

Stonich Residence

The addition of a new Accessory Dwelling Unit necessitated the development of a Master Plan to guide the development of site work over time.

Through a series of meetings, JB Fieldworks was able to facilitate the creation of conceptual alternatives that studied various patterns for circulation and activation of their very long and narrow lot.

In the end, a scheme that divides the space into discrete outdoor rooms each with a unique identity and use was selected. JB Fieldworks then worked with the Stonichs to plan for the phased implementation of their vision.
