dragged back out toward the bay. I knew if that happened it would be all over for me. I was powerless to do anything.

The rain stopped now and the moon came out. I remember that it looked as big as a wash tub to me. Then right in the streak of that moonlight, I saw some sort of raft, with what looked to be a box on top of it. I grabbed this raft and crawled aboard. I sank down onto what I thought was the box. It moved. I jumped to my feet. Then a voice said, "Is that you, Alois?". It was my brother Alex. He and Charlie Walker, a boy about my age, were on that raft, kneeling on their hands and knees to keep from being washed off. I had mistaken them for a box. The three of us floated on and on. Then we saw a boat. It was a fishing boat, a flat boat with two masts and two anchors. The anchors were dragging. We climbed aboard. It was 4 a.m. by the clock in the hold. We had been in the water since 10 p.m.

There were four bunks in that boat and beds had never looked so good to us. We got off what was left of our clothes. A pair of raggedy pants was all that covered my body. We got into bed. When we awoke the next morning the water had receded until the boat stood one and one-half miles inland. Bruised, bloody and shaken, we were just coming up the ladder to the deck when Johnny Rogers, owner of the boat, started down. He gave us one look, yelled and ran back. My brother called to him to wait, that we were not ghosts. We were a sorry looking bunch. We were cut and bleeding from head to toe. We had been beaten black and blue by the timbers and waves. I had one deep gash all the way across my chest and my feet were cut and swollen so that I could hardly walk.

Johnny got us to a camp nearby where they were feeding and caring for the wounded. A little farther down the beach were 50 dead people laid side by side awaiting identification. My own mother was one of these, but I didn't know that at the time. Of the twenty one persons at our house only we three boys were saved. My mother was later identified by her wedding ring. My father and sister were never found. My brother and Bob Blossman were both in Alexander's store, the building belonged to my father, where the current cut the foundation from under one corner and the building turned over, but they were both saved. Bob took me out and found me some clothes.

Although Indianola was badly wrecked, it was rebuilt, but it was never my home again. Mr. Renschel, my godfather, came to Indianola from Cuero and took me home with him.

(A few days after dictating this account in 1955, Mr. Coutret developed pneumonia and death followed shortly.)

from: an undated and unidentified clipping in Jewett Thayer Wilson's collection:

...learned of the history of the mysterious statue of Rene Cavalier, Seur de la Salle which used to guard the entrance to the Old Indianola Cemetery.

It was made of the old style shell concrete, causing some in the area to believe it dated back to the time of the town. It has succumbed to the ravages of hurricanes and vandals. Today only the pedestal and feet remain.

It is a piece of work by sculptress Nora Sweetland, now a Flour Bluff resident. A hurricane in the 1930's broke it in half. Later some one decapitated it and stole La Salle's head.

"The head was the best part of the work", she said last week. "Maury Maverick was mayor of San Antonio and he and Rep. Pat Jefferson were out on Mustang Island when a hurricane blew in. There was a lot of concern when they didn't show up for several days but they were found alive. It was shortly after this that Maury and Pat asked me to do the statue. Only there was no money to do it with. So we had to use what was there. We mixed the concrete in a trough.

"Then we had a problem with La Salle's sword. I couldn't do it in that type of concrete, so Pat Jefferson let me have an old sword that had been in his family for years.

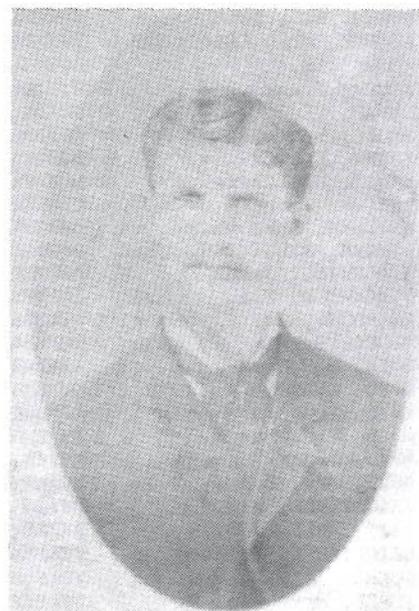

"A few years ago I read where La Salle's sword had been dug up in that area. I'd be willing to bet it was Pat Jefferson's sword, not La Salle's.

May 21, 1939: Tenth Annual Meeting of the Old Indianola Association featured the unveiling of the La Salle monument. At the 1937 meeting, a resolution was adopted urging the Texas Centennial Commission to erect a statue of La Salle on the site of Old Indianola which was undoubtedly the landing place of the famed French explorer in 1686. After untiring work, this effort was crowned with success and the Centennial Commission awarded $10,000 for the erection of the La Salle monument, thus further perpetuating the memory of that once famous city.

OBITUARIES

Many of these obituaries are taken from the Indianola Association Minute Book. Others came from scrapbooks belonging to Rebecca Rubert, Jewett Thayer Wilson and Peggy Ryan.

