From our past...

I received a note from: Diana 'Nicholson' Taylor: 'Although my parents moved me to Texas my junior year, I spent all my education in Hutch until then. I graduated from Waco HS in '61, met Don that fall a North Texas University & we got married in June after his graduation. Hutch has always been my HOME town' Diana Nicholson Taylor

I asked if there was anyone from class she had kept in contact with, she wrote back: 'No one in years. I did try to contact my old friend and neighbor Linda Novinger, to no avail.

I looked on classmates to see if could a find an old pic. to jog my memory...to no avail. (I shared Linda's home #)

I am trying to visualize long blonde hair?...oh well, I wasn't among any of popular crowd so as you would remember me.

I was in the 1959 & 60 yearbooks, a majorette in the band & a member of the Accapella Choir. My hair was short back then as that was the style'.

Well I looked her up in yr book, I did remember her. See pics clipped from yr book:

Downtown Bike Station will help encourage more people to ride

Hutchinson Publik Bike Station: Below: Randall said that Hutchinson's first public bike check out station hopefully will be open by June, located on the north side of Fire Station No. 1 at Avenue B and Walnut Street. There will also be a 24-hour air and tool station located outside the building. - Sandra J. Milburn/The Hutchinson News

Jennifer Randall and Dan Brizendine are back at it, trying to pump some air into the tires of a movement to get more people riding bicycles in Hutchinson.

By June, they hope to open a Public Bike Station in a garage at the back of Fire Station No. 1 at Avenue B and Walnut, with seven to 10 new bicycles available to check out and ride for free, parts available at cost for those needing to repair their own bike and a 24-hour air and tool station.

Although the bikes will still be free to ride, the Bike Station will require borrowers to show identification or swipe a credit card to create some accountability and incentive to return the bikes, she said.

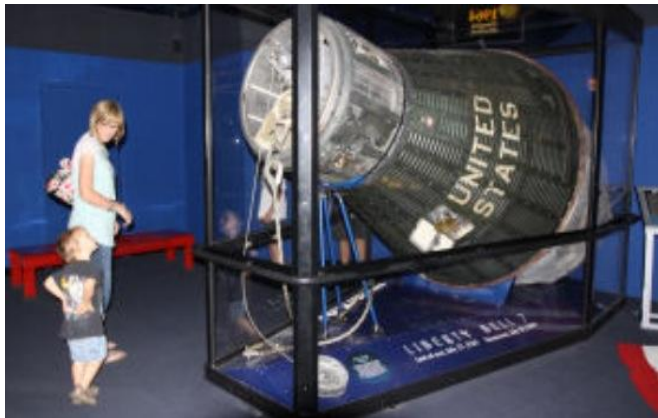

"The earlier concept I wanted to be this, but it was all I could do then," she said. "It was kind of fun and whimsical. But it was always just part of the conversation about more bikes and trails. This is the evolution of what we started four years ago."

Cosmosphere will lend Liberty Bell 7 for exhibit in Germany
Full article: (Hutch News)

Gus Grissom's Liberty Bell 7 space capsule, one of the iconic exhibits at the Kansas Cosmosphere and Space Center, is going on a six-month journey to Germany, where it will become a part of the "Outer Space: The Space Between Art and Science" at the Art and Exhibition Hall of the Federal Republic of Germany in Bonn. But before Liberty Bell 7 begins its latest journey, the Cosmosphere on May 10 will open a bon voyage exhibit titled "A New Flight Path for Liberty Bell 7," which promises a look at the personal side of Grissom's 15-minute suborbital space flight in 1961, including survival gear, medical equipment and personal items Grissom had on board for souvenirs for himself and his family.

After Liberty Bell 7 splashed down in the Atlantic Ocean, Grissom scrambled from the Mercury spacecraft, which then sank. The artifacts that will make up the display were still on board when Liberty Bell 7 was recovered by the Cosmosphere's SpaceWorks team and the Discovery Channel in 1999.

SpaceWorks spent the next six months painstakingly restoring the spacecraft for a national tour.

Liberty Bell 7 has been at home at the Cosmosphere for the past eight years.

In August, it will be packed up for shipment to Germany. Liberty Bell 7 will debut in the Bonn exhibit Oct. 3 and remain on display there through Feb. 22, 2015, at which time it will be packed up again for return to Hutchinson.

"Liberty Bell 7 is, without question, one of the most iconic pieces of the Cosmosphere's collection," said Cosmosphere CEO Richard Hollowell. "This piece has a very special place in the hearts of our staff and our community. Part of the Cosmosphere's mission involves sharing the wonders of the universe with the world, and as we prepare to send Liberty Bell to Germany, we know that her journey will serve to honor the rich history of the space program and inspire the next generation.

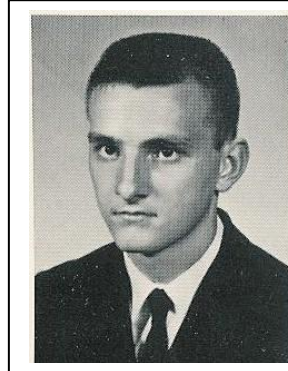

"Explorers of all ages will have the opportunity to see her, appreciate the importance of her role in history and better understand the work we do at the Cosmosphere. We're honored and excited to be sharing such an important artifact with space enthusiasts overseas."
