Transforming Early Childhood Pedagogies Through a Child-Oriented Focus in Plural Societies

South Africa's experiences in transforming pedagogies to address pluralism in early childhood care and education settings, has great relevance for Canada, as well as for Africa.

Hasina Banu Ebrahim, PhD

UNESCO Co-Chair in Early Childhood Education, Care and Development
University of South Africa (UNISA)

Tuesday September 19, 2017

6:30pm

University of Victoria, Bob Wright Centre, Room A104

Dr. Hasina Ebrahim holds a PhD in Early Childhood and is a Professor in the Department of Early Childhood Education at the University of South Africa and an honorary professor at the University of Free State.

She served as the Deputy President and President of the South African Research Association for Early Childhood Education. Her research focuses on early childhood at the margins with special reference to practice, policy and teacher development. As such she has been extensively involved in the development of the South African and Seychelles early childhood curriculum, teacher development policies and alternative models to centre-based provision in the early years. She has numerous national and international publications.

She was recently appointed UNESCO Co-Chair in Early Childhood Education, Care and Development. She joins Dr. Alan Pence of UVic who has held the Chair position since 2008. Dr. Ebrahim is in Victoria as a Lansdowne Lecture Presenter – for information about that event, go to: <http://bit.ly/2w8sLmv>.
