

Ms. Corazon Guevara de la Paz
Executive Director
Health Action Information Network
(HAIN)

Ms. de la Paz has more than two decades of professional experience in development-related work, covering a wide range of specialization acquired from both public sector and international development organizations. She has both academic preparation and field operations specialization on Comprehensive Sexuality Education, Disaster Risk Reduction and Management (DRRM) and Climate Change Adaptation and Mitigation, (for natural and manmade disasters, among OCD Regional offices, government line agencies and LGUs, non-government organizations that includes themes such as psychosocial development work, program development, policy advocacy, gender, social inclusivity, monitoring and evaluation. She has experience in leadership management and development programming for local governance with focus on needs assessment and capacity development and has vast experience in research and baseline studies, program development and project conceptualization for both local, regional and international organizations on topics like post disaster needs assessment, gender and social inclusivity, population, health and environment. She has consistent exemplary performance, working across teams to deliver results in response to clients' needs.