C. W. BAUER

January 18, 1934

VICTORIA: Funeral services will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Chaddock at 982 North Navarro Street Wednesday afternoon for Charles William Bauer, 81, a retired carpenter and boatman and former resident of ill-fated Indianola, who died at the Chaddock home this morning after an illness of three weeks. Dr. William T. Riviere of the Presbyterian church will conduct the services and interment will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

Mr. Bauer was born April 17, 1852, at sea while his parents, Edwin and Elizabeth Bauer were sailing to his country with a party of German colonists. His mother died at his birth and his father and five children settled at Indianola, he being the last member of the family.

After the storm of 1886, Mr. Bauer and his wife, formerly Miss Amelia Holzheuser, located in Victoria, and following the death of Mrs. Bauer, April 29, 1901, he moved to Port Lavaca and in 1924 to Palacios, resuming his residence here four years ago. At all these points he made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Chaddock. During his early residence here he engaged in the carpenter business and at Port Lavaca he followed the occupation of a boatman, which he had pursued at Indianola. He retired from active pursuit about 20 years ago. He was a kindly old gentleman and very highly esteemed.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Chaddock of this city, and four sons, Charles and Fred Bauer of Victoria, William Bauer of Houston. He also leaves 12 grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

CAPT. FRANK BAUER

May 26, 1954

Capt. Frank Bauer, 86, a pioneer resident and one of the county's most colorful citizens, died at 6 a.m. here Wednesday in the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Sterling. He had been in failing health for several months.

One of the few remaining survivors of the two hurricanes which raked Indianola in 1875 and 1886, Capt. Bauer only a few days ago attended the Indianola pilgrimage at the site of the old ghost town and witnessed the ceremonies from a wheel chair.

His parents were among the first German immigrants to settle in Indianola in the early 1840s, and Capt. Frank was born there. During his long residence in Port Lavaca, he has held practically every office from clerk to mayor.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. at Grace Episcopal Church, the Rev. Theodore Branch officiating. Burial will be in Lynnsouth Cemetery.

Survivors include three daughters, Mrs. Sterling, Mrs. H.C. Smith and Mrs. D. R. Whitmire, all of Port Lavaca; two sons, W. H. Bauer of Port Lavaca and R. James Bauer of Refugio; three brothers, Lawrence and Louis Bauer of Cuero and Henry Bauer of California; five sisters, Mrs. Louise Weiland, Mrs. Henrietta Boyle, Mrs. Laura Stevens and Mrs. Memma Tillman, all of California, and Mrs. Hazel Jacobs of Galveston.

MRS. FRANK BAUER

A pall of sadness was cast over the Christmas season when a loved resident Mrs. Frank Bauer passed away. Although Mrs. Bauer had been in ill health for several months, her death grieved and shocked the many friends who loved her. Death came quietly and peacefully as she was talking to her youngest child, Fae.

Elizabeth Weigand Bauer was born Nov. 14, 1873, at Indianola. Her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Doell was a pioneer of this county having come here from Germany when a child. Mrs. Bauer's maternal grandmother, contracted yellow fever and was buried at sea.

In Cuero, July 28, she was married to Capt. Frank Bauer, who has served our city in many capacities. They celebrated their 43rd anniversary last July. After living in Cuero, where two children, Frankie and Myrtle were born, the family moved to Edna. Here a son, James, was born. Later Capt. and Mrs. Bauer moved to Port Lavaca where William and Fae were born.

Mrs. Bauer led a good Christian life, having united with the Episcopal Church when a child.

About 20 years ago, Capt. Frank and Mrs. Bauer bought the Lavaca Hotel, remodeling and beautifying it, making it one of the most modern in this section.

Funeral services were held at Grace Episcopal Church with Rev. Robert MacCallum of Victoria and Rev. T.L. Trott of Goliad officiating.

Active pall bearers were: C.M. Curry, Chas. Boyd, S. Rohre, Louis and Ben Masserman and Dr. P.F. Montier.

She is survived by her husband; three daughters, Mrs. H.C. Smith, Mrs. Myrtle Walker, and Mrs. Fae Rylander and two sons, Dr. James Bauer of Refugio, and Capt. W.H. Bauer; six grandchildren; one brother John Weigand of Nebraska and three sisters, Mrs. Ed Graef, Mrs. Robt. Nixon and Mrs. Fred Heubaum all of San Antonio.

ROBERT BOYD

January 8, 1942

Last sad rites were held Saturday afternoon at 3:30 for Robert Boyd, 88 years, a pioneer citizen of this section, who passed away Thursday, January 8, 1942 at 2:45 p.m. Mr. Boyd, who had been in failing health the past few years, had become more ill the past two months, but was apparently much better Thursday. He had asked his daughters about the war news and was talking with them when the last hour came. Throughout his illness he bore his suffering with the patience and fortitude typical of his pioneer spirit.

