Laudato si'

Welcome to another installment of our study of the the challenges we face in our environment and the journey Pope Francis is inviting us along. We need to take our responsibility and enter into this journey. We are to be the salt of the earth. Let us keep that salt from becoming toxic.

Laudato Si'

It would hardly be helpful to describe symptoms without acknowledging the human origins of the ecological crisis... n 101

THE HUMAN ROOTS OF THE ECOLOGICAL CRISIS

101. It would hardly be helpful to describe symptoms without acknowledging the human origins of the ecological crisis. A certain way of understanding human life and activity has gone awry, to the serious detriment of the world around us. Should we not pause and consider this? At this stage, I propose that we focus on the dominant technocratic paradigm and the place of human beings and of human action in the world.

I. TECHNOLOGY: CREATIVITY AND POWER

102. Humanity has entered a new era in which our technical prowess has brought us to a crossroads. We are the beneficiaries of two centuries of enormous waves of change: steam engines, railways, the telegraph, electricity, automobiles, airplanes, chemical industries, modern medicine, information technology and, more recently, the digital revolution, robotics, biotechnologies and nanotechnologies. It is right to rejoice in these advances and to be excited by the immense possibilities which they continue to open up before us, for "science and technology are wonderful products of a God-given human creativity".^[81] The modification of nature for useful purposes has distinguished the human family from the beginning; technology itself "expresses the inner tension that impels man gradually to overcome material limitations".^[82] Technology has remedied countless evils which used to harm and limit human beings. How can we not feel gratitude and appreciation for this progress, especially in the fields of medicine, engineering and communications? How could we not acknowledge the work of many scientists and engineers who have provided alternatives to make development sustainable?

We encourage you always to read these texts as an introduction to Pope Francis' exhortation and to enter into the wider discussion about our present and future. Next week we will look into the genuine Catholic solutions our social justice teachings guide us through, things like the Common Good.
