

The Houston Veterinary Practice Managers Association's Code of Ethics

The purpose of the HVPMA Code of Ethics sets the standards of integrity, professionalism and confidentiality that all members of the Association shall be bound to respect.

I pledge myself to:

- Continue learning and growing in my position, always striving to be the best version of myself.
- Be a positive representative of the profession of veterinary practice management through mindful actions and words.
- Actively strengthen our local community by building and maintaining relationships with local managers.
- Let passion, integrity and moral responsibility for the profession be the guiding light in all that I pursue. Thus enabling me to shine brightly for my practice owner, team members, my clients and their pets.
- Operate with confidentiality, maintaining secrecy for those trade secrets my owner holds near and dear. Any information shared is done so with permission from my owner and with the understanding that you are trying to educate and lend expertise where it might be needed.