Robert Boyd was born at Newcastle, England, July 17, 1853, the son of Walter Boyd and Jean Clark. His parents with him and his brothers, Tom and Jim, emigrated to the U. S. from Edinburg, Scotland, landing at Indianola in 1854. Soon after, his mother died and his father died during the yellow fever epidemic at Indianola.

He was living in Port Lavaca at the time when the Yankee gunboats bombarded the town. He and his brother, Jim were the first two outsiders to reach Indianola after the storm of '75 where they found the streets lined with the dead. They were able to save several lives bringing them to safety by swimming their horses across the bayou.

Mr. Boyd was one of the old Trail Drivers, first going up the trail in 1870. On one of these trips he roped an antelope. It was raining and cold so he removed his slicker and wrapped it around the antelope. He would rope wild cows and milk them to get food for the little animal, trying to keep it alive to bring it back home with him, but the antelope died before he reached home.

On April 4, 1877 he was united in marriage to Miss Lou Bonnot, who was reared in Indianola. To this union was born eight children, four boys and four girls, six of whom survive. One girl, Lou Annie passed away in infancy in 1888 and one boy, Robert Alfonso, died in 1908 at the age of 10 years. Mrs. Boyd preceded Mr. Boyd in death four years ago.

Funeral services were held at the residence with Rev. Sam Hill, Presbyterian minister of Victoria officiating. Muske Funeral Home was in charge of obsequies. Serving on the flower committee were Mrs. M. H. Bauer, Mrs. Pete Elder, Mrs. Mack Boyd, Miss Etalka Medig and Miss Florence Boyd.

Pall bearers were his six grandsons, Arthur and Douglas Smith, Jack Boyd all of Odem; Garland Heisiger of Meslaco, James McDonald of Victoria, Wilson Baylor of Odem.

Surviving are his children, Mrs. Belle Smith of Odem, Mrs. Daisy

Weisiger of Victoria, Miss Jo Boyd of Port Lavaca, Walter Boyd of Seadrift, John Boyd of Odea and Will Boyd of Oakland, Calif.; eleven grandchildren; seven great grandchildren; and three great, great grandchildren.

MRS. ROBERT BOYD

A pall of sadness was cast over the whole community, Thursday morning when it became known that a loved resident, Mrs. Robert Boyd, had passed away. Mrs. Boyd had been confined to her bed for the past six months with a serious illness, and no hope was held for her recovery. Sunday she seemed in better spirits and was able to go to the breakfast table. Later in the day she fell and fractured her hip, this injury hastening her death.

Lulu Bonnet was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bonnot and was born in Galveston, Tex. March 17, 1859. When still a child she moved with her parents to Old Indianola, where her mother was the proprietor of a hotel and grocery store. She had a vivid memory of the storm of '75, and many other interesting facts about the once famous seaport. It was in Indianola that she was united in marriage to Robert Boyd on April 4, 1877. The couple received the blessings of living to rear their six children to become fine men and women and of celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary last April 4.

Funeral services were conducted by Father D. M. Buckley at 8 o'clock, Friday morning at the Catholic Church, with requiem mass sung by the Oblate Choir from St. Anthony's College from San Antonio. Interment was made in Lynnworth Cemetery.

Six of her grandsons: Garland Weisiger of Kerrville, Wilson Baylor, J. Lane, Arthur and Boyd Smith of Odea, Douglas Boyd of San Diego, California acted as pall bearers.

Surviving are her husband and six children: Mrs. Belle Smith, Odea; Miss Jo Boyd, Port Lavaca; Walter Boyd, Seadrift; Mrs. Daisy Weisiger, Kerrville; John Boyd, Odea; Will Boyd, Houston; eleven grandchildren, four great-grandchildren, 1 brother, John F. Burrell of Houston, Texas.

MRS. LOUISA BRADEN
December 23, 1949

Last rites for Mrs. Louisa Braden were held at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church in Port Lavaca Friday, December 23, with a Requiem Mass.

Mrs. Braden who was 86 years old on December 10 of this year died in Seguin, Texas, after an illness of two weeks.

Louisa Braden was born at Copano, Texas, on December 10, 1863. She was the last of ten children born to a pioneer family who settled in Calhoun County over one-hundred years ago. Her parents, Henry and Josephine Smith, moved to Indianola, Texas, before the storm of 1875. After the storm of 1875, the family moved to their ranch at Alligator Head, known as Port O'Connor.

On February 20, 1884, she was married to George Braden of Bernardo Prairie, Texas. The couple moved to that place after the marriage and seven children were born to them. In 1898, the family moved to Port Lavaca where Mrs. Braden lived until 1939. At that time she moved to Seguin where she resided until her death.

