Susan Scher, host of In Other Words... talk show

Susan has been a performer of one sort or another for most of her life. She is or has been an actor, voice-over artist, singer, and talk show host, for starters. She is the President and CEO of In Other Words..., which encompasses all of that, plus editing, writing, and ghostwriting.

As a writer, look for her memoir, coming out soon, called, The Complete Guide to Self-Sabotage: or How to Shoot Yourself in the Foot. She also has a series of ebook coming out soon (yes, the whole series at once).

Her guests have covered a broad range, including authors, founders of NGOs, actors, singers, and entrepreneurs. Basically, anything she find interesting and thinks her guests will, too, but – true to the show’s name – always with a slightly different slant. Previous guests have been the guy who invented the magnetic strip on the back of credit cards, a guy who has invented so many life-altering medical devices that you almost certainly know someone who owes their life to him, a Country star, and on and on.

Having lived in so many different places and worked at so many different professions (most not listed here) has prepared her perfectly for being a talk show host. No matter what her guest is talking about, she can find a way to connect to it and to communicate it to her listeners. Her casual, just-talking-over-coffee style appeals to listeners and immediately sets her guests at ease. In Other Words... broadcasts live on Tuesday mornings at 9:00am eastern time.
