The theme for the Second Annual Human Rights Exhibition dealt with human trafficking. The concept was applied to a broad range of topics including, but not limited to, sex trafficking and sex tourism, prostitution, mail-order brides; sweatshops, farm and domestic labor, child labor including child soldiers. The exhibition was on display in conjunction with the Human Trafficking Conference sponsored by South Texas College's Women's Studies Committee. The exhibition was divided among two galleries located both in the United States and Mexico. One was at South Texas College, McAllen, Texas and the second was in Progreso, Mexico at The Progreso Gallery.