MRS. THERESA BUDE

October 7, 1933

CUERO: Death came with slight warning early Saturday morning to claim another former resident of Old Indianola and prominent Cuero woman, Mrs. Theresa Budde, 86, who died after an illness of only three days in Houston. The aged woman had gone to Houston for a brief visit. She became ill Tuesday and was unable to withstand the ravages of pneumonia which developed Thursday.

He preceded his wife in death.

She leaves three sons and one daughter to mourn her death. They are, E. G. Budde of Robstown; Louis Budde, Jr., of Houston; C. M. Budde of Cuero and Mrs. Annie Lee Bourke of Yoakum.

CARRIE BUSCHICK

September 17, 1939

Mrs. Carrie Kleinecke Buschick, wife of Richard Buschick of Runge, died in a Cuero hospital thirty minutes after her arrival in an ambulance which had rushed here from Runge when she became desperately ill. Her death came as a terrible shock to her family and friends in this city and at Runge few of whom knew of her critical illness until the news of her death was received.

Funeral services will be held from the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary Kleinecke this afternoon and at St. Mark's Lutheran Church at 4:15 with Rev. John Kern, the pastor, officiating. Interment will follow in Hillside Cemetery under the direction of E. J. Freund. Six nephews will act as pall bearers; these being Louis, Fritz, W. A., J. C., Robert and Dewey Schorre.

Mrs. Buschick was born in Indianola on November 19, 1861, the daughter of H. S. Kleinecke and Mary R. Kleinecke, natives of Germany, who were among the first settlers of the old seaport town. She spent her childhood and girlhood there and with her family passed through the vicissitudes of the storm of 1875. Three years later the family moved to Cuero, and it was here on January 1st, 1894, that she was united in marriage to Richard Buschick, the wedding being solemnized at St. Mark's Church where today funeral rites are to be held. For the 37 years since Mr. and Mrs. Buschick have made their home in Runge. In recent years Mrs. Buschick has been in failing health, being a sufferer from Bright's Disease.

She is survived by her husband, her aged mother, one brother, Dr. Louis Kleinecke, in addition to a number of nephews and nieces.

ALICE RYON CLAMPITT

Alice Ryon Clampitt, a resident of El Campo for 48 years and one of the few survivors of the Indianola hurricane of 1875, died at her home here Sunday at the age of 90 years.

Because so many of her friends and her mother and sister were lost in the storm, Mrs. Clampitt seldom talked of the tragic hurricane. On occasional visits back to the historic spot, she would point out to her family the familiar landmarks. Some of them, the foundations of the courthouse and cistern, with the waves of Lavaca Bay now lapping its fallen stonework, at one time stood a block from the water's edge. Several concrete cisterns in which the inhabitants accumulated their fresh water supply and the old railroad grade leading out to the long ago destroyed wharf, were some of the vanishing landmarks she pointed out.

For thirty years Indianola was the most important port of the west Texas coast, even contending with Galveston for the position of the most important seaport in Texas. From this port more cattle were shipped than from any other port in the world; and here, where there were a good many stables and corrals to care for the freight emanating from the place, Mrs. Clampitt's father, a saddlemaker, conducted his business.

At the time of the storm, Mrs. Clampitt was a girl of 20. She saved her life by floating all night in an attic of an old building which was wedged between two other structures.

The next day she was rescued with a rope thrown to her and which she tied to a rafter, sliding down it. A 110-mile wind accompanied the 8-foot tidal wave which submerged the land. When the wind changed from the Southeast, to the Northwest, it became so terrific in force that the water which had blown in for four days was blown back to sea in two hours.

Back of the town, water and wind created a 17-mile long raft of pianos, dishes, dead and maimed people, horses, ships, houses, and other material. After this, many inhabitants, including the family of Mrs. Clampitt, moved away, and in 1886 after the second hurricane, fire and water forced the complete abandonment of the little city.

Mrs. Clampitt's mother and a small child of the family were lost. Saved from the storm's fury, besides Mrs. Clampitt, were her father, one brother, John H. F., who died 38 years ago, and a sister, Adoline, who died in 1937.

Mrs. Clampitt was a member of the Old Indianola Association, attending the meetings regularly.

Born in Seguin July 27, 1854, she was the daughter of John F. Ryon, a native of Ireland, and Mary Smith Ryon. After the hurricane, the family moved to Cuero, where she married George W. Clampitt, an employee of the Southern Pacific Railroad, Dec. 29, 1884. In 1886, they moved to El Campo where she had lived since. Her husband passed away in 1911.

To this union were born six sons and one daughter. A son Dick died in 1914, and the daughter, Alice, died in 1900 at the age of three years.

Surviving her are five sons, R. Clampitt of Houston, captain of Company E. Seventh Battalion, Texas Defense Guards; W.A. Clampitt of Kingsville, Essie Clampitt of San Antonio, G.W. Clampitt of Galveston, and D.E. Clampitt of Beaumont; three grandsons, two of them in the service of their country; three granddaughters and three great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the First Presbyterian Church, with Rev. Walter Bennett conducting the last rites. Interment was made beside others of the family in O.D.W.S. Garden of Memories.

