

The Dharma Horses & their stories

Majic

Majic worked seven and a half years in Equine Assisted Psychotherapy. When the program he had worked for moved out of state, Majic needed a new home. He came to Katharine and DH pretty much burned out and very much agoraphobic. He began healing and teaching and soon was a happy horse again.

Last year, he had an unfortunate laminitic incident and became profoundly lame. With proper supplementation and hoof care, he was recovering, but Majic became depressed. We fostered him to a home where he could be with an old (equine) friend and Majic is now healing properly and feeling cheerful again.

Majic has taught us how important "state of mind" is in the healing process.

Majic has taught us to remain positive.

Majic has taught us to be masters of our own emotions.
