A Note from Rick: Markets were weaker at TLA this week. The slaughter market took the biggest hit with both cows and steers being $3-$5 lower. Bull calves also dropped compared to the previous weeks, but still sold well in relation to feeder prices. Dairy cattle remained the same with more and more of the average to below average quality going to slaughter. This is one of the reasons that slaughter cow prices are struggling. There are just too many cattle on the market right now. August was a tough month and I think we are all ready to say..... Goodbye, August