Pallbearers were P.C. Owens, John Phillips, L.E. Boudreaux, Tom Melcher, W. Harris and J. Evans.

THOMAS M. COLSTON
August 14, 1932

Tom Colston is dead; this expression will cause many a heart in South Texas a pang of sorrow. Many citizens in this community owe to him a debt of gratitude for through him the foundation of their education was acquired.

Death relieved him of his earthly trials Sunday evening at his home in Kingsville where he has lived for fully a quarter of a century. An octogenarian he was active physically and mentally within a very short time of his death. At his bedside at his passing were his dear wife, nee Miss Mattie Simpson whom he married when a resident of Cuero, his son, Rawleigh, and two daughters, Misses Janie and Hattie Bell - the other son, T. M. Jr., is a resident of California and was unable to be with his father when he died. The funeral is to take place Monday evening and several of his old friends and former pupils from Cuero plan to attend.

Prof. Colston as he was generally known, was a native of "The Old Dominion" but came to Texas, a few years after the civil war, as a young man locating in Indianola where for several years he taught school. Later he taught in Victoria a few years and located in Cuero in the latter seventies where for many years he taught and was the first superintendent of the public schools when that system of teaching was introduced in Cuero.

Shortly after leaving Cuero he was elected superintendent of the Kingsville school where he moved and has resided there ever since. Sincere sympathy is extended the family in their great bereavement by all of their many Delitt county friends in which the Record force, many of them his former pupils, joins.

MRS. LENA DICKERSON
January 6, 1935

Death came late Sunday to claim another former resident of Old Indianola and one of this city's best known women, Mrs. Lena Dickerson, 73, who passed away at her home.

Services are to be held from the home Tuesday afternoon with the Rev. W.A. McLeod, Presbyterian minister, officiating. Interment will be in Hillside under the direction of E.J. Freund.

Mrs. Lena Dickerson was born in Old Indianola on March 11, 1861, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Schnaubert.

She came to this city with her parents following the storm which destroyed the little seaport town, and when a young girl was married to Charles Dickerson. To this happy union four sons and one daughter were born; the four sons remaining to survive. Death of the daughter, Charlice, was a blow from which Mrs. Dickerson had never fully recovered.

Surviving are four sons: Walter, Charles, William, and Adolph. In addition, a number of grand sons and grand daughters remain to mourn her passing.

ELIZABETH ANNA ELBERT

Many old friends joined in the services at the home and followed the remains to Hillside Cemetery where interment took place, under the direction of E.J. Freund. Dr. W.A. McLeon, pastor of the Presbyterian church officiated.

The casket was borne to its last resting place by Walter Reiffert, Thomas M. Stell, Jack Langford, Gus Schorre, Ernest Maynard, and J.L. Mueller.

Miss Elbert was seventy-two years old at the time of her demise and for a half century had made her home in this city, for the past 10 or more years residing with her sister, Miss Thekla, like herself unmarried, at the family home on Broadway. THERESA FRANKE
October 28, 1934

Services were held from the home with Dr. W. A. McLeod officiating. E. J. Freund was in charge of interment in Hillside.

Miss Theresa Franke was born January 1st, 1856 at Indianola, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Franke, German immigrants.

She was one of seven children, four of whom survive. They are: Mrs. J. R. Drake and Mrs. Will Drake of South Carolina, Miss Minnie Franke of Cuero and Louis Franke of Cuero. Three brothers preceded her in death.

Miss Franke came to Cuero with her family following the storm of 1886 which destroyed the seaport town of Indianola, and since that time had made Cuero her home.

GEORGE FREUND

George Robert Freund, 66, father of E. J. Freund of Cuero and former resident of Old Indianola, died at the home of his son here shortly after 1 o'clock today following an illness of nearly five months.

Funeral services are to be held in this city Tuesday or Wednesday. Definite arrangements have not yet been made.

George Freund was born in the old city of Indianola on November 10th, following the '86 storm which demolished completely the little seaport town.

For many years Freund was engaged in business in Cuero. Twelve years ago he moved to San Antonio where he held a responsible position until forced to retire due to ill health.

He was married in 1896 to Miss Mary Mueller. One son, E. J. Freund, prominent Cuero business man, was born to this union, and with his mother remains to mourn the passing of this good man.

Reverend Oscar Drauch, Lutheran minister of San Antonio, and Reverend John Kern, Lutheran minister of this city are to officiate at services. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery. Funeral services will be held from the Lutheran Church.

MRS. JOHN FREUND, 85, IS LAID TO REST IN HILLSIDE CEMETERY
January 4, 1933

Mrs. John Freund, 85-year-old Cuero woman, widow of a Confederate veteran, and a survivor of the disastrous storm which erased the thriving city of Indianola back in 1886, was laid to rest in Hillside cemetery Friday afternoon following funeral services from the Freund Funeral Home at 3:30. Rev. John Kern officiated.

Born in the port city of Indianola in 1847, this well known woman spent thirty nine years of her life in the thriving little city before being forced to flee with other residents when the storm of 1886 devastated the countryside.

With her husband she came to Cuero and since that time had made her home here. Her husband, a Confederate veteran, and until his death one of this city's best known residents, preceded her in death 11 years ago.

Only one child, a daughter, Mrs. Willie Sigmund, and one grandchild, Walter Sigmund, survive as members of her immediate family.

Hundreds of Cuero citizens joined in last rites for the pioneer woman at 3:30 Friday afternoon.

Pall bearers were: Paul Cornbluth, Otto Moeller, Thos. Stell, H. Currlin, M. L. Mueller and Joe Pannen.

ALFREDA REUSS FROBESSE
November 23, 1931

Hundreds of friends and loved ones joined this afternoon in paying a last tribute to Mrs. Alfreda Frobese, widow of William Frobese, and one of Cuero's oldest and best loved citizens, who passed away at her home on South Line Street Sunday morning. Death came to end months of illness which became suddenly critical a week ago, the end having been expected since Thursday night when she suffered a stroke of paralysis.

Funeral services were held from the family home this afternoon with Dr. W.A. McLeon, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church officiating and Rev. John Kern, Lutheran minister, assisting. Interment followed in Hillside Cemetery in the family burial plot under the direction of E.J. Freund.

The casket was borne to its last resting place by the following close friends: Emil Reiffert, Berhold Schiwetz, Fred Mugee, Newton Crain, J.C. Kossbiel, Dr. Duckworth, Fritz Koehler and Wm. G. Stubbeman.

Alfreda Reuss Frobese was the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Reuss, who were among the earliest and most prominent citizens of old Indianola, where she was born on October 12, 1854. Her father was one of the outstanding physicians and surgeons of South Texas in those early pioneer days and he served with distinction in the Army of the Confederacy, commanding the troop of soldiers raised in Indianola and Calhoun County. In the thriving little seaport city, Alfreda Reuss spent a happy childhood and girlhood and was just entering young womanhood when the storm of 1875 partially destroyed the town. Dr. Reuss then joined other Indianolians and brought his family to Cuero which had been founded only two years prior. Here the home was established and the family at once became identified with the life and interests of this community, associations being formed which have been strengthened through the years.

In 1883 the deceased became the wife of William Frobese, senior member of the firm of M. Runge & Co., which had been moved to Cuero from Indianola after the '74 storm. She then assumed the happy duty of tending the five children who had been left motherless several years previously by the death of Mr. Frobese's first wife; and they were never made to feel that there was a difference after her own children were born, the perfect and happy family life that existed in the Frobese home being known throughout the community. The gentle, kindly spirit of the mother pervaded that family group and evoked a love and devotion that broadening family ties and outside interests of her children, failed in any degree to diminish. Since the death of Mr. Frobese in 1911, her interests had centered more and more in her home, in her children and grandchildren. And even when death was approaching she found supreme happiness and comfort in knowing that all of these were at her bedside.

MRS. FRANK GONZALEZ
July 20, 1962

Mrs. Frank Gonzalez, 86, of Indianola, died Friday at 6:30 p.m. in Calhoun Memorial Hospital following a long illness.

Born in Old Town, adjacent to Indianola, April 9, 1876, she was the daughter of the late Joe and Mary Saegner Mendez. Mendez, born in Madrid, Spain, in 1839, was one of the two camelers in charge of the third cargo of camels purchased in the Near East and imported through Indianola at the instigation of then Sec. of War Jefferson Davis as an experiment in transportation for the U.S. Army in Texas. Her death leaves only one more direct connection with that colorful incident in Indianola history - her sister Mrs. August Zimmerman. Mrs. Gonzalez' father-in-law, the late John Gonzalez, native of the Canary Islands, shared the responsibility of the third shipment of camels with Mendez. The two men settled near Indianola and their descendants have continued to live here for over 100 years.

Mrs. Gonzalez, a life-long resident of Old Town, remembered the devastating hurricane of 1886 which completed the destruction of Indianola - then the largest port in Texas. She continued to live in Indianola until Hurricane Carla destroyed her home. Construction on a new home was begun immediately and she continued to live there with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sachrison, until her death.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. from Richardson Chapel with the Rev. John Green, pastor of Salem Lutheran Church, officiating. Burial will be in the Gonzalez family cemetery adjacent to the Gonzalez property near Old Town under direction of Richardson Funeral Home.

Survivors include a son, C.H. Gonzalez of Freeport; two daughters, Mrs. Sachrison and Mrs. Adolph Yonnick of San Antonio; a sister, Mrs. August Zimmerman of Indianola; and three grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Frank Medis, Dan Zimmerman, Arthur Barr, W.B. Neill, Frank Heinroth and C.W. Newlin.

FRANCIS E. HUCK

November 7, 1953

VICTORIA: Francis E. Huck, 98, believed to be the oldest resident of Victoria County, was buried Saturday.

Mr. Huck was one of the few survivors of two tropical hurricanes that destroyed Indianola, the once thriving seaport on Matagorda Bay.

He weathered the first as a boy in Indianola and the second as a man in Victoria.

In 1875, Indianola was a prosperous city of 5000 and was county seat of Calhoun County as well as port of entry for Matagorda Bay. It was served by steamships running to Galveston, Havana, New Orleans and New York.

On September 7, 1875, Indianola was wrecked and an estimated 1500 of its inhabitants were killed by a tropical hurricane and tidal wave.

Between 2500 and 3000 people remained to rebuild the town. Of these, between 300 and 400 died in the second hurricane, accompanied by a disastrous fire, August 17, 1886.

The ruins were abandoned and the railroad was rerouted through a new county seat, Port Lavaca.

Victoria was damaged by the same blow that completed destruction of Indianola.

Mr. Huck was among the last to leave the community. He loaded his family on a flatcar and moved to Victoria.

He recalled standing on the rear platform of the train and watching section hands close in to tear up the tracks.

MRS. ROSELIA KINLAY
December 23, 1914

CUERO: Mrs. Roselia Nugent Kinlay, who departed this life at her home in South Cuero, on Wednesday evening last, was born at Tasa, Ireland, on October 25, 1837 and was therefore at the time of her death, 77 years, 1 month and 28 days old.

Her first visit to America was in the year 1852, when she crossed to this side to become to guest of the household of her uncle, Patrick Nugent, at New Orleans. The following year she removed to old Indianola, where she joined her sister, Mrs. McLaughlin. On April 9th, 1853, she married at Indianola to Samuel Kinlay, a rising contractor of that city, whose death occurred in this city some years ago, after the family had been long time residents of Cuero.

Mr. and Mrs. Kinlay continued to reside at Indianola until after the great storm of 1886, when they removed to Cuero, and since that year have called this city their home. To the union were born eleven children, six of whom survive as follows: Mesdames W. J. Ryan and Wm. Budge, Misses Alfreda and May Kinlay, Louis and Joe Kinlay, all of whom make Cuero their home, except Joe Kinlay, who now resides at Little Rock, Arkansas.

Funeral services were held at the Catholic church by Rev. Father Hendricks and interment was made in the Hillside Cemetery, Saturday afternoon.

A co-incidence for the day was that news was received here on the day of the funeral, of the death of Joseph Kinlay, a brother of Samuel Kinlay at his home in England. The death occurred in October, but the news only reached the loved ones here, as they were laying to rest the remains of their beloved mother.

SAM KINLAY
May 2, 1898

Mr. Sam Kinlay is no more. One of Cuero's good citizens has gone from us forever, and a family surrounded by friends is wraped in sorrow.

B. C. KLEINECKE
April 24, 1933

A flower covered mound in Hillside cemetery Monday afternoon marked the resting place of another former resident of Old Indianola, and early citizen of Cuero, August C. Kleinecke, 67 year old Cuero man, who died at his home on East Main street early Sunday morning.

Services were held from the Lutheran church Monday afternoon with Rev. John Kern officiating, and interment was in Hillside Cemetery by the side of his aged mother who passed to her reward only two months ago.

Sudden death claimed August Kleinecke Sunday morning. Shortly before 6 a.m. his brother, Dr. Louis Kleinecke, heard a noise, followed by a groan, in his brother's room. He rushed downstairs to find the deceased lying near his bed. Before medical aid could be summoned, the deceased had breathed his last. Death was not unexpected, however.

August C. Kleinecke was born in the little seaport town of Indianola on September 7, 1865. For thirteen years he lived with his mother and father in the little town, and watched it grow into a thriving seaport city. He and his family were among the survivors of the first storm in 1873, and three years later, moved to Cuero to take up residence.

Kleinecke was a saddler by trade and served as an apprentice under John Stratton, one of the earliest and best known saddlers in this section of Texas. He became skilled in his work and later went into the employ of R. C. Flick.

For the past several years Kleinecke has not been actively engaged, and had lived with his mother and her happy family on East Main street. The death of his mother two months ago proved a sad blow, and that fact coupled with an ailment from which he had suffered for many years, probably hastened his death, which was not unexpected.

A stroke of paralysis was responsible for the death of Miss Mathilda Lindemann, a 69-year-old resident of Cuero, who died in a local hospital at 8:45 Monday morning. The aged woman suffered a stroke some time ago, and was found unconscious at her home in South Cuero, where she lived alone. The attending physician at that time expressed little hope for her recovery.

Miss Lindemann had made Cuero her home for some 40 years, coming to Cuero with her parents a short time after the storm of 1875 which battered Old Indianola. She had lived alone for the past many years. No immediate members of family remain.

Funeral services are to be held from the Freund funeral chapel Tuesday afternoon. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery with Rev. John Kern officiating.

MRS. ERNESTINE WILHELM MAYNE
October 4, 1931

In the death Saturday morning of Mrs. Ernestine Wilhelm Mayne there passed from the scene another of those fine pioneer women who played a part in the making of this community. One of that band of early settlers who founded Indianola, Mrs. Mayne's ninety-odd years spanned the history not only of Cuero but of its parent city, the old seaport town destroyed by hurricane in the storms of 1875 and 1886.

Mrs. Mayne had passed her ninety-third milestone and was one of Cuero's oldest citizens. Until recently she had remained wonderfully active and had enjoyed unusual good health for one of her years, her mind being keenly alert and her memory as retentive as in her youth, her vivid remembrance of the old days spent in Indianola having been of great assistance in the compilation of the history of the old seaport.

The deceased was born in Romheld, Saxony, on June 6th, 1836, coming to this country with her parents when only three years old. The family was among the group of German immigrants who landed at old Indian Point and founded the settlement that preceded the establishment of the town of Indianola. On April 23, 1854, she was united in marriage to Thomas Mayne, a native of Devonshire, England, record of the marriage written in his hand-writing on a water stained page of the old family Bible being still treasured by the family. The husband was drowned in the storm of 1875 and the Bible was recovered afterward and brought with other family relics to Cuero which had just been established and which has been their home since.

Mrs. Mayne was the mother of ten children four of whom survive her, one daughter, Mrs. Salles, having died little more than a year ago. The surviving children are two sons, Tom and John Mayne of Cuero; two daughters, Mrs. E. Brumlieu of Houston and Mrs. Gus Simon of Cuero. In addition there are left to mourn her passing twenty grandchildren and forty-three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services are to be held from the old family home on Center Street Sunday afternoon, interment following in Hillside cemetery under the direction of E. J. Freund. Rev. John Kern, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, will officiate.

Monday, Feb. 28, our community was saddened by the news of the death of Calhoun County's oldest citizen, Mrs. William Moore, who passed away at 6 o'clock that morning.

Although Grandma Moore, as she was affectionately known, had been confined to her bed for over a year, due to a broken thigh, her last illness lasted only a few weeks.

Frances Weisenberg Moore was born October 18, 1845 and as a young girl came to Old Indianola where at the age of 17 she was united in marriage to William Moore. To this union six children were born. The surviving children are Frank of New Gulf, Henry D. of California and Miss Katherine of Houston.

Grandma Moore passed thru both the '75 and '86 storms at Indianola. Following the disastrous storm of '86 that wiped out the old coast town, Mrs. Moore moved to Port Lavaca where she resided until her death.

At the time of her death Grandma Moore had reached the ripe old age of 92 years, 4 months and 10 days. Up until the time she suffered a fall and broke her thigh, Grandma had performed all of her own household duties. With the passing of this respected citizen the community has suffered a great loss for she was an inspiration to those who visited her. After a visit, one realized how much they had to be thankful for and the difficulties of life seemed a little easier to bear.

MRS. ARCELIE MARIE MUTI
September 30, 1933

A flower covered mound in Hillside cemetery marked the last resting place of another Old Indianola citizen following funeral services for Mrs. Arcelie Marie Muti, 89 year old Cuero woman, early resident of this city and a former citizen of the little seaport town of long ago.

Death claimed this well known woman shortly Saturday evening after an illness of some five months.

She came to Texas during the Civil War with her family, consisting of her mother and father and five sisters and brothers. The family settled in Old Indianola and for many years made that little seaport city their home.

United in marriage to John Muti shortly after moving to Indianola, they came to Cuero to make their home when this town first started. GEORGE ZIMMERMAN

Death Thursday evening claimed another from the fast thinning ranks of Old Indianola settlers when George Zimmerman, 61 year old Cuero citizen, passed to his reward after an illness of several weeks.

Zimmerman, who for many years served as engineer at the E. Leonardt ice plant, has lived a quiet life at his home on South Line street, was a native of the once prosperous little seaport town coming to this city in 1875, following the storm which destroyed Indianola.

Funeral services are to be held Saturday afternoon from the residence and interment will be in Hillside cemetery. Rev. John Kern, Lutheran minister, is to officiate and E. J. Freund will be in charge of burial arrangements.

He leaves to mourn his passing his wife, Mrs. George Zimmerman of Cuero, and one sister, Mrs. Sophie Pholcken of Galveston.

Pall bearers will be: Ed Heisler, Walter Hildebrandt, Tom Mayne, Irvin Binz, Clarence Sigmund, and Charles Henneke.
